OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
BUREAU OF THE CENSUS
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20233

April 2, 1965

Honorable James O. Eastland
Chairman
Senate Committee on the Judiciary
United States Senate
Washington, D. C. 21510

Dear Mr. Chairman:

My letter of March 23, sent in response to your telegram of March 22, stated that we were compiling the county figures showing the number of votes cast for President in November 1964. We have completed this work for six States (Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, and Virginia), and the tables for those States are enclosed. We are including in these tables the population of voting age as reported in the 1960 Census. We shall forward the tables for the other States by the middle of next week.

As I indicated in the testimony before the Committee, we do not now have current estimates of the population of voting age by counties and the preparation of such estimates will require additional resources.

Sincerely yours,

A. Ross Eckler

IN REPLY REFER TO:

APR 6 1965

Honorable James O. Eastland
Senate Committee on the Judiciary
Washington, D. C. 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

My letter of April 2 transmitted to you tables showing figures on the number of votes cast for President in November 1964, by county, for the States of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, and Virginia. The corresponding figures for the remaining forty-four States (and the District of Columbia) are enclosed.

This completes the package of material we were compiling for you in response to your telegram of March 22.

Sincerely yours,

A. Ross Eckler

(Wyoming)

At this point in the record, statements of Senators Byrd, of Virginia, Hill, McGovern, and Robertson, and Governor Egan, of Alaska, will be inserted and are as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR HARRY F. BYRD, DEMOCRAT, OF VIRGINIA, ON THE ADMINISTRATION'S SO-CALLED VOTING RIGHTS ACT OF 1965

This is a statement about the administration's so-called Voting Rights Act of 1965. I am making it as a Member of the U.S. Senate representing Virginia under oath to uphold the Federal Constitution.

I am intensely aware of the democratic liberties to be achieved through our form of government, and to be guarded by it.

I am also dedicated to preservation of the principles and requirements of our State-local-Federal system and the checks and balances necessary to protect it.

The Federal Government of this country has worked itself into fiscal, monetary, and military difficulties which are exceedingly serious.

Now the Federal administration is allowing itself to be influenced beyond reason by the emotion of domestic hysteria; and by its own actions it is inflaming so-called civil rights issues.

The so-called voting rights bill now before Congress is an act of the present administration. It admittedly was drafted by the Federal Attorney General.

It is a vicious bill. It clearly bears the unreasonable stamp of hysteria. Even Chairman Emanuel Celler, the New York chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, has called it "harsh."

The administration has pushed its consideration ahead of everything else. Committee hearings have been arbitrarily limited. Efforts to amend it are discouraged.

There is a terrific administration pressure to pass the bill before Easter. But this statement is not made with such intemperate haste. Instead, it is made with all deliberate speed.

I have analyzed all provisions of the bill. They are iniquitous in effect and contemptible in design. The administration has been advised of the odium in which I hold its proposal.

I have also studied the Federal Attorney General's testimony. He admits drafting the bill. Neither the bill nor the testimony is worthy of men entrusted with high office in the National Government of this country.

The proposal is made in the name of voting justice. It would be less hypocritical and more accurate to describe it as Federal law designed for vindictive use against six States selected in advance.

It is a proposal grossly to offend Virginia; and not only this. It is subversive of the Constitution of the United States and the whole system under which we are governed.

The Attorney General has documented his own cynicism. He has proclaimed his impatience with judicial process, and his lack of faith in it.

I quote directly from the prepared testimony of the Federal Attorney General before the Senate Judiciary Committee on March 23, 1965. He said:

"* * * the judicial process, upon which all existing remedies depend, is institutionally inadequate to deal with practices so deeply rooted in the social and political structure."

I never expected to hear a responsible member of the legal profession or an Attorney General of the United States take such an attitude or make such a public statement about the judicial process.

Based on this rejection of government by law and not men, this Federal Attorney General seeks in a voting rights bill to arrogate judicial power to himself in areas of his own choosing.

A written constitution protects us from despotic rule. For this protection against oppressive government we rely on the checks and balances of division of power and separation of powers.

The power of government is divided between State and Federal Government and in both State and Federal Government, legislative, judicial, and executive powers are separated.

The Federal Attorney General, speaking for the administration, is demanding that the legislative branch of the Federal Government empower him—a political appointee in the executive branch—to preempt the judicial branch in areas he has chosen to punish.

That is not all. He is demanding power by Federal legislation to usurp the constitutional power of States he has already chosen to be his victims.

There is more. He is demanding this power under general Federal law which by his own design is limited to enforcement in only a handful of States.

He decries racial discrimination in voting practices, but he deliberately wrote this bill to exempt all voting discrimination in a four-fifths majority of the 50 States from its application.

The Federal Attorney General tortures legal reasoning in the scheme he contrived to include and exclude States from the vengeful clutches of his bill.

The State he wants to incriminate are caught by his own dictates combined with a devious statistical formula. Under terms of the bill—

The Federal Attorney General—by asserting that the voting requirements in a target area are racially discriminatory—may indict a whole State or any subdivision as violating the Constitution of the United States and Federal law; and

If 50 percent of the voting age people in the area were not registered to vote on November 1, 1964, or if 50 percent did not choose to vote in the 1964 presidential election, the State or locality—with never a day in court—is automatically guilty of the Federal Attorney General's indictment.

When a State or locality is convicted by this kangaroo procedure, the Federal Attorney General orders invasion of the State or subdivision by an unspecified number of Federal registrars.

Occupation of the State or subdivision by the Federal registrars will continue for an unspecified and indefinite period of time.

The purpose of the Federal registrars is to impose and enforce the will of the Federal Attorney General with respect to voting laws, ordinances, and practices in the State or locality.

The practices, operations, and locations, etc., of the Federal registrars are limited only by the whim of the Federal Attorney General, but they will include registration of persons to vote when they claim they have been disqualified under State or local requirements. And the Federal registrars will collect annual poll taxes in States where they are imposed.

(And the Federal Attorney General says he will extend his authority to all elections—Federal and State, general and primary, and local and district, including those for bond issues and the like.)

The State or locality has no rights to any sort of judicial appeal until it is actually incriminated by the Federal Attorney General's drumhead court. Then it may enter an appeal from the position of a culprit already convicted and sentenced.

The appeal in that position cannot be to test the validity of the Federal Attorney General's action. It is in the nature of an appeal for a pardon which is necessary before the State or locality can be released from the clutches of the Federal Attorney General and his Federal registrars.

But like the State or locality, the pardon appeal is virtually prejudged by the terms of the bill.

The appeal can be made only in a remote specially selected three-judge Federal court in Washington, D.C. (The Federal Attorney General says this is desirable for uniformity of decision.)

The State or locality is convicted by the Federal Attorney General of racial discrimination in voting practices, but much more than this is involved in getting a pardon from the Federal Attorney General's special court at the doorstep of the Federal Justice Department in Washington, which is headed by the Federal Attorney General.

This court is allowed to grant a pardon to a State or locality only when it is able to prove to the court's satisfaction that for 10 past years not only the State or locality, but also everybody in it, "acting under color" of its laws or ordinances, has been totally innocent not only of racial discrimination in voting practices, but also totally innocent of all discrimination suggestive of voting discrimination.

(The Federal Attorney General says complying with the "equal but separate education" doctrine of the Federal Supreme Court which stood as the law of the land for a half century would be an example of a practice suggestive of voting discrimination.)

Until a State or locality convicted by the Federal Attorney General is given such a pardon, under such conditions, by such a court, it is not allowed to enforce any change in any of its election laws or ordinances without permission from a district Federal court in Washington.

The extremes to which the administration and its Attorney General have gone to exempt the majority of States and convict a minority are beyond the realm of reason.

They demonstrate the bias and prejudice under which the bill was conceived and with which it will be enforced. The bill itself is literally based on discrimination as between States.

There is nothing in the Virginia constitution or statutes which can be honestly interpreted as discriminatory with respect to voting rights or registration.

I doubt that the Federal Attorney General can find a State where it is simpler or easier for anyone to register than it is in Virginia, or where election practices are cleaner.

If in truth, or consequence, there is any evidence of discriminatory voting practice or procedure in Virginia I am unaware of it.

If there is any evidence of racial discrimination in the registration laws or voting practices in Virginia, the Federal Attorney General has not given it the usual Federal fanfare.

Even the Federal Civil Rights Commission—with all of its bias and prejudice and snooping—has found that—

In Virginia there appears to be no racial discrimination with respect to voter registration and that Negroes "appear to encounter no significant racially motivated impediments in voting."

Despite all the activity of his own agents combined with that of the Civil Rights Commission agents, the Federal Attorney General says there is no "widespread" voting discrimination in Virginia.

But the Federal Attorney General persists in misrepresenting Virginia as a State with discriminatory registration laws or engaging in discriminatory voting practices.

He admits that this bill which he has drafted for the administration is fixed so that he can incriminate Virginia.

He admits also that he has designed this administration bill so that he can exempt Texas from its application.

In advance he has said that he will incriminate Virginia and exempt Texas.

He says Virginia is caught in his numbers game because 41 percent (not 50 percent) of its voting age people voted in the presidential election of November 1964.

But he says Texas, where 44 percent (not 50 percent) of its voting age people voted in the presidential election of November 1964, is not to be subjected to the application of his numbers racket.

When the Federal Attorney General was asked why Texas was to be exempt, he said:

"Texas is out for the reason that it does not have a literacy test. The literacy tests are the devices that have been primarily used in order to prevent Negroes from registering."

For those who may be misled by the Federal Attorney General into believing that Virginia has a literacy test, I shall compare the so-called voting tests and other requirements for voting in Virginia and Texas.

Both States voted less than 50 percent in the presidential election of November 1964.

Both States have a relatively high percentage of nonwhite population.

Both States in November 1964 required the payment of poll taxes as a prerequisite for voting in all but Federal elections.

The voting lists for the 1964 presidential election in Texas were composed of the names of persons certified by the poll tax collectors as having either paid their $1.75 poll tax, or as having formally applied for and received a certificate of exemption from payment for voting in the Federal election.

Like Texas, Virginia voters were exempt from payment of their $1.50 poll tax as a requirement for voting in the 1964 Federal election. The voting lists in Virginia were composed of the names of persons who had been registered under the Virginia voting registration laws.

In Texas, the so-called test is applied to prospective voters by the tax collector when they undertake to pay their poll tax; or when they formally apply for a certificate of exemption.

In Virginia the prospective voter is billed for his poll tax along with other taxes. He is asked simple questions of identification when he registers to vote at the office of a registrar.

In Texas the prospective voter must be able to understand the questions asked by the tax collector, and give the answers. In certain cases a husband can apply in behalf of his wife, and a wife can apply in behalf of her husband.

In Texas, article 5.14 of the election code requires the following questions to be answered:

- Name?
- Age?
- Sex?
- Race? (This is presumed to have been outlawed by a recent Federal court decision.)
- Occupation?
- Length of residence in the State of Texas?
- U.S. citizenship?
- Native-born or naturalized citizen?
- State or country of birth?
- Length of residence in county?
- Texas post office address (if residence is in an incorporated city or town give the ward, street, and number of residence in lieu of post office address, and length of residence in such city or town)?
- Political party affiliation?

In Virginia, title 24, section 68, of the code requires the following questions to be answered in writing by the person registering, without assistance:

- Name?
- Age?
- Date and place of birth?
- Residence?
- Occupation?
- Have you ever voted before?
- State, county, and precinct where you last voted?
(Members of armed services are required to give their service, serial number, and discharge date where pertinent.)
- (Naturalized citizens are required to give date, court, and State where they received their naturalization papers, along with their petition and certificate numbers.)

All persons registering are required to sign the following oath:

"I ----- do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am entitled to register under the constitution and laws of this State, and that I am not disqualified from exercising the right of suffrage by the constitution of Virginia.

But the Federal Attorney General, while admitting that both States are ensnared in his voting numbers trap, reveals that he has written this bill for the administration so that—

He can exempt Texas by simply asserting that Texas has no literacy test; but

He can incriminate Virginia by inferring that Virginia has some kind of a voting test that will not get his approval.

The fact is that in State and local elections on questions of bond issues, debt, and other matters of public finance, Texas voters must own taxable property.

There is no such requirement in Virginia.

For State and local elections Texas requires payment of poll taxes for 1 year; Virginia requires their payment for 3 years, but the 3-year requirement does not apply to new voters coming of age or moving into the State.

What does the Federal Attorney General do about poll taxes? He exempts Texas from application of his bill. But his bill provides that his Federal registrars sent to poll tax States will collect the taxes for 1 year—as in Texas—from persons they qualify to vote.

Beyond this, he has testified that neither he nor his Federal registrars will "recognize" the 3-year poll tax requirement—as in Virginia.

But while the Federal Attorney General refuses to recognize the requirement to pay poll taxes for 3 years as a requirement to vote, he provides in his bill that he and his Federal registrars can disenfranchise persons they have qualified to vote contrary to State laws if they do not vote "at least once during 3 consecutive years while listed."

The people of Virginia, and the Nation, are justified in the condemnation of legislation such as the Federal administration and its Attorney General propose in the so-called "Voting Rights Act of 1965."

They would pin a rose on Texas, but incriminate Virginia.

And when they incriminate Virginia, they deny it the judicial process accorded a murderer.

They would convict Virginia of voting discrimination, but deny it a pardon until it has proved its innocence of something else for 10 years.

They admit there is already ample law under which allegations of discrimination can be tested in the judicial process, but they want this special law to bypass judicial process for the punishment of the States of their choice.

For purposes of this law, the Federal administration and its Attorney General condone an eighth-grade education voting test in New York, but they want the power to qualify a moron to vote in Alabama.

They decry discrimination devices, but they have proposed a law which, in itself, is a discrimination device.

The Federal Attorney General has no patience with the judicial process for the victims of this bill. He wants the power to deal with them himself.

The Federal administration and its Attorney General propose to incriminate certain States by means of dictator-type decree and a statistical formula.

They demand for themselves the right, under certain conditions which they name, to disenfranchise people they themselves qualified to vote.

The Federal administration and its Attorney General propose, by a single Federal statute to take away the constitutional rights of States and substitute Federal executive decree.

If this can be done for this administration, for the purposes of this bill, to punish the States it has chosen, it can be done at other times for other purposes to destroy the constitutional rights of others, the Constitution notwithstanding.

It is significant that this bill would extend Federal control over all elections—Federal, State, local, and party primaries.

Federal agents are not to confine their control only to elections for political office. They extend it to State and local elections with respect to public finance—bond issues, credit, expenditures, etc.

Simply by changing the statistical formula the Federal administration and its Attorney General can be empowered to extend their control over any and all States they wish to give this treatment.

What would remain of our form and system of government if all elections in all States and localities were controlled by the Central Government?

Only last month 99.9 percent of the people in Moscow voted in an election of candidates who had no opposition. And when Mr. Khrushchev voted, he was not required even to produce identification.

STATEMENT OF SENATOR LISTER HILL IN OPPOSITION TO S. 1564

Mr. Chairman and members of the committee: S. 1564, the so-called voting rights bill of 1965, is, without exaggeration, the most unconstitutional piece of legislation I have seen proposed during my more than 40 years in the Congress.

I am here to register my opposition to S. 1564 and to any other proposal that would allow a politically appointed Attorney General, at his sole discretion, to take control of the election machinery for State, local, and Federal elections and the qualifications of electors in a sovereign State or in any subdivision thereof, merely by reason of his finding or discretion that that State has a test as a qualification for voting and that less than 50 percent of persons in such State registered or voted in connection with last November's presidential election.

Mr. Chairman, the formula of the proposed so-called voting rights bill is so drawn as to arbitrarily adjudge a handful of States guilty of discrimination in the field of voting and to leave the overwhelming majority of the States free to discriminate in any way they choose. In other words, 41 out of the 50 States would not be covered in any way under the proposed legislation.

A careful examination of the bill clearly reveals the discriminatory, punitive, and harsh nature of it. The Wall Street Journal, not a southern paper, not written or published in the South, recently referred to the bill as an "immoral law."

The New Republic, again not a southern publication, in an April 3, 1965 editorial, referred to the bill as a "tough measure," as "the toughest since Reconstruction" and then finally it called the bill outrightly "a Reconstruction measure."

Indeed, Mr. Chairman, the bill must be "the toughest since Reconstruction" as Mr. Beckel of the New Republic puts it. It must be tougher, for as the members of this committee will recall, at the time the 14th amendment was being considered, Congressman Thaddeus Stevens, chairman of the Joint Committee on Reconstruction—who could hardly be called a southern sympathizer—strongly asserted his belief that "the States have the right, and always have had it, to fix the elective franchise within their own States." And he went on to say that, in his opinion, the States would not and should not allow Congress to regulate the restrictions and qualifications for their voters.

Mr. Chairman, while I am opposed to the bill before this committee and the arbitrary and unprecedented manner in which it seeks to sweep aside some of the most vital provisions of the Constitution of the United States, I should like to make it abundantly clear, as I have on past occasions, that I believe all qualified Americans should have the right to vote. I am not willing, however, to lend my hand to any broom that would sweep aside the Constitution and the rights of the individual States—North, South, East, or West—or that would arbitrarily sweep into a corner a certain handful of States for discriminatory and punitive treatment.

In the very beginning, article I, section 2 of the Constitution vested in the State governments the power fixing the qualifications for voters. This section provides as follows:

"The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second year by the people of the several States, and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislatures."

Some 124 years after the adoption of the Constitution, when the people of the United States saw fit to change their method of electing U.S. Senators they provided, in the 17th amendment, as follows:

"The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof, for 6 years: and each Senator shall have one vote."

Then there is this language:

"The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors for the most numerous branch of the State legislatures."

The Supreme Court of the United States, which interprets the Constitution, declared unanimously in the famous Lassiter case in 1959 that the States may, without violating the Constitution, use literacy tests as a prerequisite to eligibility for voting. The exact language of the opinion is as follows:

"We do not suggest that any standards which a State desires to adopt may be required of voters. But there is wide scope for exercise of its jurisdiction. Residence requirements, age, previous criminal record are obvious examples indicating factors which a State may take into consideration in determining the qualifications of voters. The ability to read and write likewise has some relation to standards designed to promote intelligent use of the ballot."

The same opinion quoted from a previous ruling of the High Court, in what is known as the Guinn case, as follows:

"No time need be spent on the question of the validity of the literacy test, considered alone, since, as we have seen its establishment was but the exercise by the State of a lawful power vested in it not subject to our supervision, and, indeed, its validity is admitted."

So, as we see, Mr. Chairman, from the very beginning and down through the years, the Constitution and the Supreme Court decisions interpreting its provisions are abundantly clear as to the rights of the States to set voter qualifications.

The bill before this committee, S. 1564, is entitled "A bill to enforce the fifteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States." The bill thus pretends to be "appropriate legislation" to prevent the voting right of citizens of the United States from being denied or abridged by States on account of race or color. In fact, the bill is not that at all. Its real purpose is to establish voting qualifications to displace those now established by State laws. Precisely, it is a bill to abolish State voting qualification laws whether they are valid or invalid, fair or unfair, and whether they are administered by States in violation or not in violation of the Constitution of the United States. It is a bill clothed in the garments of the 15th amendment for the purpose of concealing its unconstitutional design. This is shown in the language of section 2 of the bill, which reads as follows:

"No voting qualification or procedure shall be imposed or applied to deny or abridge the right to vote on account of race or color."

For those who insist on clothing this bill with the 15th amendment, let me briefly recall that amendment's legislative history to show that it did not intend to give Congress power to pass legislation such as that before this committee.

The joint resolution, proposing the amendment which was later to become the 15th amendment to the Constitution, read as follows:

"SECTION 1. The right of any citizen of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State by reason of the race, color, or previous condition of slavery of any citizen or class of citizens of the United States."

On February 10, 1869, the Senate amended and passed the resolution to include a provision that no discrimination shall be made in the exercise of the elective franchise on account of nativity, property, education, or creed. If the 15th amendment as amended and passed by the Senate on February 10, 1869, had been concurred in by the House and ratified by the States, the States would have lost their rights to prescribe literacy tests or other educational qualifications for their voters. The House, however, adamantly refused to do so.

A New York Times editorial on February 15, 1869, expressed the sentiments and reaction of the overwhelming majority of people throughout the country when it said:

"The amendment as reported by the Reconstruction Committee and passed by the House is simple and moderate. * * *

"The Senate amendment is sweeping enough to justify the charge of being revolutionary preferred by Mr. Conkling and others * * *"

Remember, the Senate amendment to which the editorial refers would have prohibited any State literacy test.

Following a great storm of protest throughout the country, the Senate backed away from its effort to restrict the rights of the States to prescribe educational and property qualifications for their voters. The debates in Congress at that time make it clear beyond any doubt that the 15th amendment was not intended in any way to restrict or take away from the States their rights to prescribe educational or property qualifications of voters.

So, we see, Mr. Chairman, that the 15th amendment was not intended to give Congress the power to strike down State literacy tests and a long line of Supreme Court decisions have upheld this.

Mr. Chairman, section by section, the provisions of this bill are harsh, drastic and far reaching. They are unprecedented and alien to our system of law and justice. They are foreign to our constitutional form of government and violative of the intent and express language of that great document.

I have called the bill as a whole arbitrary, discriminatory, and punitive. Much testimony has been taken by this committee exposing the bill as such and much has been written on it. I commend the distinguished and brilliant lawyer and jurist, the senior Senator from North Carolina, Senator Sam Ervin, and other members of the committee for the great service they have rendered the people of the Nation in this regard. I am prepared to further expose the unconstitutionality and harshness of this bill and to discuss it at length, if it comes to the floor of the Senate for consideration. I certainly hope it does not and I urge the committee to reject it. As I do, I would remind the members of this committee what the bill and its proponents are asking this Congress to do.

They are asking that this Congress by legislative act declare six States and certain counties in three other States guilty of discrimination in their voting procedures because they legally and constitutionally maintained on last November 1 a voter qualification test and less than 50 percent of their people were registered on that date or voted in the 1964 November election.

They are asking that the Congress automatically outlaw in those States adjudged guilty by it any testing of ability to read, write, or understand any matter, and to outlaw any requirement regarding moral character as a legal qualification to voting.

They are asking the Congress to impose on the handful of States covered by the bill a punishment of 10 years coverage, beginning with the date of a final judgment by a court of discrimination, whether the judgment was entered prior to or after enactment of the bill.

They are asking the Congress to give a politically appointed Attorney General, whoever he may be at any given time, the power to replace local registrars with civil service examiner, if, by findings or his discretions, he thinks there may be discrimination practiced in voting procedures.

They are asking the Congress to give a politically appointed Attorney General, through the civil service examiners appointed by him, the power to determine the qualifications required for listing, with no procedure for contesting such determinations.

They are asking the Congress to disregard the judicial competency and integrity of Federal judges in the States covered by the bill, to impugn the Federal judiciary system; and to establish a three-man court in the District of Columbia to entertain any judicial actions growing out of the bill and its application.

They are asking the Congress to establish the principle, for the first time in the history of this country, that a State must submit to a three-man court outside its jurisdiction, in this instance in the District of Columbia, any proposal or legislation duly enacted by State legislature, composed of representatives of the people of an individual State, for approval before it can be put into effect as the law of that State.

They are asking the Congress to single out a handful of States for this unjust, unconstitutional, and harsh treatment and, by the formula of the bill, leave the others to discriminate at will.

Mr. Chairman, I say that the provisions, the import, and the drastic consequences of S. 1564, the so-called voting rights bill before this committee, are and should be of vital concern to more than just the handful of States covered by it. The American people may discover some day that changes that would be brought about by enactment of S. 1564 and the principles established by it could affect not merely voting rights, but the rights of citizens in almost every other field of law. For, indeed, the bill we discuss here today constitutes a revolution in American law.

The truth is, Mr. Chairman, that if, by the passage of a single law of Congress, the rights of the States can be taken away from them with the excuse that it is merely desired to prevent some possible abuse of power, then the United States will no longer be governed by a written Constitution.

I am one who continues to believe that in these turbulent and trying times it is vitally important that we maintain and preserve the rudder to our ship of state—our written Constitution—and, again, I ask the committee to reject S. 1564, the bill before it.

STATEMENT BY SENATOR GEORGE MCGOVERN IN SUPPORT OF S. 1564, THE VOTING RIGHTS ACT OF 1965

I am most pleased to have this opportunity to express my strong support for S. 1564, the proposed Voting Rights Act of 1965.

A little more than 2 weeks ago President Johnson appealed for legislation designed to guarantee the right to vote to every American citizen, regardless of race or color. I believe that President Johnson spoke for millions of Americans when he said, "Every American citizen must have an equal right to vote. There is no reason which can excuse the denial of that right. There is no duty which weighs more heavily on us than the duty we have to insure that right * * *. It is wrong to deny any of your fellow Americans the right to vote in this country."

For more than 100 years American Negro citizens have been trying to obtain the most basic right of American citizenship, the right to vote and the right to share in the election of public officials. For more than 100 years the right to vote has been denied to large segments of the American citizenry, solely because of the color of their skin. The conscience of America now demands that action be taken to secure this precious right for all Americans.

I am convinced that this legislation enjoys strong public support not only in my State of South Dakota, but in the East and West, in the North and South. I believe that the American people fully realize that denying one American citizen the right to vote hurts all of us. As the poet John Donne wrote, "No man is an island, entirely of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main * * *. Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind." To deprive the American Negro of the right to vote is to deprive us all of the essence of our heritage and democracy.

There is broad public support for the Voting Rights Act in South Dakota. A short while ago in Sioux Falls some 250 or more students and faculty members from Augustana College marched in support of this legislation during the worst blizzard of the winter. Church leaders, students, farmers, businessmen, and other interested citizens of South Dakota have written me to express their full support for it.

I do hope that sympathetic consideration will be given to some of the suggestions which have been made to improve and broaden the coverage of this bill. I am hopeful that a formula can be arrived at which will put an end to some of the substantial pockets of discrimination not presently covered by its wording.

We now have a chance to prove that we really believe in the principal that all American citizens are entitled to vote for their representatives. This is a task in which we must not fail.

STATEMENT OF SENATOR A. WILLIS ROBERTSON ON S. 1564, THE NEW VOTING RIGHTS BILL

In order to become a Member of the U.S. Senate, every man certified by his State government as having been duly elected must stand before the Presiding Officer of the Senate and take a solemn oath that he will support and uphold the Constitution. In my opinion, there is no more justification for a Member of the Senate to elect what parts of the Constitution he will support and uphold and what parts he will deliberately violate than it is for Martin Luther King and his misguided followers to decide what State and local laws they will obey and what they will deliberately violate.

The new voting bill, S. 1564, violates the constitutional right of sovereign States in a number of respects, but especially with respect to the provisions of the bill that make all literacy tests illegal and which change State laws requiring the payment of a modest poll tax by all citizens a specified time before a general election. S. 1564 also rests upon a deduction from an assumption which is bad logic as well as bad law. For instance, we are told that election officials in Virginia are violating the 15th amendment which prohibits a State from restricting a man's vote on account of his race. We are told that Virginia falls into that category because in the last presidential election less than 50 percent of the adult voters of Virginia voted. The facts are—and deductions can only be made from facts and not from assumptions—that the adult population in Virginia in the summer of 1964 was 2,524,000. That included 157,000 members of military establishments, most of whom had not acquired a legal voting residence in the State; all college students without legal residence in the State, and all crews of ships that were in a Virginia port at the time the census was taken. In November of 1964, 1,311,023 were registered to vote in Virginia which was 51 percent of the population of voting age. However, only 1,042,267 voted, which was 41 percent of the population of voting age.

If all of the Virginians who were registered last year had gone to the polls on election day in November, this new bill would not apply to Virginia.

But because approximately 269,000 of those registered did not vote, this bill would enable the Federal authorities to presume that Virginia is discriminating.

Thus, Virginia could be brought under this bill, while New York is excluded, despite the fact that the literacy test in the Empire State prevents many Puerto Ricans from voting.

In New York an applicant for registration must present an elementary or high school diploma, or pass a test of his ability to comprehend English. The New York Times reports that many adults among New York City's 750,000 Puerto Ricans are elementary school dropouts who are literate in Spanish, but not in English.

Nevertheless, administration spokesmen have told a House subcommittee that this bill could not provide relief for these Puerto Ricans, because more than 50 percent of New York's voting age population voted last year.

In this connection, I understand that Puerto Rico has passed a law to prohibit the teaching of English in its schools. Yet, there are those in this country who would favor making this island 1,600 miles from our shores the 51st State.

Of all the States that have literacy tests, Virginia's is the simplest. Simpler than the North Carolina test which was approved unanimously by the Supreme Court in the Lassiter case in 1959.

Members of Congress who seem to be determined to rush this new voting bill through with inadequate committee hearings and very limited floor debate are either ignorant of or else conveniently unmindful of the voting pattern of the 13 States which ratified a Constitution to form a more perfect Union. They are also ignorant of or conveniently unmindful of the history of the formation of the 15th amendment.

Prior to the adoption of our Federal Constitution, the States possessed unlimited and absolute sovereignty. They retained the same sovereignty after the Constitution was adopted, except so far as they granted certain powers to the Federal Government, or prohibited themselves from doing certain acts. Every State reserved to itself the exclusive right of regulating its own internal government and police. Before the adoption of the Civil War amendment, there was not to be found in the Constitution of the United States "a single sentence, paragraph, or word which (gave to) the National Government power over the qualifications of voters in any of the States." Blair v. Ridgely, 41 Missouri 68, 97 Am. Dec. 248.

Indeed, at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, each State had diverse qualifications for suffrage, and most of the State constitutions imposed property qualifications of various sorts.

During the period in which the struggle for universal male suffrage was being fought, it was never asserted that the Congress of the United States or any Federal constitutional provision could alter State voting requirements. In fact, the following observation was made by the U.S. Supreme Court, in the case of Luther v. Borden, 48 U.S. (7 How.) 1, 85 (1849):

"And certainly it is no part of the judicial function of any court of the United States to prescribe the qualifications of voters in a State giving the right to those to whom it is denied by the written and established constitution and laws of the State or taking it away from those to whom it is given."

Nothing in the Constitution of the United States provided a different rule for suffrage in Federal elections. Article I, section 2, provides that "Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature" in voting for Members of the House of Representatives, while the 17th amendment makes the same provision for U.S. Senators. Article II, section 1, provides that "Each State shall appoint in such Manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a Number of Electors" to vote for President and Vice President. These provisions vest in Congress no power to prescribe voting qualifications, and this omission cannot be deemed an oversight, for when the framers of the Constitution desired to give Congress power to alter State rules in respect to elections of Federal officials, they found no difficulty in doing so, as illustrated by article I, section 4, which permits Congress to alter State laws in respect to the times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives "at any time by law."

The powers of the States to prescribe voting qualifications are as absolute and unlimited today as they were in 1789, with one exception. The 15th amendment prohibits the States from denying or abridging the right to vote on the basis of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Attempting to rely upon this Civil War amendment, the Federal Government has introduced a bill purporting to cure alleged discriminations against the right to vote.

Section three of the proposed legislation would prohibit a State from requiring "any test or device as a qualification for voting," in any Federal, State, or local election, provided that a determination was made by the Director of the Census "that less than 50 percent of the persons of voting age residing therein were registered on November 1, 1964, or that less than 50 percent of such persons voted in the presidential election of November 1964." That such a finding in no way establishes a conclusive presumption of discriminatory practices will be discussed later. At this point, the unconstitutionality of prohibiting a State from requiring a literacy test as a qualification for voting should be discussed.

Twenty States, North and South, have exercised their power under the Constitution of the United States to require some sort of literacy test as a prerequisite to voting.

The Attorney General of the United States now argues that the proposed administration bill to abolish such tests, is justified, indeed, is grounded, on the provisions of the 15th amendment.

I submit that the Attorney General is in error. There is nothing in the legislative history of the 15th amendment to suggest that the 40th Congress of the United States intended the amendment to change, in any way, the powers of a State to regulate voting qualifications.

The House of Representatives was first to pass the 15th amendment. When the House version was reported to the Senate, that body amended the original House version to ban discrimination based on nativity, property, and education. Thereupon, the House defeated this amended version by a vote of 133 to 37. (Congressional Globe, 40th Cong., 3d sess., Feb. 15, 1860, p. 1226.)

At this point the Senate, rather than delay longer the passage of the bill, receded from its amendment. (Id., of p. 1329.) The final conference report contained the present text of the 15th amendment. (Id., at p. 1623.) A constant criticism heard while the debate was going on, in the Senate was to the effect that the Senate was giving way to the House. (Id., at p. 1639.)

It is to war with reason to suggest that Congress, after having expressly deleted a provision banning educational qualifications from the amendment, should have intended that the watered down version which finally became the 15th amendment should encompass a provision which had been expressly deleted.

It is clear that the deletion of the educational voting restriction ban forecloses any congressional action in this field. A State will be well within its constitutional prerogatives to provide that none but those who pass the eighth grade, or high school, or college, or law school, or who can read English, or Latin, or Greek, can vote at Federal or State elections.

In order to justify its attack on State literacy tests, which, as we have seen are not prohibited by the 15th amendment, the Federal Government is forced to rely upon a questionable presumption. This presumption, as mentioned earlier, concludes that discrimination exists in any State wherein less than 50 percent of the persons of voting age residing therein were registered in November 1, 1964, or that less than 50 percent of such persons voted in the presidential election of November 1964.

The press reports that these States are Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Virginia, South Carolina, and Alaska.

In order to overcome this questionable presumption, and it will shortly be explained why it is questionable, the burden is upon the accused State to successfully refute any allegations of discrimination, and this action may be taken only in the three-judge District Court of the District of Columbia.

Note carefully that the State can be found guilty of denying the right to vote, not only in Federal elections, but in State elections, by an administrative official outside the judicial system. The only time that the Federal Government constitutionally can get involved in such an area is where there has been a judicial determination in the first instance that the Constitution of the United States has been violated.

As mentioned earlier, the administrative presumption provided for in the act is highly suspect.

Spokesmen for the State of Alaska immediately protested that the severe cold of our 49th State often precluded a large turnout on election day. No discrimination, and yet the presumption would require extensive litigation by Alaska's officials in the District of Columbia courts.

In Virginia, white and Negro members appointed by the Virginia Civil Rights Advisory Committee found no evidence of discrimination in voting in Virginia. Congressional Record, March 17, 1965, page 5151 (unbound volume). Again, in order to overcome the presumption, extensive litigation by a State in the District of Columbia would be required.

Other factors which render the presumption highly suspect are plain voter apathy.

A special report of the Southern Regional Council released November 2, 1958, includes the following statement:

"In certain areas it undoubtedly has become more difficult for Negroes to register, because of new voting restrictions and stricter applications of the old requirements. In some sections where political leaders have fanned racial prejudices, Negroes are even more hesitant about attempting to register than they were 2 years ago. But, in many parts of the South, lack of political consciousness remains the greatest barrier. Leaders of both races long have contended that if all bars to Negro voting were removed tomorrow, there would not be a great rush to the polls.

"This is not expected until Negroes have been able to raise their economic and educational levels. Their leadership has been broadened and they have reached a position where their political participation promises more tangible results. Neither the new civil rights legislation nor the Federal agencies created by it promise any quick or dramatic improvement in Negro suffrage. Even where registration boards are cooperative, a gradual process of political education obviously will be required."

As late as 1960, Attorney General Rogers, appearing before the Committee on Rules and Administration of the Senate, stated that it was his hope that "there will be greater effort on the part of the Negro to register and vote, because constitutional rights cannot be enforced unless the people attempt to exercise them."

In light of such evidence, Congress should not indulge in such a presumption as created by the proposed legislation.

The other section of the bill that I wish to discuss today is section 5 (e), which provides, in part, that:

"No person shall be denied the right to vote for failure to pay a poll tax if he tenders payment of such tax for the current year to an examiner, whether or not such tender would be timely or adequate under State law."

Again, I submit this section is unconstitutional as an attempt to destroy the States powers to establish such voting qualifications as they deem adequate.

The 24th amendment, of course, prevents the States from making payment of a poll tax a condition of the right to vote in Federal elections. That amendment reads:

"SECTION 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote in any primary or other election for President or Vice President, for electors for President or Vice President, or for Senator or Representative in Congress, shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State by reason of failure to pay any poll tax or other tax.

"Sec. 2: The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

It seems obvious that an examination of this wording reveals that the amendment was clearly intended to in no way prevent the States from making payment of a poll tax a condition of the right to vote in State and local elections. Its single and only purpose was to prevent the States from making payment of a poll tax a condition of the right to vote in Federal elections.

It would appear equally obvious that should a State decide to exercise its power, undiminished by the 24th amendment, and require the payment of a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in a State election, that power constitutionally includes the power to specify that such a tax be paid on or before a date certain.

While acknowledging the power of a State to require the payment of a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in a State election, Congress would attempt to qualify that power by statute, and I do not believe that mere legislation can amend the Constitution by taking away the right of a State to prescribe certain voting qualifications.

Finally, in closing, section 8 should be briefly discussed. That section provides that:

"Whenever a State or political subdivision for which determinations are in effect under section 3(a) shall enact any law or ordinance imposing qualifications or procedures for voting different than those in force and effect on November 1, 1964, such law or ordinance shall not be enforced unless and until it shall have been finally adjudicated by an action for declaratory judgment brought against the United States in the district court for the district that such qualifications or procedures will not have the effect of denying or abridging rights guaranteed by the fifteenth amendment. All actions hereunder shall be heard by a three-judge court and there shall be a right of direct appeal to the Supreme Court."

This section is equally as objectionable as the two sections previously discussed. It gives the Federal Government the absolute power to determine which, if any, State qualifications on voting should be upheld. It allows, in effect, the Federal Government to set its own future standards for voting, a provision which is in direct conflict with the Constitution, and destroys forever the revered theory that there is a presumption of legality attaching to State legislation.

Regardless of the size of the majority that may be against me; regardless of the political expediency that may be involved, I hope and pray that as long as I have the great honor and the coveted privilege to be a Member of the U.S. Senate from Virginia, I shall never consciously vote to violate my oath to uphold and support the Constitution of the United States.

STATE OF ALASKA,
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR,
Juneau, April 4, 1965.

HON. JAMES O. EASTLAND,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Thank you for the opportunity to be heard on S. 1564, entitled "A bill to enforce the 15th amendment to the Constitution of the United States." S. 1564 is a tremendously important legislative proposal. I wholeheartedly support its passage. However, due to the press of the current legislative session here in Alaska, I will not be able to appear before the committee, nor will we be able to have other than members of Alaska's congressional delegation at our Nation's Capital at this time.

While it appears from the transcript of the testimony of the Attorney General of the United States, presented to the House Judiciary Committee on H.R. 6400, that the terms of the bill apply to the State of Alaska, the committee will surely be interested to know that by no stretch of the imagination could the bill apply to Alaska.

In the first place, the State of Alaska did not maintain any "test or device as a qualification for voting" on November 1, 1964, nor at any other time.

To "maintain a test or device as a qualification for voting" would be a clear-cut violation of article V, the suffrage and elections article of Alaska's constitution. Article V, in its entirety, follows:

"SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS

"SECTION 1. Every citizen of the United States who is at least 19 years of age, who meets registration requirements which may be prescribed by law, and who is qualified to vote under this article, may vote in any State or local election. He shall have been, immediately preceding the election, for 1 year a resident of Alaska and for 30 days a resident of the election district in which he seeks to vote. He shall be able to read or speak the English language as prescribed by law, unless prevented by physical disability. Additional voting qualifications may be prescribed by law for bond issue elections of political subdivisions.

"SEC. 2. No person may vote who has been convicted of a felony involving moral turpitude unless his civil rights have been restored. No person may vote who has been judicially determined to be of unsound mind unless the disability has been removed.

"SEC. 3. Methods of voting, including absentee voting, shall be prescribed by law. Secrecy of voting shall be preserved. The procedure for determining election contests, with right of appeal to the courts, shall be prescribed by law.

"SEC. 4. The legislature may provide a system of permanent registration of voters, and may establish voting precincts within election districts.

"SEC. 5. General elections shall be held on the second Tuesday in October of every even-numbered year, but the month and day may be changed by law."

I personally doubt that the constitution of any other State in our great Nation contains more liberal voting provisions than the constitution of the State of Alaska.

As a practical matter, the American citizens of native and Eskimo ethnic origin in Alaska probably come closer to having a 100-percent voting record among those who are of voting age than does any other specific group of citizens of our 50 States. There are no voting impediments whatsoever placed in the way of Alaska's 8,000 to 9,000 fine American citizens of Negro origin. All that is required for anyone to vote in Alaska's State elections is that the voter be a citizen of the United States who is at least 19 years of age, a resident of Alaska for 1 year, and able to read or speak the English language as prescribed by law.

Secondly, Mr. Chairman, Alaska's secretary of State, the administrator of Alaska's elections, calculates that at least 60.7 percent of the citizens of voting age who were qualified to vote and who claim Alaska as their voting residence, voted in the November 1964 presidential election.

Most of the military population of Alaska, of course, maintains voting residence in other States of our Union. And there are certain reasons why a far greater percentage of other Federal employees in Alaska maintain voting residence in other States than is the case elsewhere.

State of Alaska voting records reveal that there have been very few challenges of prospective voters at the polling places over the farflung voting precincts of the vast area that is Alaska.

There are no prior registration requirements in Alaska for State or National general elections. In Alaska's larger communities, prior registration is required for local municipal elections.

I have no doubt that the State of Alaska can establish, to the satisfaction of the U.S. Attorney General, that Alaska had never maintained a "test or device." Further, I am confident that we can establish, to the satisfaction of the Director of the Census, that a far greater percentage than 50 percent of the qualified voters claiming residence in Alaska did indeed cast their ballots in both the presidential election of 1964 and in the 1960 presidential election.

I note, in section 4(b) of S. 1564, that the determination of the U.S. Attorney General or of the U.S. Director of the Census is "final and effective upon publication in the Federal Register." I hope these determinations have not already been made and that the State of Alaska will have opportunity to present evidence to the U.S. Attorney General and the U.S. Director of the Census proving that Alaska does not in fact constitutionally, by law, or in practice exercise any voting "test or device." We will also prove that the percentage of Alaska voters participating in the only presidential elections in which we have ever been privileged to take part, numbered far in excess of 50 percent of those persons of voting age and claiming voting residence in Alaska.

Discrimination or denial of voting or other civil rights to any resident of Alaska is prohibited by Alaska's constitution and by strong, effective, implementing statutes of this State. Strong penalties are provided in Alaska law for violation of such statutes.

Therefore, a great injustice has been visited upon our State through the erroneous inclusion of Alaska in press releases on the wire services which have implied that Alaska may not meet some of the standards for voting procedures proposed in the provisions of S. 1564.

The official view of the executive branch of the government of the State of Alaska is that it is quite likely the provisions of S. 1564, as originally submitted, are not broadly inclusive enough to insure total compliance with the intent of the proposed legislation.

It is obvious from public statements of a number of Members of the U.S. Senate that amendments will be offered to your committee which would accomplish the broadening of authority that may be necessary.

I want to express my sincere appreciation of your kindness in permitting me this opportunity to explain the State of Alaska's position with respect to S. 1564 and H.R. 6400 and in allowing me to present through this communication to your committee the facts regarding Alaska's voting requirements, which are either the most liberal of all the great States in our Union, or at least are among the most liberal voting provisions of all our sister States.

kindest regards.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM A. EGAN, Governor.

(Additional statements submitted for the record are as follows:)

IRBY TURNER, JR., ATTORNEY AT LAW, BELZONI, MISS., MEMBER OF THE MISSISSIPPI STATE LEGISLATURE

From the great heritage of legal principles obtained from the common law of Great Britain and throughout our history granting to the people of our country great protections and freedoms, one of the foremost and indeed perhaps the cornerstone of those principles is that a man is presumed innocent until proven guilty. No matter how heinous the crime, this privilege has always been afforded the accused, and we treasure it today as one of the blessings of liberty.

From our own American forebears certainly one of our greatest gifts and bulwarks toward democracy was the contribution of our written Constitution, a document intended to preserve the rights of the States that compose this Union and the rights of the people therein. Americans recognize that the division of power between State governments and the Federal Government has been throughout history and is today a great deterrent of tyranny, that same force that has signaled the decline of so many other nations throughout the course of history. Thus, if an accused is granted a presumption of innocence, no matter how heinous the crime, how much more important it is that a State in the preservation of its rights left to it under the Constitution be afforded the same privilege?

The Constitution of the United States has placed certain restrictions upon States concerning voting rights. The 15th amendment provides that no State shall deprive a person of the right to vote because of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. The 19th amendment forbids any State to deprive any person of the right to vote on account of sex. No other restrictions are placed in the Constitution, and thus except for those restrictions and subject to them, the States have under the Constitution the right to be the judge of the criteria for their own electors.

Under the Civil Rights Act of 1960 means were set up to challenge any racial discrimination used in voting qualification procedures. Courts have under that act even gone so far as to establish Federal referees to conduct registration in areas in which the court found discrimination existed. But at least in such cases discrimination had to be proved. The principle of jurisprudence of the presumption of innocence still remained. And those means are still available today to correct any areas in which discrimination is proven to exist.

Under the proposed bill a mere showing of numbers brings about a presumption of guilt, and it becomes incumbent upon the State to prove its innocence. Lethargy in legal doctrines of the past becomes subject to the penalty of laches. However, here, lethargy is rewarded by abolishment of the procedure that the industrious have complied with.

Indeed, this bill, under the guise of the 15th amendment, boldly takes from States all rights to set qualifications for voters under certain circumstances regardless of whether there is discrimination in voting registration or not. Assume if you will, a mythical State with testing requirements where 50 percent of the registered voters failed to vote because of lethargy, apathy, a State in which there was no racial discrimination in voting, but a State in which one subdivision thereof had been found guilty of racial discrimination 9 years before. Under section 3 of the bill the qualifications for registration of the State would be abolished. The State would be without remedy for relief, not because of present discrimination but because of discrimination some 9 years before, long before the passage of this act. The rights of that State would be brutally stripped from her. Ex post facto laws are barred by the Constitution. Yet the rights of a State are taken here under a procedure that if not ex post facto by law, is certainly ex post facto in character.

Further this bill usurps the legislative power of the State. Any State during a period in which determinations are in effect is barred from making changes in its qualifications or procedures for voting until the law passed has been adjudicated nondiscriminatory by a court. Another legal principle—that a law is presumed valid until held otherwise—is overturned by this bill. I assume from this section that even a bill providing for the establishment of voting machines in such a State would have to be adjudicated nondiscriminatory before it could go into effect. Would you allow your legislative rights to be so infringed upon that any law you passed would have to be ruled upon by a Federal court before going into effect? Of course not. I believe that each of you would stand forth in righteous anger to protect your legislative rights. Are the sovereign States of this Union entitled to less?

And, perhaps, the greatest tragedy is that this bill receives its impetus from violence and mob action in the streets. Has this great country sunk so low that the pressures of street mobs rule logic and democratic processes?

Some may say that the mobs represent a problem, and that all barriers to solution must be immediately overcome, regardless of the consequences. Within those barriers are democratic processes and the constitutional rights of States. Some may say, "The end justifies the means," but I implore you not to adopt that Marxian doctrine as the basis for our future America.

STATEMENT OF W. B. HICKS, JR., EXECUTIVE SECRETARY, LIBERTY LOBBY, WASHINGTON, D.C., ON S. 1564, VOTING RIGHTS ACT OF 1965

Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I am W. B. Hicks, Jr., executive secretary of Liberty Lobby, representing the more than 100,000 persons who subscribe to our legislative reports, testifying on the President's Voting Rights Act of 1965.

A punitive law

The President's law is punitive. It is designed to punish the South for what it has done for nearly a hundred years in semilegal contravention of the 15th amendment—for what it has done to the political ambitions of those who would exploit the Negro vote—and, for what it did to Lyndon Johnson last November.

The punishment contemplated is more than severe—it is a death sentence.

For the next 10 years, this law forbids the poorest and least educated part of the Nation to use any qualifications for voting other than age and residence. The result of this punishment can be seen as clearly as if it had already happened.

First, the rise of a new class of Southern States politician—a breed of demagogues—coming into political power on a wave of pie-in-the-sky promises of free State money for everyone.

Next, the futile attempts to carry out those promises by taxing the farms, business, and industry of the South at ever-increasing rates, even while failing to satisfy the demands of the poor for more—and more and more and more.

Then, the flight of business and industry from the unbearable demands of the welfare state, and the tragic streams of white refugees following their jobs to the north and west.

Finally, the necessary establishment of the all-black States as Federal "reservations," populated only by government bureaucrats and their Negro dependents, but—unlike their counterparts on the Indian reservations—represented in Washington by a powerful voting bloc of nearly 40 Congressmen and 8 Senators.

Let there be no question about it. If the President's law is passed, the South will disappear from the civilized world just as surely and certainly as did Haiti in 1804. Under the terms of this punitive law, the South will be sentenced to government by its least capable inhabitants for 10 long years. No civilization so governed has ever survived. There is no reason to believe that this one will.

It is clear that the President's law is designed to punish, rather than to correct an "evil." There is no provision in the law to allow the "guilty" South to "mend its ways." No opportunity is offered to reform and avoid the punishment, no matter how much the people might be willing to sacrifice to escape the chilling implications of the death sentence.

In the long run, we will all pay.

For are we not one nation, faced with one threat—and that one at our very throat? How can the rest of us survive the amputation of the South from our economy—and our civilization?

Even granting that the South has sinned, as so many believe, by trying to have its cake and eat it, too—by using literacy tests to restrict Negro vote while letting white vote without restriction—did we not all help establish the pattern for the South—never insisting, until now, that the South make the hard decision—the decision to apply the same necessary standards to whites as well as blacks?

Now, are we to give the South no opportunity to choose; to do the the thing that is necessary to its own survival, as well as ours? Are we to pass a law—or a death sentence?

An unconstitutional ex post facto law

The very first article of the Constitution forbids the passage of ex post facto laws. An ex post facto law is one that makes it a crime today to have done some act yesterday, or that increases the punishment today for the crime of yesterday.

Good law is never ex post facto. Good law demands that the governed have the opportunity to obey the law and also to know what the punishment is for not obeying.

The President's law is ex post facto. Look how it is framed—so that if on November 1, 1964, the State did so-and-so, then the State is "guilty"—and the ex post facto nature of this law is obvious.

Why does it not say, instead, that if on some future date, the State is doing this or that, then the State will guilty?

Notice that the law goes back 10 years to establish the guilt of the State. What is this, but ex post facto law?

Those who support this law will explain that, according to the 15th amendment, it is already illegal to discriminate in voting rights, so that the Congress is justified in going back to include last year's "crime" in this year's law.

This argument tries to separate crime and its punishment—but the two are not separable. Would it be justice to increase the penalty for tax evasion to life imprisonment today, then to sentence last year's tax dodger to "life," even through the limit of the law at the time of the crime was only 5 years? To do so would be unconstitutional, ex post facto law.

The President's law is ex post facto, in that it first increases the penalty for voter discrimination, then applies the new punishment to the already committed act of the past.

Punishment for voting rights discrimination has been provided under the 14th amendment, which allows for reducing the representation of discriminating States. It is provided for through filing suits under the 15th amendment. It is also provided for under the Civil Rights Acts of 1957, 1960, and 1964. If the punishment provided for under these laws is not sufficient, then let the punishment be increased, but not by an ex post facto law.

The punishment is unconstitutional

A right or power that is recognized in the Constitution can only be changed or taken away by amending the Constitution. The President's law does not seek to legally amend the Constitution, but to illegally take away the constitutional power of certain States to set nondiscriminatory voting qualifications.

Only 6 years ago, in the case of Lassiter v. Northhampton County Board of Elections, Justice Douglas and the Supreme Court ruled that, as in the previous case of Guinn v. United States, "A State may, consistently with the 14th and 17th amendments, apply a literacy test to all voters irrespective of race and color."

The Constitution still stands. It has not changed. But, the President's law proposes to punish the South by depriving the States of a power granted and upheld in the Constitution. Regardless of what the South has done, there is no way for the Congress to legally do what the President wishes. Yet, today, the Congress prepares to violate the Constitution by taking away the vital power to set voter qualifications from the States of the South.

A plea for commonsense

Commonsense cries out in vain: "Seek willing compliance and reconciliation; the Union is in danger." Does the Congress hear?

Instead, the mood of the Congress is one of punishment and divisiveness.

Can the President's law be changed into something more effective, more legal, and less punitive than it is?

Not by the suggestions so far offered, of "making the law stronger," and "broadening it," etc.

What this law needs applied to it is commonsense—not common politics.

It needs to be altered from a law to punish the South to a law to prevent future discrimination. This could be done by simply abandoning the use of references to the past, such as the November 1, 1964, date, and to the incidents of the past 10 years.

A new date of effectiveness could be set, such as 1965 or 1966, without even altering the formula that determines "discrimination." Thus, the ex post facto nature of the law would be removed, as well as its punitive aspects.

Instead of forbidding any use of literacy qualifications, the law could be made both constitutional and effective by simply allowing for Federal examiners to oversee the administration of State tests in cases where complaints are lodged charging discrimination.

If we are sincerely interested in effective, constitutional legislation to prevent discrimination, we will adopt such a course as outlined above.

If on the other hand, we persist in placing political expediency above the Constitution and commonsense, we are leaving to unborn generations of Americans the painful task of retracing our steps. In that case, we can only hope that they will have the courage and strength that we do not have—and that they will learn from our mistakes.

Liberty Lobby will support a constitutional nonpunitive Voting Rights Act that meets the following requirements:

(1) An act that becomes effective no sooner than January 1966. This will allow time for States to alter their voting requirements to conform with the act, and it will also allow time for insuring its effectiveness for the 1966 elections.

(2) An act that will prevent the use of discriminatory voting tests anywhere the Nation; not just in certain States.

(3) An act that will allow the use of truly objective literacy or educational standards wherever the people of a political subdivision or a State decide they are needed. The act could be written to require that such tests be in written, or "multiple-choice" form to insure objective grading standards, and should provide that the original test forms be maintained as public records open to inspection.

(4) The act could provide that any time the Attorney General felt there was a violation of the 15th amendment, he could (as in H.R. 6400) send Federal examiners to inspect the original test forms.

If the Federal examiner found that different standards of qualification had been applied to different applicants, he could then inform the Attorney General, who would file suit in a Federal court for immediate hearing on the case, and appropriate punishment for the officials involved could be meted out by the court.

Likewise, if any State or political subdivision failed to properly administer or maintain their records of voting tests, an immediate injunction could issue. One punishment that might be established would be a court order to a political subdivision to require immediate retesting of all its voters. Such provisions should be sufficient to insure against violation. The act would have teeth—but not fangs. It would accomplish what the President says he wants to accomplish, without violating the Constitution or commonsense.

INTERNATIONAL UNION, UNITED AUTOMOBILE, AEROSPACE & AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT WORKERS OF AMERICA—UAW,
Washington, D.C., April 6, 1965.

HON. JAMES O. EASTLAND,
Senate Judiciary Committee,
New Senate Office Building,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR EASTLAND: I am attaching a statement by UAW President Walter P. Reuther, on the pending voting rights legislation, which we request you include in the printed hearings of your committee on this legislation.

It is our understanding that Senator Phil Hart, of Michigan, has secured permission that statements by proponents of the voting rights bill may be included, and we are therefore making this request.

Sincerely yours,

ROY L. REUTHER,
Director, UAW Citizenship Department.

STATEMENT OF WALTER P. REUTHER, PRESIDENT, UNITED AUTOMOBILE WORKERS, AFL-CIO, PRESIDENT, INDUSTRIAL UNION DEPARTMENT, AFL-CIO

It is with mixed feelings of hope for the future and regret for the past that we express the support of the United Automobile Workers and the industrial union department for the pending administration legislation to give life to the 15th amendment to the Constitution. Today we have high hopes that at last the 15th amendment will become a reality for our millions of Negro fellow citizens too long denied their voting birthright. Our million and a half members of the UAW and our 6 million members of the industrial union department are proud that we have been and that we remain in the forefront of the movement to win equal justice under law for every American, regardless of his color, religion, or national origin.

But it is also with sorrow that we must acknowledge how long our great constitutional principles of liberty, equality, and suffrage for Negro Americans have been empty promises, which the American people have suffered to go by default generation after generation. The 15th amendment, enacted almost a century ago, states that Congress shall have "power to enforce" by appropriate legislation the guarantee that the right of citizens to vote "shall not be denied * * * on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude." It is a tragic irony of American history and politics that following the Civil War, Congress passed legislation to enforce the 15th amendment, but that after the Hayes-Tilden Compromise of 1876 which promised an end to Reconstruction, all the effective laws were repealed and the great emancipation amendments relegated to empty promises.

Nor can we find much cheer in the fact that three times within a decade—first in 1957, then in 1960, and again in 1964—Congress extensively examined voting discrimination against Negro Americans and enacted laws intended to secure, but inadequate to secure, 15th amendment rights. Nor was the Congress unaware of the scope of the power the administration now urges it to employ. It will be recalled that in 1960 such great champions of equal rights as Senators Humphrey, Hart, Javits, and others, fought unsuccessfully for congressional establishment of Federal registrars to achieve speedy and fair registration of the masses of Negro Americans in the South who were disfranchised then and remain disfranchised today.

We are now a century after emancipation and the freedom amendments to the Constitution and almost 200 years after the citizens of Boston established the great principle of the citizen-taxpayer's right to representation by officials of his own choosing—the first principle of a democratic society. The voting rights law now to be enacted must accordingly be so complete and effective that it will universally enforce the 15th amendment, and make its promise a reality for every citizen in next year's national elections. That is what the pending bill can and must achieve.

First and foremost, the bill provides for Federal registration officials to achieve the enrollment of disfranchised Negro citizens. Certainly, with great masses of Negro citizens still systematically denied the right to register and vote, and when the piecemeal processes of litigation have proved so slow and ineffective, expeditious registration by Federal officials has become a remedial necessity. After all, if an election is held and the citizen is denied the right to vote therein, he has lost that constitutional privilege forever when the polls close.

It is with the knowledge that delay means defeat for the Negro voter that southern officials have used every means to delay the registration of Negro citizens. When suits have been filed, State registrars have resigned for months and years to prevent enrolling Negro voters. In some cases they have opened the polls only briefly and sporadically, or indulged in slowdowns, with the result that Negro citizens have had to stand in line for days just to get into a registrar's office. Once in the office, they have been subjected to discriminatory registration standards, to loaded literacy tests, and to outright discrimination in the administration of registration requirements. Efforts to correct this situation in the courts have proved inadequate, because the defending officials have known that judicial delay in registration could mean defeat of registration. Thus in successive elections since 1957 the clear congressional intent of the 1957, 1960, and 1964 Civil Rights Acts has been defeated. Here, we submit, is the record that compels appointment of Federal officials who, employing legitimate State voter qualifications, will register voters for Federal, State, and local elections without further discrimination or delay.

The second great principle of the pending legislation is the abolition of literacy tests in States where they have been utilized as methods of discrimination to disfranchise Negro voters. Certainly, here too is a minimum measure necessary to enforce the 15th amendment. For the record is crystal clear that in certain Southern States, when it comes to voting rights, "literate" is a euphemism for "white," and "illiterate" means "colored." Moreover, it is a hollow irony that the very States which continue to deny the vote to Negroes on the literacy pretense, are the ones whose entire population is consistently shown to be the least literate among our 50 States, and that these are the very States which have denied their Negro citizens an adequate public education through a system of segregated and inferior public schools. Thus we have the white Mississippi legislature operating an inferior and illegally segregated public school system for Negro children, and then turning around and saying to these same wronged citizens, "You are not educated enough to decide who shall govern you." In short, "literacy" is used as the device for perpetuating white supremacy rule and defeating the guarantee of the 15th amendment.

S. 1564 is a good bill because it deals forthrightly with the problem of literacy and other tests and because it meets the need for a Federal registration system. It goes a long way toward the goals of the UAW and IUD. It goes a long way toward the goals so eloquently expressed by President Lyndon B. Johnson in his historic address to Congress on Monday, March 15. But it does not go the whole way. Good as the bill is, it very definitely needs strengthening.

The UAW and IUD are part of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. We subscribe wholeheartedly to the proposals of the Leadership Conference (presented by Roy Wilkins, chairman, on March 24) to strengthen the bill in at least the following respects:

"(1) The total elimination of the poll tax as a restriction on voting in State and local elections as well as in Federal elections.

"(2) The elimination of the requirement in the bill that a prospective registrant must first go before the State official to attempt to register before going to the Federal registrar or examiner. The prospective registrant ought not to be put to the delays, the hardships, and the indignity of attempting to satisfy hostile State officials before he can come to the Federal registrar.

"(3) Extended coverage of the registrar or examiner provisions of the bill, so that persons who have been wrongfully denied the right to vote, regardless of their geographical locations, will have the benefits of these provisions of the legislation.

"(4) Further and maximum protection of registrants and voters both those who will be registered under the bill and those already registered, and prospective registrants, from all economic and physical intimidation and coercion. In extending such protection, the Federal Government should use the full range of its powers, criminal, civil, and economic, to protect the citizens from the beginning of registration process until his vote has been cast and counted."

The prompt enactment of the pending legislation should achieve great and worthy national purposes. First, it will secure to millions of Negro citizens the equality of participation in the democratic process which is their constitutional liberty. Second, Negro suffrage in the South will serve to restore the moral fiber of the South and of the Nation, by ending the debasing political and social apartheid system. The power of the vote will help to replace the bitterly divided dual societies with a working alliance between the leadership of the responsible Negro and white communities—an alliance for the achievement of common understandings and solutions. Finally, the great image of America as the land of liberty and equality which has been so badly tarnished in recent years will be restored to its former position. At a time when the people in the underdeveloped nations are searching for the relevant social economic revolution to promote their human aspirations, it is vital that the Nation born in dedication to liberty and equal rights speak to them with a clear conscience. With the voice of a clear conscience restored, not Communist or totalitarian demagogues but those who point the way to the democratic ideal will provide the pattern for the peoples whose own Declarations of Independence are being written in the 20th century. Enactment of this legislation will thus be a vital symbol of our rededication to the great principles of liberty and equality, for which Americans have given their lives at Bunker Hill and Gettysburg, at Philadelphia, Miss., and on the road from Selma to Montgomery, Ala.

STATEMENT BY SIDNEY ZAGRI, LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL, INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD OF TEAMSTERS, CHAUFFERS, WAREHOUSEMEN, AND HELPERS OF AMERICA, ON S. 1564 AND RELATED BILLS

My name is Sidney Zagri, legislative counsel for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. On behalf of the General Executive Board and General President Hoffa, representing 1,780,000 members and their families, I wish to express appreciation for the courtesy extended me in being invited to appear on S. 1564 and other related bills.

Only 2 days ago accompanying me before the House Judiciary Committee we had 190 Teamster wives from Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas. Their presence was symbolic of DRIVE's (Democrat, Republican, Independent Voter Education—the political arm of the Teamsters Union) devotion to extending citizenship participation in the vital issues of our day and in the important business of electing our friends and defeating our enemies. They were there because of their deep conviction in the importance of extending voting rights guaranteed by the 14th and 15th amendments to all Americans. They were there, and asked me to express to the committee their strong feeling that the death of another Teamster wife, Mrs. Viola Gregg Liuzzo, who was slain near Montgomery, Ala., while engaged in transporting civil rights marchers back to Selma, shall not have been in vain.

Mrs. Liuzzo was also a member of DRIVE and was in Selma, Ala., because of her deep-seated dedication to the principle that all Americans irrespective of race, color, creed, or national origin should enjoy the same rights under the Constitution, that none should be deprived of any of these rights because of bias or discrimination.

There are certain facts which cannot be denied:

1. That large numbers of the citizens of the United States are denied the right to vote on account of their race or color.
2. That many State and local officials are determined to deny these rights.
3. That such denials are sometimes accomplished through violence, threats of violence, economic reprisals, and other forms of intimidation.
4. That in many areas of the United States the literacy test, interpretation test, tests of "moral character," are frequently abused so as to deny qualified citizens the right to vote on account of race, color, creed, or national origin.
5. That the delays incidental to granting the right to vote to citizens of the United States regardless of their race, color, or national origin under existing legislation have been excessively and unreasonably limited.
6. The existing process of law is incapable of overcoming systematic and ingenious discrimination; that the Civil Rights Acts of 1957, 1960, and 1963 have been ineffective in dealing with voter discrimination. The voter referee plan provided for in these three statutes has proven to be merely a paper advance for the Negro and not worth the paper the statutes were written on. In none of the cases brought under the statutes has a district judge exercised his option to appoint a referee. In only one of these cases has the judge consented to hear the application of Negroes. In addition to the one on whose complaint the Attorney General's suit was based, the remaining 22 suits brought where injunctions were imposed on local registrars no contempt citations were ever issued by the district courts for registrar noncompliance.

With all of these laws on the statute books, the Civil Rights Commission reports that in 100 southern counties selected for review in 1960 and again in 1963, the ratio of Negroes of voting age who are registered to Negroes of voting age has increased only about 8½ percent.

It is clear that discrimination is extensive, varied, and that existing laws are ineffective.

It is also clear that the legal remedy must be coextensive with the problem and that the means proposed be adequate to the task. Unless there is a comprehensive approach, the battle of civil rights will not be transferred from the streets to the legislative halls and the courts.

A piecemeal approach will result in more frustrations and will play into the hands of the extremists—the Ku Klux Klan, and the White Citizens Councils on the one hand and the Black Muslims on the other.

The brutality and violence of Selma will return another time and at another place. The martyrdom of Rev. James J. Reeb and Viola Gregg Liuzzo will be succeeded by new martyrs, and bloodshed will again become the order of the day under the dominance of the Klan and other leaders of the radical right.

The piecemeal approach of past voting rights bills has come back to haunt us and the passage of a similar bill now would have the same effect. The question has been asked: "What went wrong to trigger the violence in Selma? What can be done now to right this tragic situation?"

For these reasons, it becomes important to examine the administration bill and to strengthen those sections which offer less than a comprehensive solution to the manifold aspects of voter discrimination.

The essential prerequisites of an effective voting rights bill must include:

1. It must be national and not sectional in application.
2. It must have an automatic triggering mechanism and not rely upon the discretion of the Executive or the courts for initiating action.
3. It must eliminate all existing devices used to discriminate in denying voting rights.
4. It must protect the individual from economic and physical reprisals for exercising such rights.
5. It must remedy the wrongs of discrimination by setting aside elections and calling for new elections within a reasonable period after the registration or mechanism has been instituted.

The bill must be national and not regional or sectional in approach

The areas primarily affected by the administration bill consist of 6 Southern States and 84 counties in North Carolina.

In this week's issue of the New Republic, Alexander M. Bickel places the Reconstruction tag on the administration bill. He states: " * * * it is a Reconstruction measure, for it applies exclusively—with one or two incidental exceptions—to the hard-core Southern States and Black Belt counties * * *." Southerners will rightfully resent a bill which is aimed exclusively at them when discrimination in voting rights is a national and not a sectional problem. The experience with the Reconstruction era will be repeated when the South struck back with terror tactics of the Ku Klux Klan. The reform will be accepted more gracefully in all parts of the country if the approach is a national one.

The bill does not help the Negro or other minority groups in a State which does not have a literacy test. For example, in Newton County, Ark., 78 percent of the whites are registered, but not one Negro. The bill will not apply since Arkansas does not have a literacy test. Neither does Florida nor Tennessee have a literacy test, but 22 counties in Tennessee and 5 counties in Florida have less than 50 percent of the qualified voters registered or voting in the last election. The U.S. Civil Rights Commission has found extensive civil rights discrimination against the voting rights of Negroes in these two States.

In Texas, only 44.4 percent of the adult population voted in the last presidential election. Only 38 percent of the citizens of Mexican origin in that State go to the polls. There are some voting districts in Texas near the border of Mexico where there are what is known as boss-controlled machines, and the vote reported often is unanimous or nearly unanimous for the boss, candidate.

In New York City, the literacy test prevents large numbers of Spanish-speaking Puerto Ricans from voting.

The problem with the administration bill is to be found in the formula which triggers the voter registration mechanism. The requirement of a literacy test and 50 percent or less of the qualified voters not registering or voting is somewhat arbitrary and certainly results in a sectional approach. The mere existence of a literacy test is not necessarily an indication of discrimination. It exists in 11 States where more than 50 percent of the qualified voters are registered and voted in the last election. On the other hand, there are States where no literacy tests exist, as in the case of Texas, where only 44.4 percent of the qualified voters were registered and voted in the last election.

The 50-percent requirement does not directly reflect the status of discrimination of Negroes, since there are many counties where a sufficiently large number of whites registered and very few Negroes and yet the total number of eligible voters registered and/or voting will exceed 50 percent. Notable examples are to be found in the U.S. Civil Rights Commission's report on counties in Tennessee and Florida, as well as among Puerto Ricans in New York City, where widespread voting rights discrimination takes place but over 50 percent of the eligible voting population voted in the last election.

Recommendation: I recommend the adoption of section 3 of H.R. 4552 (the Lindsay bill) which provides the President would appoint Federal registrars, if the court makes a finding that 50 or more persons have been discriminated against in a given area and failed to act within 40 days. This approach triggers the mechanism without reference to the existence of either literacy tests or the 50-percent formula and yet requires the establishment of discrimination in at least 50 cases, which is a reasonable basis for the action prescribed.

The need for an automatic triggering device

Section 4(a) of H.R. 4600 provides that the Attorney General may request the Civil Service Commission to appoint examiners if "he believes such complaints to be meritorious" or that "in his judgment the appointment of examiners is otherwise necessary to enforce the guarantees of the 15th amendment * * *."

Without casting any reflection on any Attorney General past or present, I need not remind the Members of the Congress that the Attorney General has been the most powerful political appointee in the Cabinet, particularly during the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations. For this reason, the Congress should be wary of giving additional discretionary power to the Attorney General which could be used as a political instrument to perpetuate the party in power. It is conceivable that under section 4(a) the Federal registrars could be requested by the Attorney General only in areas where political advantages could be found and a refusal to exercise this power in areas where it would be politically disadvantageous. Since this power relates directly to voter registration and to voting, it is a power that must be jealously guarded and taken out of politics as much as possible.

Recommendation: Adoption of section 3 of H.R. 4552, which makes it mandatory upon the President to appoint Federal registrars if the court fails to act within 40 days and 50 persons have signed sworn complaints that they have been deprived of their right to vote.

Elimination of discrimination devices

In his memorable voting rights address to the Congress on March 15, President Johnson stated:

"Experience has clearly shown that the existing process of law cannot overcome systematic and ingenious discrimination. No law that we now have on the books—and I have helped to put three of them there—can insure the right to vote when local officials are determined to deny it."

Literacy tests and other discriminatory devices.—The thrust of the principal bills under consideration banning the discriminatory administration of literacy tests, interpretation tests, understanding tests, good moral character vouchers is not an interference with the States' right to enact responsible regulations covering State and local elections. Nor would a statute proscribing the poll tax in all State and local elections be an interference as it could be established that the poll tax was not primarily for the purpose of raising revenue but for the purpose of keeping people from voting. Then Congress would be within its power to act under the 15th amendment. The U.S. Civil Rights Commission's reports are abundant with documentations that support the premise that all of these tests and devices have been created for the sole purpose of barring Negroes and other minority groups from voting.

Recommendations:

1. In areas where a pattern of discrimination has been found, Federal registrars should be instructed (1) to conduct house-to-house registration; (2) with a flexible literacy test device to be applied as described above; (3) officials in such areas will be prohibited from closing registration books more than a month before an election or from refusing to accept any registrant who has satisfied all qualifications any time up to such a 30-day period.

In this connection, I would also recommend the establishment of voter education information centers which would undertake the affirmative responsibility of familiarizing those wishing to vote with registration forms and qualifications.

2. The Resnick bill provision repealing the poll tax in State and local elections should be adopted. The administration bill requiring the Federal Government to collect poll taxes for the States has the effect of giving Federal sanction to discriminatory poll tax laws in local elections which are inconsistent with the mandate of the 24th amendment to the Constitution.

Economic and physical reprisals to prevent exercise of voting rights

The U.S. Civil Rights Commission in its 1961 report documented the use of economic coercion as an instrument of intimidation to prevent Negroes from registering and voting. What is there in the administration bill to protect the "Negro tenant farmer and sharecropper in Fayette and Haywood Counties, Tenn., of being evicted from their farms and being subjected to other forms of reprisal including the cutting off of supplies, refusal of credit, and cancellation of insurance policies?"

How can the Negro sharecropper continue to exist, if the "white banker cuts off his credit"? In Fayette County, Tenn., one white banker was quoted as saying, "My secretary's got the names of 324 who registered. I tell them, anybody on that list, no need coming into this bank. He'll get no crop loans here. Every store has got that list."

As bad as the problem of economic intimidation may be at the present time, it will get much worse as reaction among the leaders of the existing power structure of the South begin to feel the full impact of any of the key bills before the Congress.

On March 25, 1965, Governor Johnson, of Mississippi, told the press that President Johnson's statement on voting rights provoked nausea and that he would not call a special session of the State legislature until such time as a voter rights bill had been enacted by the Congress. As the automated cotton economy makes more and more people dependent upon the large landowners, different forms of economic coercion will develop. For example, licensing laws could be enacted for the purposes of licensing farmhands who in turn could have their licenses revoked if they were to exercise their voting registration rights under the law.

Recommendations:

1. Criminal sanctions will not be enforced in southern courts and by southern juries. Therefore, cease-and-desist orders comparable to those presently employed by the National Labor Relations Board should be issued by a Federal Voter Registration Commission, as suggested by the Resnick bill, which could be enforced by Federal courts under contempt proceedings, if necessary.

2. Any person engaged in denial of voting rights would be declared to be ineligible to participate in any of the Federal programs presently available to business and to farmers.

Setting aside elections and calling for new elections within reasonable period after the registration mechanism has been instituted

The administration bill simply provides that any qualified voter who has been denied the right to vote shall have his vote counted. The administration bill does not undo the damage caused by discrimination by requiring that the newly qualified votes be counted. Under the Taft-Hartley law, the National Labor Relations Board requires that, where intimidation or coercion is established in connection with a NLRB election, the election will be set aside to purge the coercive effect of the intimidation on all eligible voters.

Recommendation: I suggest that the provision of the Lindsay bill setting aside elections because of discrimination be adopted and that new elections be called within a reasonable period after the voter registration mechanism has been put into motion.

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY,
March 31, 1965.

HON. JAMES O. EASTLAND,
Chairman, Senate Committee on the Judiciary,

DEAR JIM: I enclose a copy of a statement which was issued as a news release by Mr. Albert P. Gallinghouse, registrar of voters for the Parish of Orleans, La.

This statement, I understand, has appeared in the New Orleans newspapers, and Mr. Gallinghouse has requested that I send it to you to be included in the record of the hearings on the voting rights bill. I would appreciate your doing this, if possible.

With kindest personal regards and best wishes, I am,

Sincerely,

ALLEN J. ELLENDER, U.S. Senator.

(By A. P. Gallinghouse, registrar of voters, Orleans Parish, La.)

MARCH 22, 1965.

In a statement released today, Orleans Parish Registrar of Voters A. P. Tim Gallinghouse said that he has now had an opportunity to analyze the provisions of President Johnson's alleged voting rights legislation:

"As a lawyer, never have I read a proposal embodying such an unconstitutional delegation of authority and power as is found in this bill. This move by the national administration ignores the most basic and fundamental constitutional principles recognized and respected in this country since its founding by our forefathers.

"The Federal Government under the Constitution can only exercise those powers specifically delegated to it by the Constitution. Certainly, it was intended by the architects of the Constitution that those articles pertaining to delegated and reserved powers, and more specifically article I, section 2, give the States, and only the States, the right to prescribe the qualifications for voting.

"There is only one way in which Congress can legally take this authority from the States, and that is by constitutional amendment.

"I believe, and so does the great majority of the people of Louisiana, that every qualified citizen should be able to vote, regardless of race, color, or creed. We cannot, however, condone Congress giving, by statute, to the executive department of our Federal Government, at the insistence of the President, the power to determine who should register and vote in all local, State, and Federal elections.

"This is a brazen grab for political power by the Federal Government to satisfy those who would promise to deliver millions of controlled votes in return for favors granted.

"I think it most important to point out that as the Federal Government grows larger and stronger, the citizen grows smaller and weaker. This is a Government of law, not of men.

"It has been said that power corrupts, and that absolute power corrupts absolutely. How applicable we find these words at this time.

"Less the full impact of this legislation escape the people of the New Orleans area, I wish to emphasize its more important provisions. Needless to say, the objectives of this bill are both vindictive and discriminatory. The irony of the President's action is that in his efforts to prevent alleged discrimination in voting, he is sponsoring legislation that in itself is patently discriminatory.

"It is obvious to me, a sit should be to everyone, that this bill was drafted most carefully so that it would apply only to certain States and political subdivisions. It is more than mere coincidence that the affected areas to a great degree in the November general election voted against the President. The States that supported and voted for the President are exempt or excluded from the application of this bill.

"Under section 3 of the bill the criteria for determining the States and political subdivisions to be affected are that there must be less than 50 percent of the adult population registered or that less than 50 percent of the adult population voted in the November general election.

"Under section 3 the U.S. Attorney General has the sole power to determine if a test or device was used by a State or political subdivision on November 1, 1964, as a qualification for voting. This provision is one example, among others, showing what unlimited authority, power, and discretion the Attorney General has in this bill.

"Section 3 further prohibits the use of any test that determines the qualifications of an applicant for registration, including the ability to read and write, and good moral character.

"This prohibition is in direct conflict with article 1, section 2, of the Constitution that authorizes the States to determine voter qualifications. Moreover, it violates requirements in the Louisiana constitution.

"Should this legislation be approved, in my judgment there is a strong possibility of 50,000 illiterates being put on the registration rolls in Orleans Parish alone. I do not wish to reflect on these people; however, it would be impossible for them to vote without assistance. They could not read the names of candidates on the voting machine, nor could they understand the important election issues that require the concentration of even the most intelligent and well-informed voters. More importantly these illiterates would be subject to pressures, influence, coercion, and intimidation from those who customarily vote as a block. Instead of improving our electorate and public officials, we would be turning back the clock 50 to 100 years.

"These provisions are all in violation of our Louisiana constitution, which, much to the everlasting credit of our lawmakers, requires good moral character of applicants for registration.

"The Federal registrars put the names of registrants on a list of persons eligible to vote. The names are submitted to local officials at least 45 days before election day.

"Federal registrars may strike registrants if they have been properly challenged, but this, in my opinion, will never happen.

"Registrants under section 5 (those registered by Federal registrars) can be removed by the Federal registrars if they do not vote during the 3-year period. This is also in conflict with our State law in Louisiana since under our permanent registration procedure in Orleans Parish, we must cite a voter if he has not voted during a 2-year period.

"Under section 5 there is also a proviso that were the effect of this legislation not so tragic, I would most certainly find it humorous. As we all know, the poll tax is at this time being used in Texas. We in Louisiana abolished such a tax years ago because we thought it unfair. Even though there has been a clamor in the Halls of Congress against discrimination and the use of the poll tax as a requirement for voting, the President's bill makes it possible to continue the poll tax. The voter need only to pay it to a Federal registrar before election day in affected States. Texas, the President's home State, would not be involved in any way.

"Under section 8 no new State or local laws on voting procedures different than those in effect on November 1, 1964, may be passed without the approval of the three-judge Federal court in the District of Columbia. This section in effect gives a Federal court the authority to set voting requirements within a State, a clear violation of the Constitution. There is no question in my mind, nor should there be in the mind of anyone else, that this legislation is unconstitutional, unfair, vindictive, and discriminatory.

"This proposal abrogates the inherent constitutional rights of the States to enact, regulate and supervise their voting and election laws. Further, the bill does not apply to 44 States, many of which have literacy tests. Who is to protect the citizens of these States from discrimination? Heaven help us if this legislation passes, but if it does, then it should apply to all 50 States. Could it be that the President could not muster enough support if he made the law applicable to all States?

"Also, in section 3 is the limited avenue of escape for any State or political subdivision to avoid being included within the scope of this bill. This section permits an application to a three-judge Federal court in the District of Columbia to exclude a State or political subdivision if the law is not applicable to it. The burden of proof is, therefore, placed upon the local officials to show that they are not engaged in discriminatory practices. Incredible as it might seem, the Justice Department would no longer have to prove discrimination, and local officials would be presumed guilty until proved innocent.

"Since local officials must file their request with a Federal court in the District of Columbia, it is obvious that the Federal Government does not feel that a Federal court in the affected areas will reach a decision favorable to its interest. Moreover, there are more stumbling blocks and added inconvenience for local officials to litigate in a court as far removed as one in the District of Columbia.

"Under section 4 the U.S. Attorney General has the unlimited power, authority, and discretion to decide when Federal registrars will be required.

"Twenty or more residents of a political subdivision falling under the law may complain that they have been denied the right to vote because of their color. The Attorney General decides on his own whether the complaint has merit. There is no court hearing, no testimony, and no opportunity for the local officials to be heard. The Attorney General also has the authority to ask for Federal registrars under any other conditions where he, and he alone, deems it necessary.

"Under section 5 the Federal registrars may register any applicant who has not been qualified by local registrars within 90 days prior thereto. The applicant has only to establish his age, residence, sanity, and lack of felony conviction.

"In other words, it is not required that he be able to read and write. He may have committed numerous misdemeanors that require jail sentences and otherwise have compiled an impressive criminal record. There would be no requirement of good moral character. A male applicant could acknowledge or a female applicant could give birth to countless illegitimate children. They would be registered under the provisions of this bill. Common law marriage, which is prohibited under Louisiana law, would not be a bar to registration.

"It cannot be repeated too often that under existing State law and under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 any citizen who feels that he is being denied the privilege of voting because of his color has a right to go into court and obtain relief. In fact, the Justice Department will file suit in his behalf. There are adequate remedies on the statute books, making this legislation unnecessary.

"I urge every citizen who reads these comments to wire or write your Congressmen and Senators. Tell them we believe in all of our citizens having the privilege of voting if they are qualified by standards established by our State that are fair, impartial, and nondiscriminatory.

"Now is the time for courage. The future of constitutional Government in the United States hangs in the balance. Shall we permit our Government to submit to mob action, or shall we return to the democratic processes we have practiced and revered for many years? You have a right to demand strong and vocal opposition by your Representatives in Washington. Insist that they stand up and be counted. Anything less will indicate that they are part and parcel of this unconstitutional cove by the Federal Government based upon political expediency and the desire of the politicians to perpetuate themselves in office."

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 26, 1965.

STATEMENT TO THE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

There are submitted herewith in support of a bill to enforce the 15th amendment to the Constitution of the United States, petitions containing nearly 1,000 signatures of citizens and voters from all parts of the State of California. These petitions evidence the concern of all Californians, from the cow counties adjacent to Oregon, to the deserts adjoining Mexico, that all Americans should enjoy, without hindrance or discrimination because of race or color, the right to vote which was thought to have been guaranteed to them almost 100 years ago by the ratification of the 15th amendment.

The signatures represented here were gathered through the auspices of the Marin Democratic Assembly at the 18th Annual Convention of the California Democratic Council held in Sacramento, March 19, 20, and 21. The issue before Congress and the Nation, however, is utterly nonpartisan, and certainly is not confined to one State or region. Those of us from Marin County, Calif., who collected these signatures, were moved to do so by the tragic yet helpful events of recent weeks and months. We were moved to do so in order to join and support our many friends and neighbors who left their homes and livelihoods:

- (1) Carpenters who contributed their time, energy, and skills to rebuild burned and bombed churches and freedom schools;
- (2) Attorneys who amassed more than 600 depositions in Mississippi alone, proving beyond doubt the enormity of the deprivation of constitutional rights in general and the right to vote in particular, in that State;
- (3) Clergymen and others who have joined their countrymen from all over the Nation to show their commitment, on the streets and highways of Alabama, to the cause of equal and certain voting rights for all.

As the President said a week ago Wednesday, the time for justice has come, and it will not be denied.

The signers of these petitions urge the Congress, with all possible speed, to enact as submitted, the voting rights bill of 1965.

Respectfully submitted.

THOMAS A. SKORNIA,

Mr. Joseph A. Davis
 Chief Clerk
 Senate Judiciary Committee
 Senate Office Building
 Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Davis:

Attached is a copy of the testimony presented to the House Judiciary Committee by Mr. Roy Wilkins.

On behalf of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights I am requesting that the attached testimony be inserted in the hearing record on S. 1517. As we have previously indicated in a letter to the chairman of the committee, it was our hope that Mr. Roy Wilkins, Chairman of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights and Mr. Joseph Rauh, Counsel, would be heard. However, in view of the fact that the hearings are closing and we have no wish to cause delay on this important legislation, we are asking that the testimony that we prepared to the House be inserted in lieu of an appearance by Mr. Wilkins and Mr. Rauh.

Also attached are suggested amendments. We prepared these at the request of members of the House Judiciary Subcommittee No. 5. These amendments are designed to cover the four points presented on page 2 of Mr. Wilkins' testimony. You will also note that at the conclusion of the amendments there is a statement indicating that we have other technical suggestions which we believe could be worked into the legislation in informal conference.

Sincerely yours,

Clarence Mitchell
 Director
 Washington Bureau

Statement of Roy Wilkins, Executive Director, NAACP and Chairman of the LCCR, before House Subcommittee No. 5, on H.R. 400, March 24, 1965, 10 a.m.

Mr. Chairman and members of the Subcommittee, I am Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and chairman of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. The Leadership Conference is a cooperative group of 90 organizations united for freedom and justice in our country. Accompanying me is Mr. Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., who is counsel for the Leadership Conference.

We are here today because the best efforts of sincere men and women have not yet eradicated the blight of racial discrimination in voting. President Lyndon B. Johnson is in the forefront of those who recognize that this discrimination in voting still exists as was evidenced by his magnificent speech and pledge of March 15. Our organizations deeply appreciate the leadership of the President on this matter. Influential Republican spokesmen in both Houses and among the leaders of the party outside the Congress have likewise urged strong and sweeping legislation to correct this discrimination. Also several Republicans have introduced their own bills and a number of others have joined in bi-partisan sponsorship of the Administration bill.

The history of the struggle for the right to participate in Federal, state and local elections goes back to the period of Reconstruction. Some of the impediments imposed by state legislatures have been removed by court action on the part of the Federal Government and private organizations such as that which I have the honor to serve as Director. Examples are the grandfather clause, Guinn v. U. S. 232 U. S. 347 (1915); the white primary, Nixon v. Herndon 273 U. S. 536 (1927); Nixon v. Condon, 286 U. S. 73 (1932); Smith v. Allwright 321 U. S. 649 (1944); and the racially exclusive pre-primary party caucus Terry v. Adams 345 U. S. 461 (1953).

In 1957, the Congress passed a statute which gave the Attorney General the power to institute civil actions on behalf of those who were deprived of the right to vote. At that time the men and women of good will assumed that the right to vote would be safe in the hands of the Federal judiciary. In some measure this was not a vain hope. Because of this statute, the courts struck down voting discrimination in Georgia, U. S. v. Raines, 362 U. S. 17 Terrell Co., Georgia (1960); Alabama, U. S. v. Alabama, 192 Fed. Supp. 677, Macon Co., Alabama (1961); and Tennessee, U. S. v. Beatty, 288 F.2d 655, Fayette Co., Tennessee (1961). On March 8, 1965, the Supreme Court in U. S. v. Mississippi, 33 U.S.L.W. 4258 and Louisiana v. U. S., 33 U.S.L.W. 4262, made further inroads against voting discrimination in Louisiana and Mississippi. Yet, it is clear that the legal technicalities, the slow pace of court decisions and in some instances complete judicial hostility have combined to restrict the participation of voters in national, state and local elections.

In 1960 Congress strengthened the 1957 voting rights law. Only last year Congress tried again to make the 1957 law more effective. All three laws put together have not done the job of making the Fifteenth Amendment a living document. In too many areas of the Nation, Negroes are still being registered one by one and only after long litigation. We must transform this retail litigation method of registration into a wholesale administration procedure registering all who seek to exercise their democratic birthright. The time is long overdue to sweep the last vestiges of voting restrictions into the sea.

BEST AVAILABLE COPY

The nation has paid a great price for these restrictions. It has paid the price of getting into office public officials who are not responsive to the will of all the people. It has paid the price of mayhem, riots and murder because those who sought the right to vote were opposed by those who were willing to suppress rights with violence themselves or at least stand by while others perpetrated unspeakable crimes against American citizens. It is the hope of those who constitute the Leadership Conference that this time, by placing the executive branch of the Federal Government in a position to expedite registration and voting, we will have a formula for ending this long standing evil.

The Administration bill introduced by the distinguished chairman of the Committee, Congressman Celler, is a good bill. It goes further than any other bill ever introduced on this subject and obviously it is an effort to correct disfranchisement on a wide scale. However, in our opinion, the bill is not enough. More is needed if it is to do the whole job. The Leadership Conference on Civil Rights strongly urges Congress to strengthen this bill in at least the following four respects:

- 1) The total elimination of the poll tax as a restriction on voting in state and local elections as well as in federal elections.
- 2) The elimination of the requirement in the bill that a prospective registrant must first go before the state official to attempt to register before going to the Federal registrar or examiner. The prospective registrant ought not to be put to the delays, the hardships, and the indignity of attempting to satisfy hostile state officials before he can come to the Federal registrar.
- 3) Extended coverage of the registrar or examiner provisions of the bill, so that persons who have been wrongfully denied the right to vote, regardless of their geographical location, will have the benefits of these provisions of the legislation.
- 4) Further and maximum protection of registrants and voters both those who will be registered under the bill and those already registered, and prospective registrants, from all economic and physical intimidation and coercion. In extending such protection, the Federal Government should use the full range of its powers, criminal, civil and economic, to protect the citizens from the beginning of registration process until his vote has been cast and counted.

I would like to make special reference to the poll tax because this is complicated by developments in recent years. Our organization has traditionally insisted that the poll tax should be eliminated by the statute. Others have argued that it should be ended by constitutional amendment. Those who favored the constitutional amendment approach prevailed. Although we did not favor this method we made a good faith attempt to see that the 24th Amendment was ratified by the states of the union. It is a sad commentary on the vision of those who control the states that they have grudgingly acceded to the requirements of the constitutional amendment by continuing to charge a poll tax in state and local elections. Here we see the ultimate in absurdity. It is possible to vote for a Presidential candidate in Virginia without paying a poll tax but, if one is to vote for a member of the state legislature or alderman in a separate election, he must pay a poll tax.

The practice in Mississippi illustrates more strikingly how the poll tax payments can be manipulated to deter voting by Negro citizens and poor people generally. Dr. Aaron Henry, president of our Mississippi State Conference of branches who lives in Clarksdale, uses the following language to describe the process:

"The poll tax is a great deterrent to voting in Mississippi. It must be paid on or before the first day of February in the year that one intends to vote. A voter must pay the tax for two years before he can vote. You cannot pay back taxes. During the month of January we are at our peak in unemployment. This is the most likely time of the year not to have the $3 necessary to pay the poll tax in Coahoma County (in many counties the tax is $2 but in Coahoma County it is $3). Our experience here in Coahoma County is that one cannot pay taxes for another except in the immediate family. A man may pay the poll tax for his wife or she for him but not for one not living in your household."

Historically, the poll tax is clearly a device used for attempting to prevent Negroes from voting. There are those who have constitutional reservations and for this purpose, Mr. Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., who serves as counsel for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, is prepared to present views. We urge that the Congress approach this matter with the intention of doing the whole job at last.

The President has set an outstanding example by his appeal to the nation on March 15, but the legislation must match the boldness of the President if we are to come to grips with this problem.

We have reviewed quickly here the recent attempts at corrective legislative action. It is apparent to all that the 1957, 1960 laws and Title I of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, while good efforts, did not by any means reach the heart of the problem. We now know the extent of the evil and our experience at attempts to enforce legislation for the past seven years have made clear the ingenious evasions which must be rooted out. We, therefore, urge that the pending Administration bill be strengthened to such a degree that it will not be necessary in the next two years or four years or seven years to come back and add another patch in an effort to guarantee the basic American right to vote and to live under a government by consent of the governed.

Attached is a list of the cooperating organizations in the Leadership Conference. It is compelling evidence of the broad support for voting legislation that although our organizations had only three days in which to consider the views I have expressed and many of them had to call emergency meetings of their boards in order to obtain authorization to add their names, more than 70 signified their endorsement. At least three other organizations not in the Conference have asked that their names be added, as their way of indicating their deep concern for swift passage of a strong and effective bill.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE ON CIVIL RIGHTS
To H.R. 6400

I

- (1) Leadership Conference testimony March 24, 1965 urged:
- "1) The total elimination of the poll tax as a restriction on voting in state and local elections as well as in federal elections."
- (11) Suggested language for proposed amendment:
- "On line 6, page 6, delete all of Sec. 5(e) and on line 13, page 11, insert a new section as follows: 'Sec. 12. No state or political subdivision shall deny or deprive any person of the right to register or to vote because of his failure to pay a poll tax or any other tax or payment as a pre-condition of registration or voting.' Renumber Sections 12 and 13."
- (111) This amendment would have the effect of abolishing the poll tax in Mississippi, Alabama, Virginia and Texas (Arkansas has already passed a constitutional amendment authorizing the abolition of the poll tax and an implementing statute is expected promptly).

II

APPLYING DIRECTLY TO FEDERAL EXAMINER

- (1) Leadership Conference testimony on March 24, 1965 urged:

"2) The elimination of the requirement in the bill that a prospective registrant must first go before the state official to attempt to register before going to the Federal registrar or examiner. The prospective registrant ought not to be put to the delays, the hardships, and the indignity of attempting to satisfy hostile state officials before he can come to the Federal Registrar."

- (11) Suggested language for proposed amendment:

"On line 19, page 4, change the comma after the word 'vote' to a period and delete the remainder of Sec. 5.(a)."

- (111) This amendment would have the effect of permitting an applicant for registration to go directly to the Federal examiner without first having to try out the state authorities.

III

EXPANDED COVERAGE

- (1) Leadership Conference testimony on March 24, 1965 urged:

"3) Extended coverage of the registrar or examiner provisions of the bill, so that persons who have been wrongfully denied the right to vote, regardless of their geographical location, will have the benefits of these provisions of the legislation."

(11) Suggested language for proposed amendments:

"On line 19, page 3, after the word 'residents' insert '(1)' and on line 20, page 3, after the words 'section 3(a)' insert the following: 'or (1) of a political subdivision with respect to which the Director of the Census has certified to the Attorney General that the number of persons of any race or color who were registered to vote on November 1, 1964 was less than 25 percent of the number of all persons of such race or color of voting age residing in such subdivision,'"

"On line 15, page 4, insert a new subsection as follows: '(c) Whenever the Attorney General receives complaints in writing from twenty or more residents of a political subdivision not covered by the provisions of section 4 (a), alleging that they have been denied the right to vote under color of law by reason or race or color and he believes such complaints to be meritorious, the Attorney General shall appoint a hearing officer to hold a hearing and determine whether there exists in such political subdivision a pattern or practice of denial of the right to vote on account of race or color. Whenever the Attorney General certifies that a hearing officer has determined that such a pattern or practice does exist in such political subdivision, the Civil Service Commission shall appoint examiners for such subdivision in accordance with section 4(a). The determination of the hearing officer shall be reviewable in a three-judge district court convened in the District of Columbia in an action for declaratory judgment against the United States by the affected political subdivision or by one or more of the twenty residents making the original complaint. The findings of the hearing officer if supported by substantial evidence shall be conclusive. There shall be no stay of any action of the examiners appointed by the Civil Service Commission unless and until the said three-judge district court shall determine that the findings of the hearing officer are not supported by substantial evidence,"

- (111) These amendments would have the effect of broadening the coverage of HR 6400, While leaving intact the excellent automatic provisions of the Administration bill covering Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia, Virginia, South Carolina and 34 counties of North Carolina, they would provide for examiners in other political subdivisions if

(1) less than 25 percent of a racial group were registered on November 1, 1965 and twenty residents complained to the Attorney General that they had been denied the right to vote, or

(2) twenty residents in any subdivision complained to the Attorney General that they had been denied the right to vote and a hearing officer found, after hearing, that there is a pattern or practice of discrimination in such subdivision.

IV

PREVENTING INTIMIDATION

- (1) Leadership Conference testimony March 24, 1965 urged:

"4) Further and maximum protection of registrants and voters both those who will be registered under the bill and those already registered, and prospective registrants, from all economic and physical intimidation and coercion. In extending such protection, the Federal Government should use the full range of its powers, criminal, civil and economic, to protect the citizen from the beginning of registration process until his vote has been cast and counted."

(11) Suggested language for proposed amendments:

"On line 16, page 7 delete the entire Section 7, and substitute the following:

'Sec. 7 No person, whether acting under color of law or otherwise, shall fail or refuse to permit a person to vote whose name appears on a list transmitted in accordance with section 5 (b), or is otherwise qualified to vote, or fail or refuse to count such person's vote, or intimidate, threaten or coerce any person for registering or attempting to register, or assisting one registering or attempting to register, or for voting or attempting to vote under the authority of this Act or otherwise."

"On line 14, page 10, insert a new subsection as follows:

'(g) Whoever shall deprive or attempt to deprive any person of any right secured by section 2 or 3 or who shall violate section 7 shall be subject to a civil penalty in the amount of $500 for each act of deprivation, or violation, or attempt. Such penalty shall be collected on behalf of the affected individual by a civil action, brought by the United States in the district court for the district in which such act, violation, or attempt occurs or in the district in which the person responsible for such act, violation, or attempt is found. In any action brought hereunder involving any person acting under color or law who is in the employment of any state or political subdivision, said state or political subdivision shall be jointly liable and shall be made a party."

"On line 14, page 8, add the following at the end thereof: 'If the life of any person is placed in jeopardy, he shall be fined not more than $20,000 or imprisoned not more than twenty years, or both.'"

"On line 2, page 9, add the following at the end thereof: 'If the life of any person is placed in jeopardy, he shall be fined not more than $20,000 or imprisoned not more than twenty years, or both.'"

"On line 14, page 10, insert a new subsection as follows:*

'(g) Whenever an examiner has been appointed under this Act for any political subdivision, the Attorney General may assign representatives of the Department of Justice, including agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and United States Marshals, to observe any registration of voters, the conduct of any election, and the tabulation of votes at any election in such political subdivision. Such representatives shall be entitled to enter and to remain in any registration or voting place, or place where votes are tabulated. No person shall interfere with or refuse to admit to any such registration, or voting or tabulation place any representative of the Department of Justice. Any person who shall violate this provision shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both. In addition, the Attorney General may institute for the United States, or in the name of the United States, an action for preventive relief, including an application for a permanent or temporary injunction, restraining order or other order, enjoining violations of this subsection.'"

* If the earlier suggestion of a civil penalty is adopted as subsection (g), this would, of course, become subsection (h).

- (111) These amendments would have the effect of broadening the prohibition on intimidation to cover all registrants and voters, provide for a $500 civil penalty for victims of acts of intimidation, increase penalties for violations of the Act where life is placed in jeopardy, and provide for F.B.I. agents and U.S. Marshals to observe registration, voting and counting.

The above constitute the substantive amendments agreed upon by the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights to strengthen the bill. A number of language and technical suggestions are being made to the Justice Department and we would appreciate an opportunity to discuss these suggestions with Committee counsel.

ANSWER TO INTERROGATORY NUMBER 11(a) AS TO THE ENTIRE FACTUAL BASIS ON WHICH THE UNITED STATES MAKES THE ASSERTION CONTAINED IN PARAGRAPH 31 OF THE COMPLAINT THAT PUBLIC EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES PROVIDED FOR NEGROES WERE AND ARE INFERIOR TO THOSE PROVIDED FOR WHITE PERSONS

The factual basis of the allegation that public education facilities provided for Negroes in Mississippi were and are inferior to those provided for white persons is as follows:

A. SINCE AT LEAST 1890 ALL PUBLIC ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS IN MISSISSIPPI HAVE BEEN SEGREGATED BY RACE AND UNTIL OCTOBER 1, 1962, ALL PUBLIC SCHOOLS IN MISSISSIPPI HAD BEEN SEGREGATED BY RACE.

Mississippi Constitution, Article 4, section 207.

On October 1, 1962, James Meredith, a Negro student, was admitted to the University of Mississippi Undergraduate School by Court order. He graduated on August 18, 1963. On June 6, 1963, Cleve McDowell, a Negro student, was admitted to the Law School of the University of Mississippi. All other public educational institutions in Mississippi are segregated at the present time.

B. SINCE AT LEAST 1890 THERE HAVE BEEN MORE NEGRO CHILDREN THAN WHITE CHILDREN OF SCHOOL AGE IN MISSISSIPPI.

28/ The biennial report of the State Superintendent of Public Education in Mississippi for 1909-11 cited a number of advantages for consolidation including:

- (1) If the teacher is only responsible for one or at the most two grades, it is easier to secure a good teacher with professional training than in a one-room country school.
- (2) The economy of the consolidated school makes a longer school term possible.
- (3) Pupils are more interested in school and therefore attend more frequently and remain in school and go on to high school.
- (4) The entire curriculum can be enriched.
- (5) The school building will be much superior.
- (6) "Consolidation offers the bases for the solution of more of the rural school problems than anything that has yet been offered. It is the only way of securing really good country schools. It is the only school that proposes to educate the country boy throughout high school without disturbing his home relations or taking him out of it".

- B. THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI HAS ALWAYS RECOGNIZED THAT THE PUBLIC EDUCATION PROVIDED FOR NEGROES HAS BEEN INFERIOR TO THAT PROVIDED FOR WHITES.

1. Officers of the State Government have recognized that the public educational facilities provided for Negroes were inferior to those provided for whites.

- a. Governor Vardaman (1907).

Here is what I promised to do. I said if you elect me Governor and elect a legislature in sympathy with me that I would submit to the people of Mississippi an amendment to the State Constitution which would control the distribution of a public school fund so as to stop the useless expenditure in the black counties.

Let's see whether I kept my promise. In my inaugural address, I devoted the greater part of it to that. The only time I ever got a chance to urge against Negro education as I wanted to without impairing the white schools was when a legislature passed a bill providing money to that Negro school in Holly Springs which was sent to me signed by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House. Did I sign it? No. I killed the bill and I killed the school. . . . 53/

- b. Governor Wright (1950).

We face a serious problem in the matter of providing comparable educational opportunities for the two races in our State. As a matter of fact, this problem is composed of several phases. One of them deals with salary adjustments. A plan was proposed and submitted to the teachers this past summer. They voted it down. It is now necessary to prepare another plan, and I understand that a great amount of study has been given to this by the members of the Mississippi Education Association, the Association of County Superintendents, and the State Department of Education. Proposals will be submitted to the Legislature in due time embracing the principles subscribed to by these groups.

Another phase of this problem deals with transportation, and another with building facilities. In fact, in order to accomplish some of the objectives to which our attention and efforts must be directed, we may have to reshape our plans and reform our thinking in order that all of the children of all of the people may have the opportunity to develop their abilities to the maximum.

I recommend that legislation be enacted providing for the equalization of teachers' salaries based upon qualifications, and removing any discrimination as between the races.

Second, I urge that a program be enacted providing for equal facilities between the races recognizing that children of both races are entitled to equal opportunities, but I will insist, as I believe the thinking people of both races in the State would insist, that this program provide for segregated educational facilities. 54/

c. Governor White (1953).

It is true that there is a wide variation in educational opportunities between the races. 55/

2. Every two years the State Superintendent of Public Education in Mississippi reports to the Mississippi legislature. Every such report transmitted to the legislature has shown that the public education provided for Negroes has been inferior to that provided for whites.

Following are excerpts from some of these biennial reports:

In many counties, particularly in rural areas, negro children are forced to attend school in mere shacks or in church houses... 56/

Consolidation has done away with practically all of the one and two-teacher schools. In fact, this year there are less than ten percent of the white children of the rural districts attending these old type schools. The other ninety percent have the advantage of modern high schools, in many of which, not only the college preparatory course is given but also work in vocational agriculture, home economics and business training. . . .

B-0-7 Biennial Report 1929-31, p. 11.

83 percent of all colored children enrolled in school were in open country rural schools, the great majority of which were of the one and two teacher type so common in Mississippi in both races prior to 1910. 57/

98.3 percent of all children in schools for the colored race were in grades one to eight inclusive, and 1.7 percent in grades nine to twelve. The great majority of colored children never get beyond the sixth grade.

B-0-8 Twenty Years Progress, p. 130.

It was reported that a factor in the disturbance of the state per capita fund which creates and magnifies inequality in financial support is:

The fact that we spend less money in Mississippi per child in the schools for the negro race than in the schools for the white race. The ratio between the amount per child for the white race and for the negro race among the counties ranges from two to one in some counties to more than ten to one in other counties. In counties with large negro population and small white population the state per capita fund provides a larger part of the actual school expenditures than in counties with large white population and small negro population. . . . Consequently, inequalities from state sources are magnified by the per capita school census basis for disbursement.

In spite of the fact that about fifty-four percent of the total educable population of the state is negroes, there is only one higher institution of learning maintained by state support. This is Alcorn College at Alcorn, Mississippi. Some of the best trained teachers in colored schools come from this institution, but obviously it is far and away from meeting the needs of the state in the business of training an adequate supply of teachers.

✓ J-8 Twenty Years' Progress, p. 24.

The quality of work done in the school room by the majority of negro teachers would not rank very high when measured by any acceptable minimum known to the leaders in educational thought. There is a growing sentiment among the white people and the negroes in Mississippi favorable to improvement in school plants, in the training of negro teachers which will guarantee a better quality of work in the schoolrooms for the negro race.

B-0-8 Twenty Years' Progress, p. 90.

The [Negro] teaching force, numbering 5,863 teachers has an average of 50 enrolled pupils each. This average situation is rarely ever found, for teachers in the lower grades frequently have in their charge from seventy-five to one hundred and fifty pupils. In a great many cases these teachers are forced to teach double sessions each day - one group in the forenoon and a totally different group in the afternoon. . . . Of the 3,753 Negro schoolhouses in Mississippi, 2,313 are owned by public school authorities. The other 1,440 schools are conducted in churches, lodges, old stores, tenant houses, or whatever building is available. Last winter, with the aid of the CWA, a considerable number of the best buildings were repaired. Up to the present time there has been only one PWA Negro school project. It is a farm shop building at the Hopewell School in Covington County. One of the great difficulties in getting Federal aid for these buildings is the lack of local funds for meeting the requirements of the government. The Negroes themselves, in some cases, are building and repairing their schoolhouses out of their own meager savings and with their own labor.

School buildings need to be erected to displace the many little shanties and churches now being used. . . .

E-O-10 Biennial Report 1933-35, p. 41.

There is also dire need for school furniture and teaching materials - comfortable seating facilities, stoves, blackboards, erasers, crayon, supplementary reading materials, maps, flash cards, and charts.

In many of the 3,763 colored schools of the State there is not a decent specimen of anyone of the above mentioned items. In hundreds of rural schools there are just four blank, unpainted walls, a few old rickety benches, an old stove propped up on brickbats, and two or three boards nailed together and painted black for a blackboard. In many cases, this constitutes the sum total of the furniture and teaching equipment.

E-O-10 Biennial Report 1933-35, p. 41.

High school advantages for Negroes in Mississippi are very meager. Ninety-four percent of the educable Negro population of high school age is not in school. . . . There are twenty-eight counties in Mississippi which do not have any recognized high school facilities for Negroes. Fifteen counties make absolutely no provision whatever for high school training of Negro children. Of the fifty-four recognized four-year high schools for Negroes, fifteen are privately owned and supported. . . . Only eighteen Negro high schools in Mississippi have been given any recognition by the State High School Accrediting Association. Three Negro high schools are accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. . . .

Of course, everyone knows that there is a long distance to go yet before an adequate system for the training of the colored youth of the state can be provided; yet it should be said that there is more interest in this question and that definite progress is now being made. . . .

The most urgent need in the field of Negro education is for trained teachers. Without trained teachers, any worthwhile educational program is impossible. The facilities for training teachers, both public and private, now available are wholly inadequate. . . .

E-O-11 Biennial Report 1935-37, p. 15.

Of course, everyone knows that there is a long distance to go yet before an adequate system for the training of the colored youth of the state can be provided; yet, it should be said that there is more interest in this question and that definite progress is now being made.

E-O-12 Biennial Report 1937-39, p. 18.

Negro Salaries At the beginning of the biennium, the State Board of Education set up a salary schedule of $28 per month for a six months term, or a total of $170.00 per year per teacher. In some counties, however, the salaries have averaged less than this amount. It is obvious that the salary problem is one of our real problems in the colored schools in Mississippi. Teachers cannot live on this small salary and maintain any sort of decent standard of living. Many teachers have dependants, and the small salaries and short terms make it compulsory that they earn a part of their living by engaging in some other type of work, usually farming or domestic service. As a consequence, many of our best teachers have gone into other sections of the country or into other lines of work where remuneration is more liberal.

B-0-12 Biennial Report 1937-39, p. 16.

... 99.7% of the white children had the opportunity to attend eight months the past session. . . .

During the past biennium improvement was made in the length of school terms for [Negro] rural schools. In most of the counties the term ran for six months, but in a few counties the term was four or five months. The term in separate districts was eight or nine months. In an effort to maintain longer school terms in rural areas, colored patrons frequently provide funds from their own meager resources for this purpose.

B-0-12 Biennial Report 1937-39, pp. 9, 16.

It is felt very definitely that the Negro schools in Mississippi are now on the upgrade. Of course, everyone knows there is a long distance to go yet before an adequate system for the training of the Negro youth of the state can be provided; yet, it should be said that there is more interest in this question and that definite progress is now being made.

B-0-13 Biennial Report 1939-41, p. 18.

There are 3,737 Negro schools in Mississippi. Of this number approximately 1,500 are housed in churches, tenant houses, or any other type of building available. One of the most pressing needs in Mississippi today is provision either by the state, by the county, or by both, of funds to revamp Negro schoolhouses. A few counties have put on county levies for this purpose; but this has been a very slow process. Schoolhouses need not be elaborate, but they should at least be sanitary, comfortable and adequate.

B-0-15 Biennial Report 1943-45, pp. 21-22.

There are 3,345 Negro public schools in Mississippi. Nearly half of these schools are housed in churches, tenant houses, or any other type of building available. In such schools the equipment is nil. . . .
 B-O-16 Biennial Report 1945-47, p. 41.

In view of the present sociological conditions, race relations are extremely good in Mississippi. This is true largely because of mutual cooperation and understanding between the races in their attempt to equalize educational facilities. The building program is progressing very well in most counties; however, classroom needs in many cases have been underestimated. Consequently space that has been provided for libraries and auditoriums is being used for classrooms. In many districts, the necessary amount of teaching materials and equipment is not being placed in the new buildings. Therefore, many of the new schools will not be able to meet the standards of the Mississippi Accrediting Commission. In order for good relationships to continue between the races, the people of Mississippi, both white and Negro, must work toward getting all communities to meet the responsibility of truly equalizing facilities. . . . The fact that public schools for Negroes have been poor in the past also has a direct bearing on the quality of instruction being done. . . .
 B-O-21 Biennial Report 1955-57, pp. 40, 41.

Recommendations

The most important immediate needs in regard to Negro education are as follows:

Continued work toward equal facilities. In view of the present sociological conditions, race relations are extremely good in Mississippi. This is true largely because of mutual cooperation and understanding between the races in their attempt to equalize educational facilities. The building program is progressing very well in most counties; however, classroom needs, in many cases, have been underestimated. Consequently, space that has been provided for libraries and auditoriums is being used for classrooms. In many districts, the necessary amount of teaching materials and equipment is not being placed in the new buildings; therefore, many of the new schools will not be able to meet the standards of the Mississippi Accrediting Commission. In order for good relationships to continue between the races, the people of Mississippi, both white and Negro, must work toward getting all communities to meet the responsibility of truly equalizing facilities.

Graduate training for teachers. The principals' training program at Jackson State College is the only graduate work available to Negro school people in Mississippi, and this program is limited to a small number of principals and supervisors. In order for Negro teachers to further their education beyond the bachelor's degree, it is necessary for them to leave the State.

Since there is such a great demand on the part of Negro teachers for advanced college work, it seems particularly desirable that graduate training for principals, elementary and high school teachers be provided by Mississippi Negro institutions. Considering the large number of Negro teachers desiring graduate training and the wholesome influence of such training on the schools of Mississippi, it is highly probable that this training could be provided on a more economical basis than adequate out-of-state tuition. Certainly, the quality and type of training provided by our own state institutions would more nearly meet the needs of Mississippi schools. Of course, out-of-state tuition will continue to be necessary for those students desiring to study in fields other than the teaching profession.

Negro person to work with Negro elementary schools.

Since the Southern Education Foundation is no longer financially able to contribute to the support of a special consultant in Negro elementary education, a Negro person who is well qualified in elementary education and who has demonstrated his ability to work with both white and Negro people should be employed by the State as an assistant to the coordinator of Negro education. Such a person is needed because: (1) There is a great need for additional state leadership in Negro elementary education, (2) Many elementary teachers are not fully qualified and need guidance and direction, (3) Better interpretation of Negro elementary school needs can be effected through the work and advice of a well-qualified Negro person, (4) The employment of such a person will do much to instill confidence between the races, (5) A good Negro person can work effectively with Negro elementary teachers because of mutual understandings.

Local supervision of classroom teaching.

For approximately 50 years the Southern Education Foundation has contributed financially to the support of supervision in the Negro schools of the South. Through the years the Foundation has gradually withdrawn its support from this program. At present, the various counties receive very little assistance. If this important service is to be continued, it will be necessary for the State to assume a greater financial responsibility for its support. The need for supervision in instruction is obvious when it is realized that only sixty-three per cent of the Negro teachers in Mississippi hold an "A" class teachers' certificate. The fact that public schools for Negroes have been poor in the past also has a direct bearing on the quality of instruction being done. If the state of Mississippi is to receive just value in return for money expended for teachers' salaries, supervision of instruction is a necessity.

I strongly recommend that sufficient funds be budgeted during the next biennium to allow equal amounts to be allocated according to the density formulas for Negro and white transportation. Our best estimates indicate that approximately $1,200,000 annually would be needed to close the gap that now exists between white and Negro allocations.

E-O-23 Biennial Report 1959-61, p. 23.

There was also a serious shortage of textbooks in some of the Negro schools.

E-O-23 Biennial Report 1959-61, p. 138.

There is also a critical need for a State Supervisor of Elementary Education for Negro Schools.

E-O-23 Biennial Report 1959-61, p. 155.

3. Special studies of education in Mississippi have been authorized at various times by the Mississippi Legislature, by the State Superintendent of Public Schools and by other public educational authorities in Mississippi. These studies have shown that the education provided for Negroes is inferior to that provided for whites in Mississippi.

Following are excerpts from some of these studies:

The buildings are usually poorly planned. Often churches are used for school purposes and are not adapted to instructional needs. In many instances the buildings are not well kept. . . .

In most of the rural schools, the desks are poor, not adjusted to the children, often double and perhaps in one-half the cases no desks at all. Usually in churches the benches are used for seats. . . .

The blackboards are entirely inadequate, often painted boards and in many cases oil cloth stretched along the walls are the makeshifts for blackboards. Most frequently, the amount of blackboard space is entirely inadequate. Usually, there are no erasers. It is hard to imagine how any work at all can be done under such conditions.

E-O-37 A Report of the Committee of Investigation of the Teacher Training Facilities for Negroes in Mississippi, Bulletin No. 61 (1930) State of Mississippi Department of Education, p. 12.

In view of the fact that only approximately thirty-two four-year high schools for Negroes, half of which number are privately maintained, are to be found in the entire state of Mississippi, it naturally follows that the actual need for college buildings is not extensive. . . .

E-O-37 A Report of the Committee of Investigation of the Teacher Training Facilities for Negroes in Mississippi, Bulletin No. 61 (1930) State of Mississippi Department of Education, p. 29.

Although the State has made noticeable strides during the past decade in the education of its Negro citizens on all levels, the goal of equality is still very distant. Action is already under way to hasten progress . . .

The quantity and quality of higher education is so inextricably bound to that on the lower level, particularly the secondary level, that it is not possible to consider inequalities in higher education at the exclusion of others. Opportunities for the Negro youth to get the basic secondary school training necessary for college admission have been considerably less than for the white youth of the State.

E-O-46 Higher Education in Mississippi; A Survey Report to the Board of Trustees, Institutions of Higher Learning (1954), John E. Brewton, Director, p. 146.

Even greater inequalities exist in the area of higher education. . . . The State provides, through the University of Mississippi and other state colleges, ample opportunities for white students to pursue graduate and professional study; but the Negro student has been compelled to go outside the State for this service. . . . These inequalities in opportunities contribute to the scarcity of Negroes in the professions.

E-O-46 Higher Education in Mississippi; A Survey Report to the Board of Trustees, Institutions of Higher Learning (1954), John E. Brewton, Director, pp. 146, 149.

Curricular offerings in areas considered to be urgent for national defense have not kept pace with such demands in the Mississippi high schools for Negroes. Less than five per cent of the high schools offered courses in modern foreign languages. Areas of critical shortage in the teaching personnel were modern languages, speech, physics, and chemistry. The situation is more acute due to the fact that opportunities for training teachers in such fields are limited at the undergraduate level and totally unavailable to the teaching force within the state at the graduate level.

E-O-41 Public Education in Mississippi; Report of Mississippi Legislative Education Study Committee December, 1961, p. 118.

Findings in this study indicate that higher education for Negroes in Mississippi is handicapped by restricted budgets and curricular offerings. Major emphasis in the past has been concerned with serving the needs of rural Mississippi. The schools now face the problems of expanding their programs to include more course offerings for pre-professional and professional students. . . .

E-O-41 Public Education in Mississippi; Report of Mississippi Legislative Education Study Committee December, 1961, p. 121.

Enrollments in both [Negro] junior and senior colleges have grown steadily over the past ten year period. Although budgets for higher education are still inadequate, they, too, have shown steadily increases; however, the increases have not been sufficient to cope with the increasing enrollment and expanding curricular offerings, and higher cost of living.

E-O-41 Public Education in Mississippi: Report of Mississippi Legislative Education Study Committee December, 1961, p. 122.

The Legislature and the Board should give considerable emphasis to providing Jackson, Alcorn, and Mississippi Vocational College with the funds and assistance needed to qualify them for full membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Colleges presently admitting Negro students are in a difficult position, since the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has discontinued the separate accrediting of colleges admitting only Negro students, and is applying its regular standards to such colleges.

E-O-41 Public Education in Mississippi: Report of Mississippi Legislative Education Study Committee December, 1961, p. 102.

. . . With the exception of the work toward a Master's degree for principals and supervisors at Jackson State College, no graduate work is at present available to Negro students within the state. This is a severe unmet need, which cannot be satisfied even by building another institution. The costs would be overwhelming, and the difficulties of gathering a satisfactory faculty almost insuperable.

SPECIAL SCHOOL SURVEYS

In 1949 a study was made of the educational provisions for Negro children in Sunflower County. In the same year a study was made of education in both the white and Negro schools of the Holly Springs Separate School District, Holly Springs, Mississippi. Following are excerpts from these studies.

THE EDUCATION OF NEGROES IN SUNFLOWER COUNTY

Introduction

In February 1949, an inter-racial Citizens Committee was formed in Sunflower County to investigate the education of Negro children in that county. The Citizens Committee selected the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, to conduct the study. The results of the study were published by that Bureau in March 1950 under the title, The Report of a Study of the Education for Negroes in Sunflower County, Mississippi (Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi: March 1950).

This report began by discussing a similar study conducted in Sunflower County in 1936-37, which had recommended, among other things, that 81 out of 105 Negro schools in the county be abandoned and had stated:

This recommendation is made in the light of the following facts: the colored schools of Sunflower County as they now exist, are in deplorable condition; the schools that are now being used are not owned by the County Board of Education; many of the schools that the Committee recommends to be retained are in need of repairs; there is a decided lack of equipment in the schools; and finally this program will enable the County to give to its colored population the needed facilities for carrying on a worthwhile educational program. Ray L. Hamon and Ullin W. Leavell, Sunflower County Survey 1936-37. (A typewritten report), p. 62, quoted in the 1950 Report at pp. 8-9.

This was 1936-37. In 1950, the Bureau of Educational Research said:

It is evident as far as the educational facilities for Negroes is concerned, that practically none of the recommendations made in the 1936-37 survey have been followed.
1950 Report, p. 9.

The Bureau studied all phases of Negro education in Sunflower County and made recommendations for its improvement.

The Instructional Program

Elementary Schools. With such a large proportion of the schools being one and two teacher schools, being inadequately housed and poorly equipped, running short terms with poor attendance during a large part of the time, having a large pupil-per-teacher ratio, and having inadequately trained and poorly paid teachers - the instructional program would naturally be inadequate. . . 1950 Report, p. 10.

High Schools. High school education is, at present, available only to a rather small proportion of Negro boys and girls of Sunflower County. . . . In the high schools, as in the elementary schools, progress is handicapped by inadequate housing, insufficient instructional materials, supplies, and equipment, large classes, poor attendance, and other factors mentioned earlier in this report. Furthermore, good high school education is built on the foundation of good elementary education. 1950 Report, p. 22.

Pupils in the Schools

Of the 7709 Negro children enrolled [in December 1949], the following facts seem of real significance: 32 per cent in grade 1; 70 per cent in grades 1-4; 86 per cent in grades 1-6; 2 per cent in grades 10-12. Obviously with a grade distribution indicated above . . . most Negro boys and girls in Sunflower County are not securing a very extensive education. 1950 Report, p. 39.

The Bureau gave a sampling of Sunflower Negro children the Metropolitan Achievement Test. This test was chosen because nationwide norms had been established for both white and Negro pupils.

The Bureau stated that the children tested were "under severe handicaps".

. . . In very few instances were there enough desks. Most of the children were obliged to sit on benches and work closely together at a table. Thus, it was impossible to prevent copying. In some instances, pupils sat on the floor and did their work. . . 1950 Report, p. 44.

According to the Bureau, the tests showed:

. . . On the average, the Negro children tested in grades 3-8 were two whole grades behind the white norms. This statement seems even more dismal when it is known that these Negro children who were two grades behind also are two years, three months older than the children on whom the norms were established. . . . It will be noted that compared with the Negro norms the pupils tested scored only one grade two months below the Negro norms. Still they were one year seven months older than the Negroes on whom the norm was based. This is a pretty bad picture. 1950 Report, pp. 50, 53.

The Bureau points out that the Negro norm was established on the basis of other Negro children in the south (p. 42) and that each successively higher grade tended to show a greater gap between the educational attainments of the Negro children, of Sunflower County, tested and the norms. (p. 56)

Negro Teachers in Sunflower County

Unprepared teachers tend to teach as they were taught. If half of the teachers in Sunflower County who had completed the twelfth grade or less, attended schools as inadequate as are the Sunflower County Schools for Negroes, then we have a vicious cycle. In this cycle children are taught in poor schools by poorly prepared teachers; these children in turn become teachers, unprepared as they are, for other children.

It is the opinion of this study staff that, by and large the schools for Negroes in Sunflower County are not good schools. Under the conditions described above the schools for Negroes will never be good schools. 1950 Report, pp. 58, 60.

The kind of teachers a school system may secure depends to a large extent on the amount of salaries they receive. . . . Salaries for Negro teachers in Sunflower County and in the State of Mississippi generally, are miserably low. . . . 1950 Report, p. 66.

Negro School Plant and Plan for Improvement

The Bureau pointed out that Negro children in Sunflower County are attending school in 94 different places. They recommend that these small school units be abandoned and that "a good modern school program should be started for the Negroes of Sunflower County". (p. 79 They recommend the establishment of eight elementary centers and two high school centers. (p. 79)

The Bureau points out that this could be done without financial loss.

From the point of view that the school plant is an educational tool, the present holdings of Sunflower schools present a dreary spectacle. Over-crowded classrooms are a definite handicap to instruction in the finest and best equipped schools. When the buildings are below acceptable standards and equipment is inferior in quality and in quantity, every phase of a sound educational program fails to function.

In one respect, at least, Sunflower County may be fortunate. Since with the exception of three situations in the separate school districts, there is little capital investment and since, in these three, there is only a limited amount, the county is in the position to develop a school plant which is not tied to present structures. Most of the present school plants may be abandoned or sold without undue financial loss. . .
1950 Report, p. 89.

Financing Negro Schools

In the past, expenditures for schools for Negroes in Sunflower County have been woefully low. This has been true also for most of the counties and separate school districts in Mississippi. There are several reasons for the low expenditures for Negro education. Most of these reasons have their origin in the period when many white people thought that a Negro should not be educated. Today, the white people in Mississippi who see the immediate need for the education of Negroes find themselves tied down by laws and traditions to such an extent that progress can be made only by unceasing and tremendous effort.
1950 Report, p. 101.

As was stated before, half of the state disbursements for school purposes are made on a per capita basis. Nothing in the law states that this money must be spent for the schools of either race according to the number of educable children. However, since the state pays the money on a per child basis, it at least may be inferred that the state money should be spent on the child who was responsible for the payment.

In Sunflower County schools, as well as many other school districts in Mississippi, this is not the case. The amount of money received by the county from the state because of the Negroes exceeds the amount spent for "instruction" of the Negroes. . .
1950 Report, p. 126-127.

. . . in 1939-40 the county received from the state $6.96 per enrolled Negro pupil but spent only $4.26. The per capita amount received in each of the following ten years was, in every year, more than the per capita expenditure.
1950 Report, p. 134-135.

. . . Sunflower County in 1939-40 received $73,626 per capita fund. Since 79 per cent of the educables at that time were Negro, $88.165 was the amount received on the basis of the Negro children. However, only $35,564 was spent for "instruction" for the Negro children. Evidently $22,601 of this amount was expended elsewhere - probably on the schools for the whites. In the last two years the difference in the amount received and the amount [not spent for Negro children] is more than twice the $22,601 figure.
1950 Report, pp. 126-127.

(B-12-1 Survey published in March 1950 by the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, under the direction of Dr. John E. Phay)

INTRODUCTION

In 1949 a study of the Holly Springs Separate School District was made at the request of the Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools of that district. This study was made by the School Study Staff of the School of Education, University of Mississippi under the direction of Dr. John E. Phay.

Negro Elementary School

It is difficult to write anything about the curriculum of this school. The program is so limited, the physical conditions are so inadequate, the pupils per teacher load is so heavy, the materials of instruction are so meager, being limited to a few almost worn-out textbooks and a few materials that the teachers have gathered together, that any attempt to describe the program becomes lost in the mass of needs of this large group of boys and girls. (p. 17)

Negro High School

The high school provides classes through the tenth grade only. The principal carries on classes in arithmetic, english, social studies, general science, and perhaps some other subjects. The conditions under which he and the boys and girls work are abominable. He teaches his classes in one corner of an assembly hall while the rest of the room is full of very small children. There are practically no materials and supplies with which to work except a few almost worn-out textbooks. (p. 19)

Teachers' Salaries

The present salaries in Holly Springs white schools range from $1760 to $1980 for classroom teachers with the average being $1823. (p. 49)

The current salary scale for the Negro teachers in, the Holly Springs School District has a range from $420 for one . . . teacher. . . to $880 which is paid to six teachers . . . The average salary paid Negro teachers, exclusive of the salary of the principal in the Holly Springs District is $ 550. (p. 60)

Negro School Buildings

Except for the Rosenwald school, all Negro schools are housed in one room frame buildings. Except for a rather questionable shelter from the weather, they interfere with, rather than aid, the teaching and the learning process. Water supply is usually far removed from the building and the unsanitary water bucket is always evident. Toilets are either wooden shacks, or the adjacent woods. Natural lighting is usually poor, no artificial light is available. Equipment is not worthy of the name. . . (p. 68)

Per Capita Cost

. . . In 1948-49. . . there was budgeted $107.37 for each white boy and girl. This compares with $45.00 spent per child in 1940-41. . . The per capita cost for the education of Negro boys and girls in Holly Springs is exceedingly low. . . the cost in 1940-41 was $5.95 per enrolled pupil. The cost increased each year until the budgeted amount for 1948-49 was $17.96 each. . . (p. 87)

(E-18-1 The Report of a Study of The Holly Springs Separate School District by Dr. John E. Phay, Director of School Study Staff, School of Education University of Mississippi 1949.)

4. The surveys of schools in Mississippi required by the Legislature of the State of Mississippi and the State Educational Finance Commission conducted in the mid-1930's show that the education provided for Negroes has been inferior to that provided for whites.

The special session of the Mississippi legislature convened in 1953 passed a law requiring each county and separate school district to have a survey of the educational facilities in that county made for the purpose of equalizing all schools in the district. All presently existing districts were abolished and each district was required to have a plan prepared for its reorganization prior to July 1, 1957. At this session of the legislature, the State Educational Finance Commission was also created as an organization to insure and provide substantial equality of educational opportunities through the maintenance of a uniform system of free public schools. The Commission was also charged with the responsibility of bringing about desirable consolidation or reconsolidation of school districts in Mississippi.

The Commission established criteria for school district reorganization as guides to county boards of education and to school district trustees in carrying out the purpose of the legislative acts of this session. One of the requirements was that a survey of each county and school district had to be prepared by one of the institutions of higher learning of the State of Mississippi, the State Department of Mississippi, or a survey agency approved by the Finance Commission.

Among the agencies approved by the State Educational Finance Commission for making school surveys in the State of Mississippi for this purpose were the following:

Dr. John E. Phay, Director
Bureau of Educational Research
University of Mississippi University, Mississippi

Dr. Ralph S. Owings
Head and Professor of Educational Administration
Mississippi Southern College
Hattiesburg, Mississippi. 58/

The following are excerpts from the survey reports prepared by the above two agencies for submission to the Educational Finance Commission:

58/ B-O-47 Report of the State Educational Finance Commission June 1, 1954-June 30, 1955, Department Reports State of Mississippi, Vol. I, 1953-1955

NOTE: All direct quotes from reports are single spaced or in quotation marks.

ADAMS COUNTY AND CITY OF NATCHEZSchool Plant

Adams County has 30 schools for negroes outside the city of Natchez. Of the 30, 9 are housed in churches, 11 in school buildings, 8 in society halls and the remainder in combinations of buildings. The site is publicly owned in only three instances. . . . The condition of the buildings that house the negro children in the county outside Natchez is one that needs immediate attention. There are only two buildings that are considered adequate or future use as schools. . . . (p. 77)

Enrollment and Average Daily Attendance

In 1954-55 the Adams County school enrollment was 844 for white schools and 1,368 for Negro schools. The average attendance was 807 for white students and 1,227 for Negro students. There were 129 white high school students and no Negro high school students.

School enrollment figures for the city of Natchez show that the total enrollment was 2,774 for whites and 2,014 for Negroes. The average attendance was 2,599 in the white schools and 1,814 in the Negro schools. There were 661 white and 451 Negro high school students in the city of Natchez in 1954-55. (pp. 15,17,19,21,33,35, and 36)

Two of the three white schools in Adams County outside Natchez are consolidated schools. The condition of one building is rated "good"; the other two, "poor". (p. 70) Of the six white school buildings in Natchez Separate District, two are rated "excellent"; three, "fair"; and one, "good".

One of the three Negro school buildings is rated "fair"; one, "good"; and one, "excellent". (p. 113) About the building rated "good", the report said: "The lights in the basement are totally inadequate. . . . Adequate bulletin boards are lacking in this building.

Chalk boards are in bad condition and require attention . . ." (p. 114)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

The pupils per teacher ratio in white schools in Adams County is 25-1 (p. 132); in Negro schools, 34-1 (p. 136). The ratio in white schools in Natchez is 26-1 (p. 138), in Negro schools, 29-1 (p. 140).

Expenditures

The per capita amount spent for each white child in average daily attendance in Adams County was $340.26 per pupil for a nine-month term (p. 135); for each Negro child for an eight-month term, $110.92. "When this figure is contrasted with the cost of the program for whites, it shows that more than twice as much is being spent for whites". (p. 137)

Instructional Program

. . . [In the Negro elementary schools in Adams County] you find the conventional program offered. In grades 7 and 8 the program is very weak and inadequate, all the children spending a major portion of their time just sitting because the teacher has to spread her time over so many grades. These boys and girls are not getting a program of education that appears to be of too much consequence. The program offered to the Negroes is very mediocre. The listing of the offerings would not reveal anything that would prove valuable. Only the dearth of the program would be obvious. (p. 137)

The Natchez city schools are to be commended on the fact that they provide kindergartens for their negroes as well as whites. It is one of the few school systems in the state of Mississippi that provide this type of education for negro boys and girls. . . . (p. 140)

Expenditures

In Natchez, the per capita spent for each white child in average daily attendance is $176.94; for each Negro child, $134.57. "This indicates that Natchez is making an effort to equalize the program of negroes and whites". (p. 141)

AMITE COUNTYEnrollment and Average Attendance

In 1955-56 the total enrollment for white schools was 1,940. During the same year there were 3,978 children enrolled in the Negro schools of Amite County. The average attendance was 1,794 for white schools and 2,594 for Negro schools. (pp. 11-32)

School Plant

The school buildings in Amite County range from excellent to unsatisfactory. Some should no longer be utilized for school purposes. The buildings for Negroes are most inadequate and in a deplorable condition. . . . (p. 41)

There are 7 white school buildings - all publicly owned. Two are rated "poor"; one, "excellent to poor"; one, "good to satisfactory"; one, "poor to unsatisfactory". (p. 43)

There are 32 schools for Negroes in Amite County. Without exception they are in extremely poor condition... These schools are in such deplorable condition that it seems a waste of time to discuss each school plant in detail. . . . (p. 54)

Only 3 of the 32 Negro schools are publicly owned. (p. 54)

It is recommended that 13 be abandoned. (p. 55)

School Busses

. . . Amite County maintains 34 busses for white pupils and 21 for Negro pupils. . . All but 4 of the white busses are either 1954 or 1955 models. Only 4 of the Negro busses range from 1952 to 1954 models, while the balance range from 1951 models, down to 1946 models. Older model busses (1946-1949) make it difficult to maintain safe and economic operation. . . The largest percentage of the busses serving white pupils make only one trip daily. Table 19 shows most of the Negro busses making two trips, with one Negro bus making 3 trips. (p. 69)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

Eighty-nine white teachers are employed with a pupil-teacher ratio of 21.9. "This ratio is much below the state average of 30 plus". (p. 82) Eighty Negro teachers are employed with a pupil teacher ratio of 37.2.

"This ratio is much higher than that of the white schools. Compared with the State of Mississippi which has a 30 plus ratio it is also high". (p. 91)

Expenditures

There is a dearth of teaching materials and equipment in all the Negro schools. There is a shortage of chalk boards, bulletin boards, reading material, charts, maps, and library books. (p. 91)

The budget for 1954-55 was made on the basis of average daily attendance of 1,991 white children at $182.36 per child for 8 months. The budget for 2,423 Negro children was made at the rate of $85.68 per child in average daily attendance for 8 months. This shows that approximately twice as much is spent for each white child as for each Negro child in Amite County. This fact should be given careful consideration. (p. 97)

(E-46-1 Survey published in 1956 by the Department of Educational Administration, Mississippi Southern College, under the direction of Dr. Ralph S. Owings, Head of the Department of Educational Administration.)

BENTON COUNTY

Enrollment and Average Daily Attendance

In January 1956, there were 1,018 white and 1,054 Negro students enrolled. Nine hundred and fifty-nine white and 710 Negro students were in average daily attendance. (pp. 23, 32)

Elementary Schools

. . . It should be noted that in the quality and quantity of housing, in the availability of instructional materials, and in general environment, the Negro elementary schools are far below those of the white schools. (p. 37)

School Plant

The report indicated that 12 of the 13 Negro attendance centers are obsolete. The high school portion of the thirteenth is obsolete. (p. 46)

Expenditures

The per pupil cost for white schools was $162 for Hickory Flat and $184 for Ashland. The per pupil cost for the Negro schools was $98. (pp. 50-51)

(E-14-1 Survey, published in June 1956 by the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, under the direction of Dr. John E. Phay)

CLAIBORNE COUNTY AND CITY OF PORT GIBSONPupil-Teacher Ratio

The pupil teacher ratio for the white children of Claiborne County is 21 per teacher and for the Port Gibson schools 26 per teacher; whereas, the ratio of Negro pupils per teacher for the county is 33 and for Port Gibson, 40.

Expenditures

The county operates white schools for nine months and the negro schools for eight months. The budget for white children in the county is $436.40 per child in average daily attendance; whereas, the budget for the negroes is only $100.39, and is for eight months, showing that four times as much is being spent for each white child as for each negro child in average daily attendance, and in addition, he is given an extra month. . . .

Port Gibson operates both the white and negro schools for nine months. No school should be run for less than nine months. Port Gibson budgeted on a basis of $160.02 per white child in average daily attendance, and $82.25 per negro child in average daily attendance or approximately 50 per cent less for the Negroes . . . (p. 102)

CLAY COUNTY AND CITY OF WEST POINTAverage Daily Attendance

In 1954-55 the average daily attendance in the schools of Clay County was 1,810 for white students and 2,297 for Negro students. (pp. 20, 30)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

The total number of teachers for the city of West Point and Clay County was 72 for the white schools and 82 for the Negro schools. (pp. 22, 31)

Elementary Schools

. . . It should be noted that both in the quality and quantity of housing, in the availability of instructional materials and in general environment, the Negro elementary schools are below those of the white schools in their neighborhood. (p. 43)

School Plant

Two of the twenty-five Negro school buildings are rated "fair", the other twenty-three "obsolete". (pp. 56-60)
Four of the seven white school buildings are rated "good", the other three "fair". (p. 52)

Expenditures

The per capita expenditure at different white schools in the county and West Point ranges from $218 to $145. The County expenditure per Negro pupil is $91; West Point spends $105. (p. 64)

(E-29-1 Survey published in May 1956 by the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, under the direction of Dr. John B. Phay.)

COVINGTON COUNTYPupil-Teacher Ratio

The white pupil-teacher ratio is 25.3-1; the Negro, 35.1-1. (pp. 70,78)

Expenditures

The budget for the year 1954-55 reveals that Covington County budgeted for an average daily attendance of 2,383 white children at a cost of $154.53 per child. Compared to this figure is the budget for the average daily attendance of 1,219 Negro children at a cost of $122.46 per child. This budget is prepared for eight months for both white and Negro. This means that about 25 per cent more is being spent per white child than per Negro child. (p. 82)

(E-67-1 Survey published in 1956 by the Department of Educational Administration, Mississippi Southern College, under the direction of Dr. Ralph S. Owings.)

FORREST COUNTY AND CITY OF HATTIESBURGExpenditures and General Description

According to the budget for 2,948 white children and 1,809 negro children in average daily attendance for the 1954-55 year, Hattiesburg has been attempting to equalize the expenditure per pupil in average daily attendance. The budget calls for an expenditure of $165.00 per white child and $110.00 per negro child. Hattiesburg operates both the negro and white schools for nine months, which indicates that effort is being made toward bringing the negro schools to the same level as to kind and type of schools as the white. However, the negro schools are overcrowded to an extent greater than the white schools. Also, the facilities in the negro schools are not comparable to the whites.

In 1954-55, Forrest County budgeted $159.91 per child for 2,727 white children in average daily attendance and $130.00 per child for 1,036 negro children. Here again is evidence that there is an attempt to improve the situation of the negro child and bring it in line with the white. Unfortunately, however, the negro schools in the county do not run for nine months. All of them run for eight months only. Some of the white schools run for only eight months, but others run for nine. All schools should run a minimum of nine months, both white and negro. (pp. 167-168)

FRANKLIN COUNTYExpenditures

The proposed budget for 1954-55 indicates that Franklin County budgeted for 1,392 white children in average daily attendance for eight months at a cost of $175.62 per child. It also budgeted for 898 Negroes in average daily attendance for eight months at a cost of $110.28 per child. Franklin County is spending a little better than 50 per cent more on its white children than it is on its Negroes. (p. 74)

GEORGE COUNTYSchool Plant

The school buildings in the county cover a wide range from poor to excellent. Some of the buildings are poorly adapted to educational needs. The Negro buildings are most inadequate and in a deplorable condition. . . (p. 39) It is quite evident from examination of the pictures of the schools that the Negro situation is pathetic. . . (p. 35)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

The white pupils per teacher ratio is 30.5-1; the Negro, 36.9-1. (pp. 68,76)

Expenditures

The budget for 1954-55 was made on the basis of average daily attendance of 2,472 white children at $158.78 per child for eight months. The budget for 353 Negro children was made at the rate of $106.75 per child in average daily attendance for eight months. This shows that approximately 50 per cent more is being spent on each white child than on each Negro child in George County. This fact should be given careful consideration. (p. 78)

GREENE COUNTYPupil-Teacher Ratio

The white pupils per teacher ratio is 26.1-1; the Negro, 32.4-1. (pp. 70, 76)

Expenditures

The budget for the year 1954 reveals that Greene County budgeted for an average daily attendance of 1,980 white children at a cost of $166.86 per child for 8 months. Compared to this figure is the budget for the average daily attendance of 583 Negroes at a cost of $97.51 per child. This means that the county is spending approximately twice as much on the white child as on the Negro. (p. 80)

GRENADA COUNTY AND CITY OF GRENADAPupil-Teacher Ratio

1,840 white children in average daily attendance in 1955-56 were taught by 78 teachers; 2,076 Negro children in average daily attendance were taught by 74 teachers. (pp. 20,28)

$146.00 was spent for each white child in average daily attendance in Grenada City schools; $174 in one county white school and $249 in the other. The expenditure per child for county Negroes was $103, for city Negroes $90. (p. 56)

(E-16-1 Survey published in July 1956 by the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, under the direction of Dr. John B. Phay)

HOLMES COUNTY AND CITIES OF DURANT & LEXINGTONPupil-Teacher Ratio

There were 1780 white children in average daily attendance in the entire county. The white pupil-teacher ratio was 17-1 in Holmes County, 18-1 in Lexington, and 20-1 in Durant. (p. 19,23) There were 5396 Negro pupils in average daily attendance. The Negro pupil-teacher ratio was 30-1. (pp. 37 and 39)

School Plant and Instructional Program

. . . no sound educational program for elementary Negro children can be established until extensive replacements and additions are made to the present school plants. (p. 66) In most instances the Negro high schools have too many oversized classes. This seriously interferes with a sound instructional program. As in the Negro elementary school curriculum, the school plant is a major factor in limiting the school program. Library facilities, laboratory equipment, and other teaching devices also are limited. (p. 69)

. . . except for the Mileston plant and the one at West the County must provide new plants for Negro education. [The survey recommends that over 60 other Negro schools be abandoned. (p. 78)] Although it is unfortunate better school buildings have not been provided in the past, it is fortunate that new buildings can now be built at the most desirable locations. Little capital loss will be sustained by abandoning the school plant as recommended in this study. (p. 81)

Expenditures

In 1954-55, Durant spent $191 for each white child in average daily attendance; Lexington spent $265; the county expense for white pupils ranged from $306 to $152, depending on the school attended. Holmes County, at the same time, spent $78 on each Negro child; Lexington, $72; and Durant, $63. (pp. 86-89)

JACKSON COUNTY

General Description

Jackson County has 7 white schools. Grades 1-12 are taught in three of these: St. Martin, Vancleave, and Wade. Grades 1-8 are taught in the other schools.

All the schools operate for eight months. Table 60 shows that enrollment for the current year is 2,132 pupils with 71 teachers employed or a teacher-pupil ratio of 31.4. This ratio is above the state average of 30 plus. . . . (p. 119)

Jackson County has three Negro schools. Grades 1-8 are taught in 2 of these. The other, Davis Chapel, includes grades 1-6.

All of these schools operate for eight months. . . the enrollment for this year is 196 and . . . 6 teachers are employed. The pupil-teacher ratio is 32.7 which is higher than the average in the State of Mississippi.

Since none of these schools have a high school, no course of study will be given. Generally speaking, the program of these schools needs improvement in every respect. (pp. 123-124)

JEFFERSON COUNTYAverage Daily Attendance

In the school year 1954-55 there were 551 white children in average daily attendance. There were 1717 Negro children in average daily attendance. (pp. 15, 30)

While the buildings are not the most important thing concerning the school, they are of significance. The kind and type of housing for children affect the program and also have an affect on the teachers. (p. 47)

In each of the school surveys discussed in this appendix all the school buildings in the county are described. The following are descriptions of the three white schools in Jefferson County and some of the 28 Negro schools:

It is reported that Fayette is a school for whites. It is a two-story brick building, located on 10 acres and owned by the public. The value of the plant is approximately $150,000. (pp. 48, 49)

Union Church is a school for white children. This was partially burned during the time of survey. The survey reported that the elementary (which was not burned) is a wooden frame building with a metal roof in poor condition. However, inside toilets are available. The shop and vocational building is in very good shape. (pp. 50, 51)

According to the survey United Vocational is a school for white children. The value of the plant is $60,000. The condition of this school, in general, is poor.

Ashland [a one-teacher school for Negroes, teaching grades 1-8] The windows are inadequate, It is heated by a wood stove. It has no lights and the furniture consists of chairs and benches. There is no water supply. There are open-type toilets in very poor condition. Teaching aids, such as chalk boards and bulletin boards are desired. (p. 55)

Contentment [a one-teacher school for Negro children teaching grades from 1-8] It has a metal roof that leaks. The windows are inadequate and half the panes are missing in some instances. The floor is wood and in good condition but unpainted. The building is heated by a wood heater in fair condition. There are no lights and the furniture is home-made benches. There is no water supply at all. The children bring their water from home. Chalk boards are inadequate and in poor condition. The toilets are open type in poor condition, totally inadequate for school use. (p. 57)

Hard Times [a one-teacher school for Negroes, teaching grades 1-8.] The windows are not very good. The floor is wood in fair condition. It has a tongue and groove ceiling in fair condition. The building is heated by a wood heater in fair condition. There are no lights. The furniture is all home-made benches. . . . The water supply comes from a church. . . . The teaching aids are most inadequate. The entire facilities are not suitable for school. (p. 59)

Montgomery [a one-teacher school for Negroes, teaching grades 1-8] The windows are not adequate. The floors are wood in good condition. The building is heated by a wood stove. The lights are inadequate and the furniture is likewise inadequate. There are no toilets available, except for girls. The water is obtained from a cistern. This building was built in 1950. (p. 64)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

The ratio of white pupils per teacher is 19-1 (p. 87) The ratio of Negro pupils is 30-1. "This is about 60 per cent higher than the figures shown for white children." (p. 91)

While there were 64 Negro teachers employed for the year 1953-54, for the year 1954-55 this number has been cut to 59. On the basis of enrollment for 1954-55, the ratio of teachers will be 40 for the Negro schools. (p. 91)

Expenditures

The survey showed that the 1954-55 school year budget for Jefferson County allotted $202.35 for each of the 574 white students in average daily attendance. The budget allotted $66.79 for each of the 2007 Negro students in average daily attendance. (p. 91)

JEFFERSON DAVIS COUNTYSchool Plant

There are 15 schools for Negroes in Jefferson Davis County. The Negro schools with the exception of Carver at Bissfield and Oakley, are in extremely poor condition. . . . There is little use in discussing each of these schools in detail since their facilities are inadequate and not fit for further use as schools. Many of the buildings are all but falling apart. (p. 54)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

. . . The enrollment for the past year [in white schools] was 1,763 with 78 teachers employed or a pupil-teacher ratio of 22.6. This ratio is very desirable, however, it is expensive. It is doubtful that Jefferson Davis County can afford this luxury. . . . (p. 82)

. . . The enrollment for last year [in Negro schools] was 2,764 with 62 teachers employed which makes a pupil-teacher ratio of 42.9 which is extremely high. . . . Good work cannot be accomplished when a teacher has such a larger number of pupils. In certain instances the ratio is as high as 47 per teacher and in no instances is it lower than 31.3 except at Haw Pond where it is 27.5. . . . (p. 87)

Expenditures

The budget for 1954-55 for Jefferson Davis County reveals that for 1,557 white students, $183.59 was budgeted for each pupil in average daily attendance for eight months. Contrasted to this is the budget for 2,238 Negro pupils in average daily attendance at a cost of $96.19 per pupil for eight months. In other words, Jefferson Davis County is spending approximately twice as much on its white children as it is on its Negro children. This should be given some attention at an early date. (p. 92)

JONES COUNTY AND LAUREL AND ELLISVILLE
SEPARATE SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Elementary Schools

. . . The limitation of the program of studies also is dependent upon many factors which must be altered before any sizeable improvement can occur. Only one school plant, the new building at Shady Oak, provides a satisfactory setting for a good elementary program in the county schools for Negroes. Delapidated buildings, poor equipment and the almost complete absence of teaching supplies, are factors which contribute to the deficiencies. (p. 40-41)

Instructional Program

In all county schools for Negroes, several grades are being taught by one teacher, a factor which limits the extent and quality of the program of studies. There is only so much time available for teaching during each day. When this time either is divided consecutively among several grades or used simultaneously for teaching at several levels of instruction, the quality of teaching and the program of studies both suffer. (p. 41)

The Ellisville Municipal Separate School District elementary school follows the pattern of the county elementary schools, although the building is better than ~~any~~ except the Shady Oak School building. (p. 41)

In the Laurel Municipal Separate School District, the schools show evidence of a general administrative policy enrichment. The new buildings, better equipment, and the use of teaching supplies, promote this policy. However, many classrooms are overcrowded. . . (pp. 41-42)

High Schools

Concerning the Negro high schools, the survey comments that the Laurel Municipal Separate School District High School offers only 19 courses per year, which "provides a limited program of studies". However, the survey felt that this high school was better than the Negro county high schools which are all small schools. Concerning the county high schools, the survey remarked: "Probably the greatest handicap in providing an adequate program of studies is the poor school plants. Although agriculture and home economics are listed as courses in each school except Friendship, it is obvious from the lack of equipment and the poor housing available that only limited value can be obtained. A similar situation exists in the laboratory sciences. Library holdings and facilities are practically nonexistent." (pp. 55-58)

Expenditures

The expenditure per white pupil in the Jones County High School ranges from $181 to $110; in Ellisville Municipal Separate District the cost per white pupil was $117; and, in the Laurel Separate School District the cost per white pupil was $148. "Per pupil cost for Negroes was relatively much lower than for the white pupils in the separate school districts and in most of the county schools. These costs were: Jones County, $123, Laurel, $75, and Ellisville, $72." (p. 92)

(E-71-1 Survey published in November 1956 by the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, under the direction of Dr. John B. Phay.)

LAWRENCE COUNTYEnrollment

The enrollment of white children in 1955-56 was 1,890 pupils. (p. 10)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

The white pupil-teacher ratio was 25.9 to 1. There were 1,393 Negro pupils enrolled. The Negro pupil-teacher ratio was 35.7 to 1. (pp. 64, 69)

Expenditures

The budget for the year 1954-55 reveals that the county budgeted for 1,800 white children in average daily attendance at a cost of $160.41 per child for a term of 8 months. It budgeted for 1,187 Negroes at a cost of $103.83 per child for 8 months. Thus, approximately 50 per cent more is being spent for each white child than for each Negro child in Lawrence County. This fact should be given careful consideration. (p. 72)

(E-73-1 Survey published in 1956 by the Department of Educational Administration, Mississippi Southern College, under the direction of Dr. Ralph S. Owings)

MARION COUNTY AND THE CITY OF COLUMBIAEnrollment

In 1954-55 there were 1,795 white and 2,344 Negro students enrolled in Marion County schools. (pp. 12,22)

The Columbia City school enrollment for the same year was 1,626 for white schools and 508 for the Negro school. (pp. 32, 37)

School Plant

Marion County is now providing eight schools for its white children. Half of these schools are high schools which have grades 1-12. . . (pp. 48-49)

Marion County provides 6 schools for its Negro children. . . All buildings are publicly owned and grades 1-12 are taught at all except Expose, where only grades 1-8 are taught. A study of the pictures will indicate the condition of most of these buildings. Some few are very good, but most of them are totally unfit for school use. . . (p. 61)

The Columbia public schools are housed in three buildings for whites and one for Negroes. (p. 70)

PANOLA COUNTY AND COMO AND SARDIS SEPARATE DISTRICTS

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

Ninety-seven white teachers instruct 2,250 white children; 101 Negro teachers instruct 3,400 Negro children. ". . . The difference between the number of instructional staff is readily seen. A difference is also apparent in the Como schools with 11 white teachers and 178 white pupils compared with 8 Negro teachers and 303 Negro children; likewise, in Sardis with 17 white teachers and 349 white pupils compared with 10 Negro teachers and 327 Negro children". (p. 29)

Instructional Program

As is generally true in the state of Mississippi, the curriculum in the Negro schools is limited in scope and in sequence. Most of this is due to the lack of money available for teachers, for supplies and for buildings. Panola County and its separate districts find themselves in the situation of other Mississippi communities. The Negro secondary schools are even more retarded in curriculum offerings than the elementary schools. This is due in part to the fact that few of the total number of Negroes enrolled in the first grade enter the high school. Thus, the limited enrollment plus other factors deters the development of a sound curriculum. Special attention is called to the fact that in grades seven and eight one of the weakest sections of the curriculum occurs, which may have a decided effect upon the elimination of many boys and girls from the schools at this particular point. It may be said that throughout the entire county no high school for Negroes exists which presents a curriculum attractive enough to hold boys and girls in school. The needs of these youngsters are not being met. They undoubtedly know this, and withdraw from school at an early age. . . . (pp. 41-42)

School Plant

As a whole, the white schools are far better than the Negro schools. With the possible exception of Black-jack and Union most of the white children in Panola County attend schools which are housed in acceptable buildings. In some instances, such as the Batesville High School and the elementary schools at Pope and Batesville, unusually good facilities exist. Among the Negro schools, however, the situation is reversed. Few buildings of any quality exist for Negroes. The better ones are located at Batesville and Como with one small building at Crenshaw. The remainder of the Negro children are too often housed in private buildings, poorly adapted to the needs of the school. It is perhaps fortunate that no great investment now exists in the rural sections in the county for Negroes. The abandonment of any attendance centers now will not mean any great capital loss to the county and will make much easier the establishment of attendance centers at the proper places. (p. 45)

Expenditures

The per capita expenditure on white pupils in all of the school districts in Panola County varies from a low of $140 to a high of $280. The expenditure per capita on Negro children in the county was $70; in Como, $78, and in Sardis, $86. (pp. 58-59)

(E-4-1 Survey published in 1955 by the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, under the direction of Dr. John E. Phay)

PEARL RIVER COUNTY AND POPLARVILLE AND PICAYUNE SEPARATE DISTRICTS

School Plant

The buildings in this county range from good to poor. Some are not suitable for schools. It might be said that the housing of the Negro children in the county is substandard in every instance. . . .(p. 61)

Expenditures

For a term of 8 months in 1954-55, $158.18 was budgeted for each of the 2,237 white children in Pearl River County. For the same time, $79.02 was budgeted for each of the 184 Negro children. This shows that Pearl River County is spending two dollars for each white child where they spend one for each Negro. This situation should be corrected at the earliest possible date. . . . (p. 116)

Poplarville budgeted for 440 white children in average daily attendance in 1954-55 for a period of nine months at a cost of $151.85. They also budgeted for 186 Negro pupils for a nine months' program at a cost of $108.61. For every two dollars spent on Negroes, three dollars are spent on whites. There is a decided need for improving the Negro education at the Poplarville Schools. (p. 123)

[In 1960-61, Poplarville District spent $57.96 for the instruction of each white child and $18.69 for the instruction of each Negro child.]

In 1954-55, $170.29 per child was budgeted for 1,082 white children for a term of nine months. At the same time, $96.00 per child was budgeted for 606 Negro children for a term of nine months which shows that almost twice as much is spent for each white child as for each Negro child. (p. 127)

[In 1960-61, Picayune spent $74.54 instructing each white child and $26.48 instructing each Negro child.]

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

Picayune is also attempting to give its Negroes a good program of education. However, examination of the table which follows shows that the ratio of pupils to teachers is entirely too high. It is 41 1/2 which is 33.5 percent greater than the average for the State of Mississippi which is the highest in the nation. (p. 125)

(E-81-1 Survey published in 1955 by the Department of Educational Administration, Mississippi Southern College, under the direction of Dr. Ralph S. Owings)

PERRY COUNTY AND THE CITY OF RICHTONEnrollment

In 1954-55 the Perry County white school enrollment was 1,295 and 536 for Negro schools. (pp. 12, 24)

Enrollment for the city of Richton was 510 for whites and 187 for Negroes in 1954-55. (pp. 34, 39)

School Plant

There are seven white schools in Perry County and three Negro schools. "The housing for Negroes has been neglected and the facilities are very inadequate and in a very bad state of repair". All of the Negro schools were rated "poor" by the survey staff. (pp. 52, 65)

Richton schools are housed in five buildings for whites and two for Negroes. One of these is a church. (p. 68)

The Richton negro schools are in a deplorable condition so far as housing is concerned. One of the schools, which is called Happy Lilly or McSwain, is housed in a church. This building is not suitable for school activities. (p. 71)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

In Perry County the ratio of pupils per teacher was 21.5-1 for white schools and 33.5-1 for Negro schools in 1954-55. (pp. 93, 99)

In the Richton white school the pupil-teacher ratio was reported as 32-1 and in the Negro schools it was reported as 37-1. (pp. 103, 105)

Expenditures

[In Perry County] the 1954-55 budget shows that for 1,300 children in average daily attendance the budget was $166.86 per child in average daily attendance. The schools are operated for a term of eight months. Perry County spends about 25 per cent more for its white children than it does for its Negroes, based on a budget of 538 negro children at a cost of $114.23 per child in average daily attendance for a period of eight months. (p. 99)

For 1954-55 the budget calls for an expenditure of $146.42 per pupil for 413 white children in average daily attendance for eight months school, whereas, for the 157 Negroes in average daily attendance, the expenditure was only $75.13 per pupil. Richton is spending twice as much on its white children as it is on its Negroes, and both schools are operating for eight months only. (p. 103)

PIKE COUNTY AND SUMMIT,
MCCOMB, FERNWOOD, AND MAGNOLIA SEPARATE SCHOOL DISTRICTS

General Description

This chapter points out that many schools in this county, both white and Negro, are operating for less than 9 months. It shows that the pupil-teacher ratio has a wide range in the various schools. In the Negro schools the ratio, in most cases, is unfavorable. . . .

Expenditures

The budget for the year 1954 reveals that Pike County budgeted for an average daily attendance of 1,186 [white] children at a cost of $174.45 per child for 8 months. Compared to this figure is the budget for the average daily attendance of 1,670 Negroes at a cost of $83.60 per child. This means that the county is spending approximately twice as much on the white child as on the Negro child.

The budget for the year 1954-55 reveals that Fernwood budgeted for an average daily attendance of 201 white children at a cost of $151.86 for 9 months. In comparison is the budget for the average daily attendance of 345 Negro children at a cost of $97.70 for 9 months. This means that Fernwood spent 50% more for each white child than it did for each Negro child.

The budget for the year 1954 reveals that Magnolia budgeted for an average daily attendance of 508 [white] pupils at a cost of $167.19 for 9 months for each child. Compared to this figure is the budget for an average daily attendance of 502 Negro children at a cost of $78.18 per child for 8 months. This means that Magnolia is spending twice as much on each white child as it is on each Negro child. Furthermore this does not take into consideration the high school Negroes.

The budget for 1954 reveals that McComb budgeted for an average daily attendance of 1,369 white children at a cost [of] $145.19 for each child for 9 months. Compared to this is the budget for the average daily attendance of 583 Negro children at a cost of $104.35 for 9 months. This means that McComb is spending approximately 50% more on each white child than on each Negro child.

The budget for 1954 reveals that Osyka budgeted for an average daily attendance of 133 white pupils at a cost of $154.66 per child for 8 months. In comparison $63.08 per child was budgeted for 68 Negro children in average daily attendance for 8 months. This means that Osyka is spending more than twice as much on each white child as it is on each Negro child.

The budget for 1954-55 reveals that Summit budgeted for the average daily attendance of 271 white children at a cost of $169.15 for 9 months. Compared to this is the budget for the average daily attendance of 343 Negro children at a cost of $64.81 for a period of 9 months. This means that Summit is spending approximately 3 times as much on each white child as on each Negro. Attention is called to the fact that the Negro schools run for 8 months and the white schools run for 9 months, and that the high school students of Summit attend the Pike County A.H.S.

The budget for the year 1954-55 reveals that Universal budgeted for an average daily attendance of 246 Negroes at a cost of $93.22 for the term of 9 months. The white children in this district attend McComb on a tuition basis. According to the budget $273.11 per child for 9 months is spent for the 41 children in average daily attendance. In other words, for each white child Universal receives 3 times as much as for each Negro. (pp. 187-189)

PRETISS COUNTY AND BALDWIN SEPARATE SCHOOL DISTRICTSchool Plant

[White schools] At the time of this survey Prentiss County operated 13 schools. In addition, schools were operated by the Baldwin Separate School District at Baldwin and Pratt. . . Of the 13 white schools in Prentiss County, seven enrolled pupils in grades one through 12, and six enrolled pupils in grades one through eight. . . (p. 19)

Prentiss County had only three schools for Negroes in 1955-56. None of these centers presents a good condition. The schools at Baldwin, Lincoln, and Carver should be abandoned. At Booneville, if sufficient care is taken and considerable money spent, some of the new building might be salvaged. However, the remainder of the plant should be abandoned. . . in the long run a completely new plant may be more economical. (pp. 27, 47-54)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

In 1955-56 there were 132 teachers instructing the white boys and girls in the Prentiss County schools and 23 in the Baldwin Separate School District schools, a total of 155 teachers. . . (p. 24)

There were 15 1/2 teachers instructing the Negro boys and girls in the Prentiss County schools and nine teachers in the Baldwin Separate School District school. This provides approximately the number of teachers both in the Baldwin and Prentiss County schools that would be allowed on the basis of one teacher for each 30 pupils in average daily attendance. (p. 28)

(E-35-1 The Report of a Survey of the Public Schools of Prentiss County and Baldwin Separate School District)

QUITMAN COUNTY AND MARKS SEPARATE DISTRICTPupil-Teacher Ratio

One hundred and six white teachers instructed the 2,482 white children in average daily attendance in 1954-55. Ninety-six Negro teachers instructed the 3,025 Negro children in average daily attendance in that school year. (pp. 16-17, 25-26)

School Plant

Most of the schools for Negroes in Quitman County are located in churches. In these churches one or more teachers conduct classes in all grades from one through eight, as needed. In only Lambert in the county schools and in Marks in the separate school district are there enough teachers so that a teacher may have only one grade to teach. (p. 27)

Expenditures

In the county, expenditure per white pupil ranges from $231 to $131. The expenditure per Negro pupil is $82. In Marks Separate District, $186 is spent on the white, $96 on the Negro child. (p. 51)

STONE COUNTYSchool Plant

. . . It might be said that the housing of the negro children is substandard in every instance, however it must be said that a good negro school is under construction at the Stone County Training School. . . . (p. 39)

Expenditures

In 1954, this county budgeted $157.71 per white child and $111.47 per Negro child in average daily attendance. (pp. 70, 72)

TALLAHATCHIE COUNTYPupil-Teacher Ratio

. . . In comparing 108 white teachers instructing some 2,200 white children, with 128 Negro teachers instructing 4,000 Negro children, the difference between the number of instructional staff is readily seen. (pp. 32-33)

School Plant

Most of the schools for Negroes in Tallahatchie County are located in churches. In these churches one or more teachers conduct classes in all grades from one through eight, as needed. . . . It is the rare instance where a teacher has only one grade to teach. (p. 33)

The Negro elementary schools housed as they are, in most instances, in buildings completely inadequate for a modern instructional program, obviously could present only the most meager curricular offerings. . . .

The limited offerings in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades in the Negro schools is too often merely duplication of work offered in lower grades. . . . (pp. 38-39)

The report recommends that 53 of the 59 schools used to house Negro children this school year (1955) be abandoned. (p. 74)

Expenditures

. . . It may be seen from the table that the per pupil cost for white schools ranges from $53.93 in the Charleston school to $694.70 in the Glendora school. The range for the Negro school per pupil cost is listed as $19.80 for the Glendora pupils to $52.50 for the Sumner pupils. . . . (p.58)

(E-6-1 Survey published in 1955 by the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, under the direction of Dr. John B. Phay)

UNION COUNTY AND NEW ALBANY SEPARATE DISTRICTSchool Plant

Most of the county schools for Negroes in Union County are located in churches or non-public buildings. The Negro school in the New Albany Separate School District has an attractive brick classroom building and several less desirable frame buildings. In the county schools, one, two or three teachers conduct classes in all grades from one through eight, as needed. The number of classes assigned to each teacher varies with the school location and the number of children. One teacher may teach grades one through eight, or three teachers might divide the grades. In none of the county schools for Negroes does a teacher have only one grade to teach. (p. 30)

Elementary Schools

The program of studies in the Negro elementary schools follows that of the white elementary schools. The exception is that there is little deviation from the program of studies outlined by the state of Mississippi in the state adopted textbook program. This, again, is the condition which is found in most of the Negro elementary schools in Mississippi and again Union County follows the rule and is not an exception. It may be noted, however, that in the Negro elementary schools, the quality of education and the materials available for teaching seem to be far below that in the white schools. This is due in part to the poor physical surroundings. . . . (pp. 36-37)

High School

The only Negro high school in the county is the Union County Training School in New Albany. This high school offers 20 subjects consisting of the traditional college entrance requirements plus work in home economics and agriculture. This is a limited program of studies for Negro boys and girls. Only a limited amount of materials of instruction and laboratory equipment are available. (p. 45)

Expenditures

In the New Albany Separate School District, $171 is budgeted for each white child and $123 for each Negro child. In Union County itself less money was budgeted for both white and Negro children but almost without exception far more was budgeted for the white child than for the Negro child. (pp. 55-58)

(E-22-1 Survey published in 1956 by the Bureau of Educational Research, School of Education, University of Mississippi, under the direction of Dr. John B. Phay)

WAYNE COUNTYSchool Plant

Nine schools for Negroes are provided - four are privately owned including one church; three are rated "abandon", two, "unsatisfactory" or partially so. Six schools for whites are provided - all are publicly owned; none of them receive ratings as low as the Negro schools. (pp. 43, 53)

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

... The teacher-pupil ratio is favorable as far as the white children are concerned since in general it is beneath that of the State. For the Negroes the ratio is above the state average. (p. 80)

Expenditures

The budget for the year 1954-55 reveals that the county budgeted for 2,363 white children in average daily attendance at a cost of $159.27 per child per term of 8 months. The budget for the 1,671 Negroes in average daily attendance was $75.99 each for a term of 8 months. Wayne County is spending twice as much for the education of each white child as it is for each Negro. This condition should be corrected. (pp. 80-81)

YALOBUSHA COUNTYPupil-Teacher Ratio

Seventy-three white teachers instructed 1,688 white children in average daily attendance in 1955-56. Fifty-two Negro teachers instructed 1,543 Negro children in average daily attendance during the same school year.

(pp. 20-24)

School Plant

... It should be noted that both in the quality and quantity of housing, in the availability of instructional materials, and in the general environment, the Negro elementary schools are below those of the white schools in their neighborhood. These are factors which influence and control the program of studies. (p. 29)

Four new school houses were constructed for Negroes between 1952-1955. (p. 40)

ANSWER TO INTERROGATORY NUMBER 11(b) AS TO THE NAME AND ADDRESS OF EACH WITNESS THE UNITED STATES INTENDS TO CALL OR OTHERWISE USE AT THE TRIAL OF THIS CAUSE TO SHOW THAT PUBLIC EDUCATION FACILITIES PROVIDED FOR NEGROES IN MISSISSIPPI WERE AND ARE INFERIOR TO THOSE PROVIDED FOR WHITE PERSONS.

The United States intends to rely principally on the documents listed in answer to Question 11(c) in proving that public educational facilities provided for Negroes in Mississippi were and are inferior to those provided for white persons. Such persons as are necessary to establish the authenticity of these documents will be called. The identity of those persons has not yet been determined. No decision has at this time been made as to whether any other witnesses will be called specifically to testify about this issue. All witnesses, white and Negro, who testify may be asked about their educational experience in Mississippi and their personal knowledge of the educational system.

ANSWER TO INTERROGATORY NUMBER 11(c) AS TO THE SPECIFIC DOCUMENTS THE UNITED STATES INTENDS TO USE TO PROVE THAT THE PUBLIC EDUCATION FACILITIES PROVIDED FOR NEGROES IN MISSISSIPPI WERE AND ARE INFERIOR TO THOSE PROVIDED FOR WHITE PERSONS.

The United States intends to rely on the following documents to prove that public education facilities provided for Negroes in Mississippi were and are inferior to those provided for white persons:

Analysis of Educational Facilities Afforded to Negroes and Whites in the State of Louisiana

[The following material is an extract from the brief of the United States filed in United States v. Board of Registration of Louisiana, (C.A. No. 2866, E.D. La.)]

From at least 1900 to the present time, the State of Louisiana has consistently and deliberately provided Negroes with an educational system both segregated from and inferior to that provided for white persons. It is only since 1955 that the two systems have been remotely comparable. In any case, whatever changes have been made since 1955 affect very few of the vast number of Negroes who are of voting age today in Louisiana and are not registered to vote. The Negroes who today are eligible by age to vote were of school age during earlier periods, and for that reason an analysis of the constitutional validity of voter registration tests must look to the educational opportunities afforded Negroes during the critical school age periods.

Facts derived exclusively from the annual reports of the Louisiana State Superintendent of Schools show that the adult Negro of today who has grown up in Louisiana was given little opportunity to develop intellectual tools to meet stringent voter registration educational requirements on the same basis as the typical adult white person. In every particular, Negro schools have been inferior to white schools.

A. The Value of Public Schools

Prior to 1955, the typical Negro school was worth almost nothing compared to the typical white school. For example, in 1910 the average white school was worth more than 10 times that of the average Negro school.<sup>1/</sup> In the same year the total value of all white schools was 23 times that of the value of all Negro schools,<sup>2/</sup> although Negroes constituted 44% of the school-age population.<sup>3/</sup> This disparity persisted so that in 1950, when Negroes constituted 39% of the school-age population,<sup>4/</sup> the total value of all white schools was seven times that of the total value of all Negro schools, and the average white school was worth eleven times that of the average Negro school.<sup>5/</sup>

B. Expenditure Per Student

Another important distinction is in annual expenditures per student. In 1920 Louisiana spent an average of $33.71 for each white pupil enrolled in school, but only $7.81 for each Negro pupil enrolled.<sup>6/</sup> In 1940 it spent $69.37 for each white student and $16.88 for each Negro student.<sup>7/</sup>

C. Enrollment and Attendance

Lack of funds inevitably resulted in a lower percentage of enrollment and of daily attendance of Negro school-age children compared to the enrollment and daily attendance of white school-age children. For example, in 1910 75.9% of the white "educables" were enrolled in schools compared to only 46.3% of the Negro "educables."<sup>8/</sup> The percentage in average daily attendance was 46% of the white pupils but only 24% of the Negro pupils.<sup>9/</sup> By 1940 the difference had been reduced to 78% of the white children enrolled compared to 73.9% of the Negro children enrolled.<sup>10/</sup>

D. Length of School Terms

In 1910 the school term for white students was 153 days, for Negro students only 90 days.<sup>11/</sup> The better enrollment figures for 1940 (see Section C above) are less impressive in light of the continued disparity in length of school terms, which in that year was 180 days<sup>12/</sup> for white students and 147 days for Negro students.

E. Salaries of Teachers

Prior to 1945 Negro teachers received less than one-half of the salaries received by white teachers. In 1920 the average annual salary was $1198.98 for white teachers (male) and $374.37 for Negro teachers

F. Pupil-Teacher Ratio

In 1920 the ratio was 33 white pupils per teacher and 64 Negro pupils per teacher.<sup>16/</sup> By 1940 the white ratio had dropped to 28:1 for the white students and 42:1 for the Negro students.<sup>17/</sup>

G. The Education and Qualifications of Teachers

The scarcity of opportunities for secondary education for Negroes posed a serious educational disadvantage, and made it impossible for the Negro school system to produce a sufficient supply of qualified teachers. In 1925 there were 318 accredited white high schools but not a single accredited Negro high school.<sup>18/</sup> Ten years later there were only six accredited Negro high schools.<sup>19/</sup> As late as 1950, there were 362 accredited white high schools but 98 accredited Negro high schools.<sup>20/</sup>

As a result, most Negro students were taught by teachers who were not college trained. In 1930, only 17% of the Negro teachers held Bachelor's degrees, compared to 41% of the white teachers.<sup>21/</sup> By 1940, only 38% of the Negro teachers compared to 78% of the white teachers had such degrees.<sup>22/</sup> Between 1930 and 1945 the number of white teachers with Master's degrees was more than ten times the number of Negro teachers with such degrees.<sup>23/</sup>

H. One-Room Schools Versus Consolidation

School consolidation in the Negro system in Louisiana lagged far behind that in the white school system. In 1920 State Superintendent of Schools L. H. Harris said that "as an educational institution the one-room school is sadly and fatally weak when compared with the larger type school."<sup>24/</sup> But in 1925 Superintendent Harris felt constrained to state why consolidation was not taking place within the Negro school system:

The reasons accounting for the retention of the one room negro school are quite obvious: first, the negro school is required to meet public demands in a particular community, and, second, public sentiment in Louisiana would not endorse the proposition of providing transportation for negro children at public expense. <sup>25/</sup>

In 1915 there were 1,251 single-teacher schools for white students and 1,011 for Negro students.<sup>26/</sup> In the next fifteen years, the process of consolidation reduced the number of one-teacher white schools to 339. In the same period, however, the number of one-teacher Negro schools actually increased to 1,042.<sup>27/</sup> By 1950 the one-teacher white school was practically extinct (there were 36 remaining), while 500 one-teacher Negro schools were still operating.<sup>28/</sup>

Y. State Policy Fostered Inferior Education for Negroes

Discrimination against Negroes in education was the product of a conscious state policy, a policy explained and justified in 1915 by the State Superintendent of Schools in the following terms:

....we have taken the position that our first duty was to provide good schools for the white race, attacking the problem of negro education after the performance of that first duty.<sup>29/</sup>

* * * * *

I think our first duty was to provide good schools for the white children before undertaking seriously the education of the negro children.<sup>30/</sup>

and again in 1925:

If we should use the foregoing table [Showing Data on Wealth, Expenditures and Population] as a basis of comparison with any of the progressive states having white populations, we should probably not make the most favorable showing, for the negroes are included with the whites in this discussion. If we should exclude the negroes and confine the figures to the white population, white school children and expenditures on white schools, the evidences of progress would be much more apparent, and in that case we should, I think, take our place in the same class with the half-dozen most progressive states in the country. 31/

* * * * *

In 1900 the public schools reached only 32% of the negro school population, in 1910 only 36%, in 1920 51%, while last year the public schools enrolled 56% of the Negro educables. The advancement in the development of negro schools has been as rapid perhaps as it should have been, for it has been in keeping with the public sentiment.... 32/

In 1930 Superintendent Harris made a candid admission in discussing Louisiana's high rate of illiteracy:

This heavy percentage of illiteracy was due to the fact that until recently little or nothing was done in negro education, with the result that practically all of the negroes were classed as illiterates
.... 33/

And in 1935 the Superintendent posed a series of "Questions for School Officials" as a technique for evaluating parish school systems. The questions included the following indication of an acceptable capital investment standard:

32/ Id. at p. 39.

33/ 1930 Report, p. 14.

10. Have you invested as much as $140 per pupil in buildings for whites and as much as $25 per pupil in buildings for negro schools? If not, you might consider additional expenditures for capital outlay. 34/

By 1945, the Superintendent felt it necessary to make a plea for the upgrading of Negro schools:

...More and better educational facilities for Negroes constitute one of our most serious educational and civic problems. Teachers and children cannot live, teach, and learn in schoolrooms that are overcrowded, uncomfortable, unhealthful, and that are three or more miles from the child's home. Too many Negro children are out of school, or attend schools that fail to meet their educational needs, because a school of suitable grade is not accessible. Our Negro schools need to be recognized so as to provide a school of suitable grade for every Negro child. 35/

* * * * *

Our Negro schools generally need more administrative and supervisory attention and assistance. Short school terms, limited school facilities, and poorly trained teachers contribute to the need for the best of school supervision. 36/

In 1942 the operations of Negro schools in Louisiana were intensively observed and analyzed by a special staff assembled by the Louisiana Educational Survey Commission. The report of this team of experts, entitled "The Negro Public Schools," was published in Volume IV of the Louisiana Educational Survey.<sup>37/</sup> The report, compiled on the basis of personal observations and interviews conducted by staff members, provides an insight into what actually took place within the typical Negro school in Louisiana twenty years ago. The report tells the story of a grossly inadequate school system, a story which fills in the details suggested by the statistics reviewed above. Appendix A contains selected excerpts from the report. They demonstrate that as of 1942, and as a result of the State's policy of discrimination in education, Louisiana's Negroes were offered no educational opportunities of any significant value.<sup>38/</sup>

After 1945 some small improvement came to the Negro school system in Louisiana, and as the tables in the Appendix show, substantial gains have been made since the <sup>37/</sup> The Louisiana Educational Survey was an exhaustive, ten-volume study of the state's public school system prepared by groups of experts under the direction of the Louisiana Educational Survey Commission, a body established for that purpose by the state legislature. Washburne, Louisiana Educational Survey: A Summary (Baton Rouge, 1942).

<sup>38/</sup> The techniques of personal observation and interviews employed by the survey staff were not designed to yield statistically conclusive findings. The purpose instead was to gain a sufficiently comprehensive first-hand view of the Negro public schools to permit the making of sensible, useful, and detailed recommendations for the improvement of the Negro school system. The survey staff concentrated on Negro schools in the following twenty parishes: Claiborne, East Feliciana, Ouachita, St. Landry, Vernon, Washington, Webster, Avoyelles, Caddo, Concordia, East Carroll, Natchitoches, Richland, Ascension, Iberia, LaFourche, St. Martin, Calcasieu, Jefferson Davis, and St. Charles.

Supreme Court decision in Brown v. Board of Education, 357 U.S. 483 (1954). Nonetheless, 78.6% of Louisiana's non-white voting age population in 1960<sup>39/</sup> had entered or completed school by 1940, and no persons presently of voting age began their educations as late as 1954. Assuming, as we must, that inadequate training in the early years of one's education is a permanent handicap, it becomes clear that no native Louisiana Negro now of voting age has been free from the gross discrimination in education practiced as a matter of state policy prior to 1954.

The Fifteenth Amendment in these circumstances forbids the use of any voter registration test which bears a relationship to education achievement and which denies the right to vote to those who have been the victims of State-enforced inferior educational opportunities.

EXCERPTS FROM "THE NEGRO PUBLIC SCHOOLS"

The following pages consist of excerpts taken from Volume IV, Section 8, of the Louisiana Educational Survey, entitled "The Negro Public Schools." The Louisiana Educational Survey is a ten-volume study of elementary and secondary education published in 1942 by the Louisiana Educational Survey Commission. The Commission was created by the legislature of Louisiana for the purpose of supervising the preparation of a complete study of public education in Louisiana with the emphasis on existing deficiencies and recommendations for improvement. Washburne, Louisiana Educational Survey: A Summary (Baton Rouge 1942).

One superintendent stated that he could not urge improvement of Negro schools and retain his position as superintendent because sentiment of the school board members was strongly opposed to it. An assistant superintendent, responsible for supervising the Negro schools in the parish, said:

The members of the school board don't want a nickel spent on Negro schools. We have a hard time getting supplies for them -- or anything else for that matter.

You know we've got to live here with these people, and we have to get along with them even if we can't convince them about the right thing to do with regard to colored schools. But the fellows in Baton Rouge could take over buildings and force better buildings for colored children. I can't do it here. After all, I want my job -- just like everybody else.

Still another superintendent said,

I've always been able to carry my board with me in whatever I recommend. But I have to do plenty of spade work before I put the question before the whole group. Right now they are opposed to further improvements in colored schools. We've had a little trouble here, and that's the way they feel. But I have improved colored schools a great deal since I've been superintendent. I had to do it very carefully, though. When I took over this office over fifteen years ago, less than half a dozen Negro schools were held in school buildings, and Negro schools had only a two-month summer term. Gradually we increased the term until three years ago we increased all rural Negro schools to a seven-month term. But we might as well be frank about it -- all these years we have taken money from the colored children to educate the white. There's no use talking about how we did it or why we did it. We did it and we might just as well start there. I think it's mighty important to let the State and the Federal government see this picture as it really is, and if they want to do something about it, all right. But parish school boards spend money on white children first.

A delta cotton plantation parish superintendent said:

The money allocated to the colored children is spent on the education of white children. That's unfair, and I know it, but that's the only way we can have decent white schools here. Why we have twice as many colored children of school age as we have white, and we use their money. Colored children are mighty profitable to us here in this parish.

A superintendent in a rice parish frankly stated that:

We don't do much for Negro schools here in this parish. We've got some pretty good schools for white children. Look up there on the wall and see what nice schools we have for white children. But these people in this parish -- they just let the Negro schools go the best way they can, and that's not much, you know. (pp. 36-37)

...[W]hile the white rural schools of the state are in large measure consolidated, the Negro rural schools are widely scattered over the parishes within Negro population concentrations of from one to five or six miles from these. Many of them are in Negro churches, and lodge halls, some are in small cabins on plantations, and others are on parish owned property. Some of these schools are located in such remote or difficult areas that they are inaccessible to visitors and even, in bad weather, to the pupils.... (page 42)

3.

The one- and two-teacher schools of Louisiana are of three types: they are either miniature frame structures; they are small wooden churches; or they are wooden lodge halls. Objective measurements of the buildings and of the qualification of the teachers provide an inadequate picture of the schools. The buildings are, for the most part, small, dilapidated, and untidy, the equipment meager, and the teachers in many instances poorly equipped. (p. 43)

[T]he majority of these buildings are in serious need of repair, whether they are five years old or fifty. (p. 45)

Water is supplied to these schools either by wells or cistern tanks. In the main the wells are quite shallow and too close to the privy. In no instance was the water made sterile before use. Frequently there is no water supply on the school grounds, as in the case of the Levee schools. (p. 46)

The one-and two-teacher schools are heated almost without exception by a single, iron stove. As has been noted, fuel is supplied generally by the patrons, and is wood. In some instances the boys cut the wood from the forest; in a few other instances, the school board furnishes it. (p. 46)

The toilets are all of the out-door type, if there are any at all. (p. 46)

[describing an average one-teacher school]

The school site is a narrow, rectangular plot of land, about 12 by 36 feet. It is enclosed by a wire fence on all four sides. On three sides there is barely walking space between the fence and the school building. The fourth side, the front, serves as a play space for the children -- about 5 by 10 feet. The pupils have covered this space with small pebbles, as a precaution against the muck and mud of rainy weather. The teacher stated that frequently after rains, water rises above the level of the front porch.

The school building itself is a rectangular unpainted frame building. It is the lodge hall of the Benevolent Association of the community, and is built so close to the ground that it gives the appearance of crouching behind the levee. The inner walls are of weather boarding and are also unpainted. Four windows are on either side of the school room and admit light and ventilation. All of these have wooden shutters; several panes of glass are broken.

There are no toilet facilities on the place. Girls are allowed to use the sanitary privy built by the association, in the rear of a private home behind the school; boys go over the levee.

Within the room are four rows of double seats -- 29 in all -- of uniform size. They are nailed to the floor and much scarred by time and abuse. Along the walls are a few maps, charts and pictures - chosen, evidently, at random, and with no reference to classroom procedure. Two long wooden tables at the rear of the classroom serve as lunch tables (for the free lunch provided). In the right hand corner of the front of the room is a closet, filled to overflowing with an untidy assortment of materials. In the extreme left-hand corner of the rear of the room is a water cooler filled with ice water. This is the only source of water on the grounds. A single small stove at the front of the room furnishes heat. (pp. 46-47)

Each child has his own textbooks, furnished by the state. They are those that had already been used by the whites. The teacher exhibited three badly torn textbooks that had just been received. Supplementary books are brought by a traveling library. She has about 20 such books -- mainly story books. She had no criticisms to offer of the books now used. (p. 48)

The class procedure was about as follows: The teacher gave the smaller children pages from a Sears Roebuck catalogue, and passed a pair of scissors around for cutting out pictures. The larger children were, she announced, to have language. She went from seat to seat, whispering instructions. Finally she read aloud groups of words, some of which were sentences, and some of which were not sentences. At the end of each group read, the class chorused either

'S' for sentence, or 'NS' for not a sentence. At the end of this procedure (about 10 minutes in all) she stated: 'Now I gonna make the assignment for tomorrow: It's gonna be a test and you better know all of this that we been over or else you'll flunk.'

To a group of smaller children: 'You gonna have a test too, so you better learn the names of the New England states. Now we gonna have health.' She moved over to the health chart at the side of the room and stated: 'We gonna say the chart for health.' She read each statement, and at the end asked: 'Do we do that?' Pupils all chorused 'Yes' in response to each question. For example, 'We should take a bath at least twice a week. Do we do that?' Answer, 'Yes.' As a matter of fact, the children without exception were dirty, untidy and acrid with the odor of unwashed bodies. Few, if any of them, made any connection between the lesson and an actual bath. (p. 49)

[Describing a two-teacher school]

This school is set in the muddy clearing of a pine forest, and is about 15 miles from the small town that serves as the parish seat. To the left of the school, about ten feet removed, stands a fifteen foot well, completely covered by a wooden box. To the right are the sanitary pit privies -- one for boys, the other for girls. Upon entering the school building one sees first an unused room to the left. In it is an accumulation of litter and odd objects -- agricultural implements, an old and rusty stove covered with peanut shells, a pile of stove-wood, a jar with a coiled, live snake.

This room leads to the classroom of the wife of the principal. The atmosphere here, as throughout the building, was dark and uninviting. The floor was caked with mud, and strewn with caps and paper. Childish obscenities were scrawled on the walls. Four rows of single, immovable desks, two dusty blackboards, an empty bulletin board, a table piled untidily with primary readers, a stove turned backwards in a far front corner, a teacher's desk -- these constituted the room's furnishings. (p. 50)

The physical elevation of the teacher (on the dais) was only the beginning of a schism between himself and his class, which grew wider as the recitation proceeded. 'Today we gonna discuss the relationship that exists between the school and the community. If you have read pages 8 to 13, you oughts to know your lesson.' (This to a group of larger pupils. The remainder of the class studied spelling, audibly). 'What did we say a community was?' A child read an answer from a grimy sheet of paper. The answer was unsatisfactory to the teacher. 'Will anybody help her out?' No response. 'Well, a community is being interest in the same thing. If a community is what I say, then we are all citizens in a community. What is a citizen?' Another pupil read an answer from an equally grimy sheet of paper. 'Do the class agree?' No response. He then gave the answer (at variance with that of the pupil), that he would have the class accept - 'A person living in a community is a citizen. Take our shoes -- coming from foreign places -- but they help us, so they are members of our community.' (Pupils were slow to respond and timid in manner. They, like the teacher, showed no evidence of being able to think critically. The teacher moved on (alone) - 'Now, in a community we have organizations; some we join, and some we belong to without joining. Name some.' He finally elicited some response to his question. The home and neighborhood were mentioned as organizations to which one belongs without joining; Boy Scouts and baseball teams as the other type. The pupils expressed themselves in muffled monosyllables.

'Awright, what relationship exists between a school and a citizen?' No response. The teacher read aloud at length from a textbook to answer this question. (pp. 50-51)

The above schools are two dreary examples of a vicious circle in which the child leaves a home setting of cultural backwardness to attend a school that is only another facet of this setting. He receives instruction from a teacher who comes from the same level of incompetence and returns home without having glimpsed very far beyond the folk pattern which conditions his behavior and his thinking. The one- and two-teacher rural schools, as they exist in the main, appear to mitigate only slightly the cultural retardation of the rural youth. (p. 51)

7.

One of the most acute problems confronting the teacher in the one and two-teacher school is that of irregular attendance, and it is closely related to inadequate clothing, bad weather, and pupils being kept at home to work. In the autumn months, too, at the beginning of the school year, attendance is poor because pupils must assist in the harvesting of the crops. Sometimes the child attends school in the morning but is kept at home in the afternoon.

In one parish pupils failed to attend regularly because it was necessary to cross a river in an old and leaky boat. The teacher explained, 'We have to bale water out all the way across. The superintendent has promised to send the lumber out here so the people can build a new boat, but he hasn't done it yet.'

There seems little that the teacher can do to solve the problem of irregular attendance, since she cannot change the weather, or build roads, or buy clothes for the children. (p. 56)

8.

The principal criticisms offered by the teachers of the functioning of the textbook system were the inadequacy of the numbers of textbooks and the impractical (for Negro children) nature of the content. In only a few schools was there a text for each child. One teacher stated, 'They are not enough and are too differcult.' Several teachers lamented the fact that the texts gave no attention to the achievements of the Negro. A few observed that the white pupils used the books first, and then passed them on to the Negroes. Others, that the white pupils had a sufficient number of books, but that the Negroes did not." (p. 57)

"Inside the school the first impression was of the great pupil density (children were packed closely together in seats), and the confusion. There was constant shifting about among the pupils in an effort to have all pupils receive some of the warmth from the small iron stove at the rear. There was much talking and giggling, some fighting. The teacher, a tall, portly woman, was nervous, tense, and harassed. Her greeting to the visitors was: "You'll have some pages to write up from this mess."

Sixty pupils were huddled uncomfortably on a number of long hard benches that would normally accommodate about thirty. There was no ventilation except for the gusty draughts of air that came through the open cracks in the walls and floors." (p. 57)

"The teacher passed out two half-sheets of paper to each pupil, with the admonition, 'It's got to do you all day, so be careful with it.' To the visitor, 'We don't have no pencils; we don't have no books; we don't have anything.' " (p.58)

11.

"The reading lessons -- grades 1-4 -- were conducted in this fashion: The teacher read a single line and then, after her, the children chorused the line. Thence to the next, and so on until the lesson was completed. She taught with a long switch in her hand, which she used lightly at intervals to prompt her pupils. The presence of the switch seemed to incite no fear to the pupils. Like the majority of other teachers in one and two-teacher schools she had no conception of enlightened classroom procedures, or of progressive methods and made no pretense of using them. She had no time for taking into account individual differences, or inclusion of students in the planning or evaluation of the work; or trying any experiments in classroom teaching. In this respect she was like the majority.

The teaching of reading in these schools generally in confined simply to the reading of words from textbook. Little or nothing is done to broaden the vocabularies of the youth, or to stimulate the pupils' interest in reading. Most of the teachers did not understand the use of the term 'mechanics' of reading, nor of the terms 'formal school exercise,' or 'functional skill.' One teacher explained that she provided for reading readiness in the first grade 'by giving the children a wealth of reading materials.'

As in reading, so in social studies. No attempt was made by most of the teachers to correlate this area with the solution of actual life problems. Instruction here was usually limited to the discussion of a few historical events. There is little time for extra-curricular activities, confronted as they are with the problems of handling many grades and many subjects, of preparing or supervising the preparation of the free lunches and, in many instances, of securing heat for their buildings." (pp. 58-59)

12.

"The dilapidated condition of the schools is mute evidence of the fact that few repairs are made on them by the school board. In one hundred schools the only repairs made were as follows:

1. A screen door (Paid for by the P.T.A.)
2. A covering (Paid for by the church members)
3. Toilets and steps (Paid for by the church members)
4. A kitchenette (Paid for by the school board)
5. Windows (Paid for by the school board)
6. A stove pipe and a well (Paid for by the P.T.A.)
7. A new faucet (Paid for by the P.T.A.)

A new school was erected in one district, and the seven items of repair occurred in seven schools." (p. 60)

13.

"The Training schools are in one respect consolidated schools insofar as they are expected to draw their pupils from over a fairly wide area. It seems impossible to locate these schools in such a manner that a considerable number of pupils may reach them without traveling long distances, sometimes as much as thirty miles. This is directly in conflict with the present practice of restricting free transportation for Negro schools. In only one of the parishes covered in this study was any free transportation provided in the Parish for Negro pupils. The exception was the free bus transportation provided in Washington Parish for the training school in Franklinton and to the city school in Bogalusa. In all the others the story of hardships or inability to attend schools because of distance was repeated. Occasionally students were able to hitch-hike for parts of the distance, but in the main, difficulties in getting to schools from rural sections were enormous. A few students used private automobiles. Accidents were reported involving injury to pupils on the highways. Parents have been more seriously concerned about this problem of the inability of their children to get to schools because of distance than about any other." (p. 65)

14.

"In all cases the buildings of the training school were standard types. That many of them were old and run down was quite evident. Some had two stories while others had one. A few of them were constructed of brick, but most of them were frame structures. In most schools there was more than one building. Schools tended, on the whole, to be so small in proportion to the number of pupils to be accommodated that their inadequacy in space seriously restricted the work expected of both teachers and students.

In one school, with an enrollment of 1,111 pupils, the students were so crowded it was necessary to conduct classes in the auditorium every period in the day. Students were seated in the balcony and on the main floor. On this floor a part of the auditorium was partitioned off, thus adding another classroom. The library of this school was located in the lavatory. This was not an abandoned toilet, but one in use every day by the men teachers. Although it is somewhat large, it has been used for years as the teachers' lavatory. While the over-crowded conditions in other schools are not quite as acute, they are sufficiently serious to point strongly to the necessity for additional space to relieve the severely cramped conditions of the teachers and students." (p. 67)

15.

"The financing of Negro school construction often runs counter to local white sentiment and those superintendents who would like to improve the Negro schools find themselves seriously handicapped in their efforts to secure appropriations. It is easier to abandon the effort, or restrain the desire, than to arouse the opposition of the parish school board, which in the end might result in the superintendent's losing his position." (p. 69)

16.

"A great variety of subjects is taught, counting all Negro Training and high schools together: but in any one school the variety is very small....In fact a bare minimum of subjects if the rule. For example, only a few high schools in the state offer chemistry, because of the lack of laboratory equipment. The subjects offered are, in fact so limited that in most schools there are few or no electives." (p. 75)

17.

"Free textbooks are provided by the state as in the elementary schools. The superintendent of schools, acting on the authority of the local school board, in the parish, is responsible for their distribution. No uniform policy in the distribution of these books could be discerned in the Negro schools. One principal said:

Five or six years after new textbooks are introduced in the white schools they get to the colored schools.

...From observation and the reports of teachers the Negro schools more often got the old or re-conditioned books from white schools, than they got new ones." (p. 76)

18.

"The secondary school teachers have full schedules and large classes. Only 8.7 per cent of them had classes of less than 35 students, and 57 per cent had classes of 55 students or more. This congestion of schedule and students undoubtedly influences unfavorably the quality of teaching. Such large classes limit individualized instruction.

The conventional teaching methods were employed generally in all of the secondary schools, with occasional exceptions in the case of individual teachers. Many of the teachers used terms from the context of progressive education, but little of the actual method was used. The equipment deficiencies, size of classes and crowded schedules made good teaching by old or new methods very difficult. Many of the teachers did not comprehend the problem-solving method of teaching and did not like it or in fact, any innovation." (p. 88)

19.

"The excessively low salary scale for Negro teachers helps to explain the quality of a large number of the teachers and their work. The rural schools in particular are unattractive to teachers of superior qualifications. In neither urban nor rural areas is it possible to maintain a reasonable level of living without supplementing the teaching salary with other resources. This helps to explain the large number of married Negro teachers. In four of the small schools visited the teachers were absent on maternity leave. Many of the regular teachers find it necessary to carry other employment such as farming, hair dressing, domestic or personal service, canvassing preaching, and other means of bringing their earnings up to a living level. This situation favors the older teachers with less adequate educational qualifications but who are willing to adjust themselves to the circumstances. The result is an unusually low quality of instruction. The superior graduates of the colleges, and particularly the men, move on to better paying jobs in or out of the state." (pp. 97-98)

20.

"The inadequacy of teaching is not due entirely to the teacher. Lack of equipment, insufficient textbooks, and little or no library facilities contribute largely to the result of schooling which misleads rather than educates." (p. 110)

21.

"Few teachers who are professionally prepared to teach according to accepted modern standards can be employed at the low salaries afforded by the state of Louisiana. It is a vicious circle. Teachers with a fair foundation already employed cannot afford on their meager salaries to keep abreast of current trends and newer methods, as they could if they were able to attend summer school.

Overwhelmed as they are with overcrowded classes, and no facilities or equipment, they have no time for experimenting nor for employing any techniques save the old ones by which they themselves were taught.

They have little supervision. Some of the superintendents are indifferent, most lack the staff necessary to proper supervision, and some definitely discourage the kind of learning pupils need....In spite of oversized classes; over-loaded teaching schedules; lack of equipment, unattractive buildings, grounds, and classrooms; lack of sufficient money to maintain decent living standards, many teachers are struggling to improve learning conditions." EXPLANATORY NOTE

The data contained in the accompanying Tables illustrate the comparative quality of white and Negro public education in Sumter County, Alabama, from 1900 through 1960. Sources of all data are the Annual Reports of the Alabama Department of Education.

The Tables present information by five-year intervals. Wherever appropriate, data pertaining to elementary and high schools are listed in separate columns. As to Annual Reports which did not so differentiate, the aggregate (or average) figure is centered in a column between the elementary and high school columns. Certain categories of data were not reported in some of the Annual Reports; these omissions are indicated by two dashes (--). An asterisk (*) indicates that data for the particular category and year were not differentiated by race. All data are presented as they appear in the Annual Reports, except computations which are based on reported data. Such computations are indicated by a "(c)" in the Appendices.

This case was filed in September, 1958. The district court dismissed the action (April 16, 1959) on the grounds that Congress had exceeded its scope of authority by providing for civil rights actions in the 1957 Act against "private" individuals. The decision of the district court was appealed directly to the United States Supreme Court where it was reversed. The Court held that it was erroneous to dismiss the complaint on the grounds that the Act might apply to private individuals because that question was not before the court. The complaint was against state officials acting in their official capacity, and as such, was clearly pursuant to a constitutional exercise of Congressional power under the 15th Amendment.

A hearing on the merits was held June 27-July 1, 1960. The government proved a strong case of discrimination including the rejection of 2 Negroes with master's degrees, 5 with bachelor degrees, 1 Negro with a year of college, 5 school teachers, and a county agent.

On September 13, 1960, findings and decree were entered. Both were favorable to the government. Although the court declined to make a finding of a pattern and practice of discrimination, the court enjoined the defendants "...from engaging in any acts or practices which involve or result in distinction on the basis of race or color...", including (a) the use of differently colored registration forms for white and Negro voters, (b) the keeping of separate registration records by race, (c) the delaying action upon applications by Negroes while not delaying for whites, (d) requiring more difficult sections from the state or federal constitutions for Negroes to read and copy than whites, (e) requiring Negroes to read aloud and write from dictation while not so requiring of whites, (f) administering literacy tests to Negro applicants singly and apart from white applicants while administering such tests to white applicants in groups, (g) and requiring a higher standard of literacy of Negroes than of white applicants in passing upon the results of the literacy tests.

More broadly, the court enjoined the administration of qualifying examinations to Negroes in any way different from the manner in which those tests are administered to other applicants, and granted freezing relief.

The court also ordered 4 Negroes put on the rolls, and retained jurisdiction for the purpose of making any and all additional orders as might become necessary.

SNCC has worked in Terrell County since December, 1961. Up until the end of the summer, 1962, registration proceeded very slowly and workers were restricted by intimidation. Following the filing of a 1971(b) case, U.S. v. Mathews in August, 1962, registration increased.

In 1963, registration workers' home was shot into. Investigation followed, but produced no subject.

Consent judgment entered in U.S. v. Mathews on January 27, 1964, against 15 of the 16 defendants; remaining defendants dismissed. Board of Registrars has applied standards fairly and equally since January, 1964.

This case was first filed in February, 1959. It was dismissed by Judge Johnson in March 1959 on the grounds that there was no functioning board of registrars, that registrars have the right to resign and we could not then hold them as defendants. This decision was remanded by the Supreme Court. In the interim, the 1960 Civil Rights Act was passed, which provided for including the state as a defendant.

The case was tried in February, 1961 and a decree was entered in March of that year. The decree required the board to place 64 previously-rejected Negroes on the rolls, to issue priority numbers to Negro applicants, and to have a systematized procedure for processing the applications. Furthermore, the practice of limiting the number of applicants for whom a supporting witness may vouch was enjoined and a detailed system of reports by the board to the court was required. The court permitted the board to require applicants to read and write "a portion of the Constitution not to exceed 50 words."

The decree's requirement that the board register the specific Negroes was appealed by the defendants. The Court of Appeals upheld the lower court's order in ruling that the broad language of the 1960 Act indicated that Congress meant to grant effective tools to furnish the Court with the means for the effective enforcement of the protection of the franchise.

On September 13, 1961, a supplemental decree was issued. This order enjoined the board from rejecting, for technical errors, Negroes who would qualify under standards applied to white applicants since 1957, and from using a different or more stringent application form than was used prior to March 17, 1961.

Costs in the amount of $1,533.36 taxed and collected July 10, 1962. Parties by stipulation entered into July 25, 1963 agreed to suspend the reporting provisions. Photo-traphing put on a quarterly rather than on a monthly basis.

In August 1963 the Sheriff of Macon County hired a Negro deputy.

On January 7, 1965 contempt proceedings against the board will be heard in Montgomery. The Department is contending: (a) that the board has continued to reject qualified Negroes for technical errors and has not followed standards previously applied to whites; and (b) has adopted a different and more difficult application form by utilizing the forms promulgated by the Alabama Supreme Court in 1964. The Government's brief is due January 25, 1965; the defendants' on January 30, 1965.

In September 1963 the school board, pursuant to an order of the District Court, accepted 13 applications of Negro students to the white Tuskegee High School. The whites organized a complete boycott of the school and it was forced to close down in February 1964. In September 1964 it was reopened with 148 students, including 14 Negroes. Since then more white students have returned and as of December 7, 1964, the school has 198 white pupils.

The 1964 election saw two Negroes elected to the five member Tuskegee City Council, two Negroes elected as County Justices of the Peace, and one Negro elected to serve on the Macon County Board of Revenue.

REGISTRATION PROGRESS

Between February and June 1959 the Citizens Council of Washington Parish challenged the registration status of 1,377 Negro voters (or about 85% of the 1,517 Negroes registered before the purge) and only 10 white voters (or about 0.07% of the 12,228 white persons then registered). At least 50% of the unchallenged applications of white persons had the same deficiencies upon which the challenges were based. Preliminary injunction granted January 11, 1960, ordering the registrar to restore to the registration rolls the names of the 1,377 Negroes purged therefrom. Since that time the registration of Negroes has proceeded very slowly with the result that total Negro registration has decreased slightly.

The Department has not followed up on this county. Attorneys for the Department did make a gross inspection of the records when the registrar's deposition was taken in U.S. v. Board (1/28/64) and reported that registrar was using application card as a test for Negroes only but that standards were not impossibly high. Records will have to be rechecked carefully and interviews conducted to determine reasons for lack of Negro effort and extent of discrimination.

During a primary election to select candidates for local offices in August of 1959, the County Democratic Executive Committee excluded Negroes from voting by placing notices in each ballot box to the effect that the election was for white Democrats only. Registered Negroes who attempted to vote in the election were so advised.

Because the primary was neither required nor governed explicitly by state law, the party could abandon the primary and choose candidates by convention or simple appointment by the Executive Committee. Therefore, the consent decree, entered on April 25, 1960, provides that Negroes shall not be excluded from any election or selection process. Registered Negroes voted freely in the August 1963 primary election.

The registration figures are based on estimates. It may be that only about 2,000 Negroes are actually registered. A careful count should be made.

The Court ordered the registrar to restore five hundred and seventy Negroes to rolls and to cease discrimination in future. Court found a pattern and practice of discrimination. Costs taxed $3,370. No success at collection to date. Around four hundred and twenty Negroes restored to rolls. Remainder have moved, died or not responded. Registrar has been difficult on proof of residence, reading and writing from dictation and oral interpretation of Louisiana Bill of Rights. Under new procedures instituted in August 1962, the interpretation test was discontinued and the multiple choice citizenship test added. Local Negro voter registration group has not been very successful in trying to get people to register. No applications to Court have yet been filed under 1971(e). Parish included under decree of U.S. v. Louisiana forbidding use of any new test, including multiple choice citizenship test.

Records filed in U.S. v. Louisiana for the period September 1 through October 3, 1964, reflected that 1) high percentage of Negro applicants rejected 2) Negroes with good handwriting rejected. The Attorney General of Louisiana had instructed registrars to have applicants complete a form themselves as a means of complying with the court's order as to reporting registration progress on a monthly basis. On the basis of this, interview in November 1964. Interview reflected that Negroes with high school educations were rejected.

Thereafter in December 1964, records were inspected and photographed. These showed that some of the persons interviewed had been rejected for technical errors on their application cards. Inspection also showed that white cards contained very few errors. Statistical record shows 50% of the Negroes, and 5% of whites have been rejected since the trial. Affidavits of Negroes are being obtained and a white investigation is in preparation.

Facts collected to date seem to justify filing of a contempt action without further investigation. In 1954 the registrar had checked on the cards of rejected Negro applicants technical errors such as "My color is Negro," "My occupation is Welfare" and slight spelling errors. Inspection of the white accepted cards shows changes and corrections which in other parishes have been indicative of assistance by the registrar.

On March 30, 1961 the day trial ended, four Negroes were registered. The Court deferred decision to test the good faith of the Board. The Board continued to discriminate and further hearings were held in September, 1961, at the government's request. On September 13, 1961 the Court made a finding of a pattern and practice and granted permanent injunction.

The decree enjoined the Board from discriminating against Negroes; from enforcing any limitation on the number of times a person may serve as supporting witness; from applying different standards for Negro applicants than those applied to other applicants from 1954 to 1961, from rejecting Negro applicants for formal or inconsequential errors or from using a form of application or questionnaire different from or more stringent than that used for persons prior to March 30, 1961. Procedures were prescribed for maintaining an orderly form of priority lists. The United States was given authority to inspect the records at reasonable times and was ordered to assist the court in determining whether the decree was being complied with. Costs were assessed and collected in the amount of $986.53.

On July 26, 1962, following another hearing at the request of the Department of Justice, the court issued a supplemental order setting up specific standards which the registrar must use in administering registration in Bullock County. The registrar was ordered to register everyone who met the residence requirements; was not disqualified by reason of conviction of a crime; was willing to sign the oath and could read and write.

The Court stated that it was the Board's duty to ascertain from the applicant whether he met these requirements and directed them to resolve any questions, if questions arose, of an applicant's qualifications. Furthermore, it was the Board's duty to affirmatively administer the oath, and to judge literacy on the basis of the applicant's responsiveness to the questions on the application form.

Following this decree registration continued to pick up and in 1963 four Negroes were hired by the Highway Commission as truck drivers.

In February 1964 the State Supreme Court ordered the registrars to use a different type of registration form which included a relatively easy test and a requirement that the applicant write from dictation an excerpt from the Constitution. The Division decided not to challenge this as a violation of the court order, at least until there was some experience based on its use.

In September the Supreme Court adopted a new very difficult test which included an objective test on citizenship and an understanding test based on reading carefully. On November 13, the Government filed an order to show cause seeking to hold the registrar in contempt for using a different and more stringent application form than had been used during the period of discrimination prior to the Court's initial order. This hearing is set for January 5, 1965. Trial preparation reflects that the Board is not using the new insert in the way contemplated by the State but rather is giving the test and using the result as an aid in making a subjective judgement on literacy. All whites have been registered. One third of Negroes have failed.

The defendants will urge that the injunction has been in effect long enough to have given Negroes in Bullock County a fair opportunity to register under the lower standards and that the freeze should be lifted.

The rate of registration efforts has fallen off considerably in the last year. This is probably due to the low literacy level of the Negro community.

On the whole, progress in the County has been good. The Negro leaders have a great amount of self-respect and the 12th grade of the High School was desegregated by three pupils in September, 1964, without incident. One of the Negro students rode the white school bus from her home 10 miles in the country from the first day without difficulty.

Between 1952 and 1960 the Board of Registrars registered 4,420 white persons while registering only 88 Negroes. Seventy-four of these 88 Negroes were registered prior to May 18, 1954. Case tried on Merits May 2-4, 1962. Between the filing of the complaint and the date of the trial 70 Negroes were accepted and 45 were rejected.

The Government called about 40 witnesses -- 125 under subpoena and proved a pattern and practice of racial discrimination by prior Boards between 1952 and 1961. Contested issue was conduct of present Board activated after suit filed and whether the present Board bound by standard applied by former Boards in registering whites.

November 10, 1962, Judge Thomas held (210 F. Supp. 441) that the Government proved discrimination against the old Board and denied the Government's request to enjoin the new Board from future discrimination, our request for a finding of a pattern and practice of discrimination, and our request for an order requiring the Board to register specific Negroes. Notice of appeal filed on January 9, 1963. Oral argument held before Judge Rives, Judge Cameron (Fifth Cir.) and Judge Hays (Second Circuit) on June 4, 1963. On September 30, 1963, Court of Appeals (323 F. 2d 733) reversed the decision of the lower court and instructed District Court to issue a specific injunction.

On November 1, 1963, the District Court issued a permanent injunction against the Board of Registrars of Dallas County. Injunction directed Board to cease discriminating and specifically to cease rejecting applicants for errors or omissions in the questionnaire when other answers or information reveals that the applicant is qualified; to cease using the questionnaire as a test unless the registrars present to the court and propose to use a definite set of standards for the grading of questionnaire which standards are acceptable to the court as complying with federal law. The Board was also forbidden to ask oral questions unless the questions complied with state and federal law and unless records were kept. The Board was also directed to cease rejecting applicants for lack of good character without notice and opportunity for hearing. Finally the Board was ordered to keep records of the exact reasons for the rejections and to advise the applicant as to the specific reason for his rejection. The district court refused to tax costs against the defendants or to order the defendants to report to the court monthly on registration progress. The opinion was disappointing in that the court declined to apply the freezing principle to this particular Board of Registrars and indicated that the Government could better purge the whites. Opinion is not helpful in counties where Boards of Registrars are determined to frustrate federal law. On October 29, 1963, the Government filed an order to show cause why the registrars of Dallas County should not be required to speed up the registration process. The Court declined to sign the order.

The Board's records since the May 1962 trial were photographed on November 27 and 29, 1963. These records revealed that, between May 1962 and November 18, 1963, 89% of the 500 Negroes who applied for registration were rejected; 24% of the 752 whites were rejected. The Board's pre-May 1962 rejection rate had doubled. On March 6, 1964, the government filed a notice of motion and motion for an order requiring the defendants to observe specific requirements, to register certain applicants, and for a finding of a pattern and practice of discrimination. The motion was set to be heard on March 30, 1964, but, on March 23, 1964, was continued at the government's request. On September 2, 1964, the case was set for hearing beginning October 5, 1964.

The government, under Rule 34, photographed the Board's records on March 19-20, 1964 and on September 23, 1964. The parties, at the commencement of the hearing on October 5, 1964, agreed that the hearing not only covered the government's motion but was also a contempt proceeding. The hearing was held on October 5 through 8, 1964 and on November 12, 1964. The government subpoenaed 78 witnesses, of whom 56 testified. The evidence showed that the Board had violated the court's injunction by using the form as a test without court-approved standards, by failing to notify applicants of the exact reasons for their rejection, by requiring applicants to answer difficult and unreasonable questions (e.g. requiring them to interpret the Ninth Amendment to the Constitution) that violate state and federal law, and by discriminating against Negroes. The discrimination consisted of denying registration to qualified Negroes, discrimination in the selection and grading of questions, aiding white but not Negro applicants, slowing down the receipt of applications for registration, and freezing registration by the adoption of unreasonably high standards. The evidence also showed violations of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 -- the use of standards, practices, and procedures not previously applied to white persons, the use of questions unrelated to the applicant's qualifications, and the use of literacy tests not wholly in writing. The evidence also showed the Board to have increased the difficulty of the state registration test used between February 1964 and September 1964 by requiring the applicants to spell difficult words from the Constitution and by requiring them to explain an excerpt from the Constitution.

The case included the government's first attack on the new set of 100 inserts to the application form. The government's brief was submitted on November 20, 1964. The defendant's reply December 3, 1964. Case submitted for decision.

Court made strong findings of fact; enjoined registrar from discriminating against Negroes in connection with proving their identity when they go to register. Court also enjoined registrar from engaging in any other acts or practices which result in racial discrimination and found a pattern or practice. The court also required the registrar to report monthly on registration progress. Costs of U.S. v. Manning were assessed against the registrar but not the State and nothing has been collected.

On June 13, 1962, the Department received reports that Negroes who tried to register could not locate the registrar and he was doging them. On June 14, the registrar resigned on the stated ground that he could not understand the decree.

A congressional primary election was scheduled for July 28. On June 19, 1962, 44 Negroes applied by letter to the court to be registered under the provisions of the 1960 Civil Rights Act. On June 20, the State of Louisiana filed notice of appeal and the court granted stay of the injunction. The ground for the stay was that the court could not find a referee; that it was physically impossible for him to process the applicants because he was tied up in court and was assigned to sit in Jacksonville in July. On June 22, the Government applied to the Circuit Court of Appeals to dissolve the stay. Hearing held June 25. Stay lifted July 3, 1962. Shortly thereafter 34 additional Negroes applied to be registered by the court. On the 12th day of July the court found 26 of the 53 Negroes who appeared qualified and directed that defendants show cause on the 23rd day of July why these 26 should not be registered. On July 19 a state court issued a Temporary Restraining Order against district judge forbidding him to issue the registration certificates to any of the 26 Negroes. July 23 the action was removed by the federal court and the Temporary Restraining Order dissolved. July 24 the state's plea of unconstitutionality of the 1960 Civil Rights Act was heard and denied. Government also obtained preliminary injunction against state officials from interfering with the federal court in the case of U.S. v. Manning. After hearing by the court it was determined that 26 of the Negroes were qualified, 25 of whom affiliated with the Democratic Party and voted on July 28.

Since the election, 17 of 26 additional applicants have been found qualified by the court and issued certificates. Although those holding certificates have been allowed to vote, they are not counted as registered voters in the statistics of the State Board of Registration. The Court cited Manning for contempt, but prior to the hearing on the citation for contempt (August 22, 1962) and at the suggestion of Judge Dawkins, Manning agreed to accept reappointment as registrar. Judge Dawkins then held the question of contempt to be moot and Manning resumed office.

In February 1963 the three-judge court which upheld the constitutionality of the referee provisions of the 1960 Act issued a comprehensive opinion. In it the court stated, "Discrimination by a registrar is especially harmful because it is the most effective method of denying the right to vote; it denies the right to vote before an individual has the chance to exercise it and it bars not only the individual concerned from all elections but inhibits other qualified voters from running the gauntlet of discrimination and humiliating practices by a registrar."

Negro registration is moving very slowly. Although June 1964 interviews show that some Negroes with eighth and ninth grade educations are being rejected, the general quality of the Negro rejects is not particularly high. This determination was made by an inspection of the records through 6/23/64. This parish suffers from low literacy of Negroes with the result that they do make errors in the application form. The solution to this is the elimination of the application form as a test (now challenged in U.S. v. Board) and an increased registration effort by Negroes. Thirty-three applications were filed by Negroes (14 accepted, 19 rejected) in the month before the books closed for the Presidential election.

Interviews with Negroes in November and December 1964 indicate that without the impetus provided by an election of great interest, few Negroes will attempt to register. The registrar has been enjoined from using the citizenship test by the decree in U.S. v. Louisiana. There is some evidence that he has been giving it to applicants but not grading it.

*In addition to the above, 17 Negroes and 17 white persons had pending applications on 9/5/64 but had not returned to sign the registration book. All the rejected Negro and white applicants were rejected by former registrar Ramsey. Mrs. Harris, the new registrar, has accepted all applicants during her incumbency.

After hearings on preliminary motions Government inspected records in July 1962 and defendants answered. Originally set for trial December 17, 1962. Postponed until December 26, 1962, in Meridian, Mississippi. Case very strong; government called several highly qualified Negroes, including school principal, and remarkable group of illiterate and semi-literate white registrants. Proof strong that Negro applicants were sent home to "think" it over and not allowed to apply, while white persons registered by "signing the book" for themselves and spouses without any test. On February 5, 1963, District Court decided case for Government and found massive irregularities in the registration of whites and discrimination against Negroes, but found that there was no pattern or practice of discrimination. Injunction entered against the registrar restraining him from discrimination against Negroes. Court also indicated that local officials should purge the books of illegally registered whites. Court refused to order registrar to "violate the law" by registering Negro citizens in the same manner that whites had been registered in the past. Costs taxed in the amount of $1,377 but have not been paid.

Government filed notice of appeal on April 1, 1963, because of the refusal to find a pattern and practice of discrimination which would trigger the 1960 Civil Rights Act and because of the Court's denial of freezing relief.

The appeal was heard on December 4, 1963. An affidavit was filed by the defendants with the Court of Appeals on December 4, 1963; which stated that from January 1, 1963, to November 3, 1963, there were 183 white applicants and 63 Negro applicants of which 174 whites were registered and 42 of the Negroes were registered. An affidavit was also filed by the Board of Election Commissioners which stated that they had removed from the registration rolls 21 witnesses who testified at the trial whose testimony indicated they were improperly registered. This included 16 white witnesses and 5 Negroes. The proof showed that the 5 Negroes were placed on the registration rolls for jury service purposes only.

On February 20, 1964, the United States Court of Appeals modified the District Court's ruling to require the Registrar to make periodic reports and, as modified, affirmed Judge Cox's order, specifically approving the denial of freezing relief. Judge Rives dissenting. The United States moved for a rehearing en banc, and on April 23, 1964, the panel which had heard the appeal (minus Judge Cameron, who had died) held, on rehearing, that Judge Cox's finding that there was no pattern or practice of discrimination was "clearly erroneous" and remanded the case to Judge Cox in the light of that finding.

On September 4, 1964, the Government moved to implement the mandate and to grant freezing relief. After oral argument was had and briefs were filed, Judge Cox, on December 1, 1964, withdrew his finding of no pattern and practice and substituted therefore a finding that justice would best be served by making no finding whether or not there was a pattern or practice of discrimination. He again denied "freezing" relief but amended his order to provide for limited monthly reports by the registrar, for specific facts with respect to rejected Negroes. No comparable requirement was made for accepted Negroes or white persons, accepted or rejected.

Appeal, on an expedited basis, has been recommended 12/28/64 from Judge Cox's failure to find a pattern or practice and from his second denial of freezing relief.

Prior to April, 1962 only 14 Negroes registered in the County; all became registered prior to the adoption of the Constitutional interpretation test in 1954 (One Negro, mistaken for a white person, registered in 1955 and two Negroes transferred their registration from another Mississippi County early in 1962) After Court refused to rule on preliminary injunction in March 1962 the Court of Appeals issued an injunction pending appeal. On May 1, 1962 the Court of Appeals cited the registrar for contempt of that injunction. The contempt action was tried in Hattiesburg beginning September 17, 1962 before three Court of Appeals judges. Contempt matter submitted on January 25, 1963. On July 15, 1963 the Court of Appeals found Lynd in civil contempt and ordered him to register 43 Negroes immediately; also directed Lynd to agree not to use examination form as an obstacle course and to use only 13 sections of the Mississippi Constitution to determine an applicant's qualifications under the interpretation test. Criminal contempt proceedings stayed until Supreme Court decides Barnett case. Stay of the civil contempt order granted until August 25 to enable Lynd to apply for stay from the Supreme Court.

By first primary on August 6 some of the 43 Negroes had been registered by Lynd but names had not been placed on poll books and those who had two poll tax receipts were refused the right to vote. The stay applied for in the Supreme Court was denied on September 20, 1963. The Government has taxed costs in the amount of $5,856.00 in the contempt case. On January 6, 1964 Supreme Court denied the defendant's petition for certiorari.

Records had been rephotographed September 24, and 25, 1963 and preliminary analysis showed that Lynd had continued to reject applicants for inconsequential omissions from the time of the trial of the contempt case until the Court of Appeals Order on July 15, 1963. Since July 15, 1963 preliminary analysis indicated strict standards both on the interpretation test and the duties and obligations test. Records rephotographed again on January 11, 1964, and thereafter in the month of January attorneys for the Government had several conferences with the defendants about registering 23 previously rejected Negroes. Lynd agreed to register ten of the 23 previously rejected Negroes. He also agreed to let five of the 23 return to the courthouse to correct the basis for his earlier rejection on their original forms. At least two of these five persons were required to complete a new form when they returned to do so. Lynd refused to register the remaining eight Negroes.

Hearing on merits of 1971(a) case held in Hattiesburg on April 14, 15 and 17, 1964. Records brought down almost to the date of trial for introduction into evidence. At the same time on April 15, the Government filed with the Court of Appeals a petition for further orders to compel compliance.

In the petition we specified the means of continued discrimination and the names of 154 Negroes who we thought should be registered. Government's brief and findings of fact filed May 28, 1964. Defendants brief filed in June. Oral argument held before Judge Cox on July 31, 1964. Post trial records inspected and photographed July 20, 1964. These records reflected a continued course of rejection of qualified Negroes through mid-June. By August 28, 1964 the Court of Appeals had not acted on our April 15, 1964 petition. On that day we sent a supplemental petition attaching the names of 275 Negroes who we thought should be registered. On September 12, 1964 the defendant responded to this petition contending that the Court of Appeals should let Judge Cox decide the case. On October 7, 1964 we wrote the Court of Appeals asking for a hearing on our petition. To date there has been no action taken on these petitions.

Costs of $4,523.84 paid on August 17, 1964. Newspaper publication lists indicate Negroes still applying as of November. On November 6 Judge Cox wrote Government stating that application forms not legible and requested substitutes. On November 26 these substitute application forms were furnished to the Court.

The depositions of the Attorney General, the Assistant Attorney General, and Frank Dunbaugh were taken November 1962 in Washington by attorney for the Citizens Council. Motion for summary judgment as to the Citizens Council was denied. The motion of one of the individual defendants for summary judgment was granted. The case against a number of individual defendants was dismissed on the motion of the United States. We obtained a Rule 34 order from the Court to copy additional records in the Parish. The order was granted and the Government commenced photographing on March 29, 1963. Records analyzed. Records show a continuing pattern of discrimination. Defendant Lucky filed motion for summary judgment May 29, 1963. Hearing held and denied November 13, 1963. Records rephotographed December 12, 1963. In preparation for trial, the following control cards were typed: 28,000 accepted whites; 650 rejected whites; 8,000 whites removed from the registration rolls; 1,200 accepted Negroes; 1,200 rejected Negroes; 4,600 Negroes removed from the rolls; 900 affidavits of retention of Negroes; about 700 names of Negroes appearing on list in the registrar's files; and 900 returned envelopes.

While analyzing the records concerning the purge of thousands of Negroes from the rolls in 1956 by the Registrar and the Citizens Council, it was discovered the Registrar had also purged Negroes from the rolls between 1957 and 1961 for age computation errors on their application cards and for having allegedly incorrect addresses on their application cards. Many Negroes were on and off the rolls from three to five times during this period. In order to reconstruct a history of registration in Ouachita Parish from 1949 to the time of trial, two master alphabetical files of control cards were made, one for Negroes and one for whites. A control card for each registration experience for each person was placed in the file. These included accepted, rejected and purged cards; letters of challenge; affidavits of retention; returned envelopes; newspaper lists and registrar's scratch lists. From the completed file, it was possible to determine, for example, that an individual registered in 1949, was purged by the Citizens Council in 1956, retained on the rolls, purged again by the registrar in 1957, rejected when re-applying, accepted, purged a third time by the registrar in 1958, accepted, purged again in 1959, and accepted again. The control card file was used both as a means of relating witnesses for the trial and to construct a table appended to the Trial Brief showing the 185 worst experiences of Negro applicants. In addition, telephone directories and city directories for the years 1956 through 1961 were checked to determine that when the registrar had purged some Negroes for allegedly incorrect addresses, they had in fact listed their correct addresses.

Since white persons had also been purged from the rolls in 1956, it was necessary to analyze all the cards of persons who were not purged, as well as the cards of those that were, in order to determine that the registrar had used more stringent standards in purging Negroes than he had in purging whites. From this analysis, it was determined that over 4,000 white persons had remained on the rolls although their cards contained "errors" for which Negroes were purged. It was also necessary to check the age computations on 25,000 white accepted cards in order to show that when the registrar purged 20% of the Negro voters in 1959 for age computation errors, he ignored the cards of over 5,000 white persons who had made the same errors. This case was made even more complicated at the trial when the defendants tried to add 3,000 white persons who were removed from the rolls in 1955 for not voting to the number of white persons who were purged in 1956 and 1957 for errors on their cards. To support their contention the defendants introduced an exhibit compiled by a former deputy registrar. This exhibit contained the names of all the persons the defendants asserted had been removed from the rolls in 1956 and 1957 and the reasons for which they had been removed. In writing the trial brief, it was necessary to compare this exhibit to our control card files and newspaper lists in order to establish that 5,000 white persons had been removed from the rolls in 1956 for errors on their cards, rather than 10,000 as claimed by the defendants. The trial was held from February 10 through February 24, 1964. The Government called 83 Negro and white applicant witnesses. Among the Negro witnesses was a college professor, who has a Doctorate, was a Fulbright Scholar and who was rejected for an inconsequential error on her application card. Among the white witnesses were several who testified that they received help from the registrar in filling out their applications in October 1963. Negro applicants who were turned down for "errors" during the same month or later also testified. The trial judge refused to admit into evidence the deposition of the registrar and when it was reoffered under Rule 43(c), the court ordered Government counsel to physically remove the original deposition transcript from the court record. Trial transcript was filed June 16, 1964. The Government's brief was filed September 28, 1964. The defendants' brief was filed December 11, 1964. The Government's Reply Brief is due January 11, 1965.

Ouachita is one of the 21 parishes enjoined from using the citizenship test by the U.S. v. Louisiana decree. Negro registration increased from 1,285 to 1,746 between 1/1/64 and 10/3/64. The large number of Negro applicants is due mainly to an intense CORE drive carried on there this year.

Records inspected in July 1962. All applications destroyed prior to May 1962. Tried October 23 and 24, 1962 in Hattiesburg. On January 4, 1963 District Judge entered an interlocutory order in which the court deferred entry of final judgment and instructed the registrar as to his duty. Registrar instructed he should permit all Negroes who had registered prior to 1954 to re-register by merely demonstrating an ability to read and as to new applicants he should select for interpretation one of 50 sections of the Mississippi Constitution having some reasonable interest to citizens who are not lawyers. Court also directed registrar to report to him each month as to individuals who have been rejected. Decision made not to appeal in view of the interlocutory nature of the order and our desire to work matter out through district court if possible. Reporting provisions have been complied with and are helpful to us on rejections. In June 1963 we gave to the State Attorney General's office a list of Negroes who we thought we thought were improperly denied registration and the Assistant Attorney General agreed to look into the matter. No response. In late July 1963 the Government advised Court that if we got no satisfaction, we were going to move for permanent injunction. Application for order to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be issued and for an order permitting the Government to inspect and photograph records filed on September 27, 1963. Government photographed records on October 15, 1963.

Negroes who were rejected by Daniel interviewed throughout year. Interviews indicate that Daniel's still applying high literacy standards to Negroes, whether they are registrants or initial registrations. August FBI investigation of white standards netted very little, white persons very uncooperative.

One hundred ninety-seven reports setting out bases of rejecting Negro applicants filed with Clerk of Court as of late November 1964. Forty-four of these rejected Negroes completed forms, approximately 13 of which are persons who were registered prior to January 1, 1954, and who under state law and the terms of the Interlocutory Order should not have been required to do so.

Records photographed in Prentiss on November 26 and December 10, 1964. Race identification request sent out December 18, 1964. White standards FBI request being prepared. Trial date on permanent relief set for February 8, 1965. Latest records now being analyzed in preparation for trial. Preliminary analysis indicates some section selection and grading discrimination. White standards of course substantially higher now than in 1956 through 1962 period when nearly all whites in county re-registered or registered. Classic freeze case.

Case tried January 3 - 10, 1962. Case submitted on briefs May 7, 1962. On November 20, 1962 judge ordered Board of Registrars to place 1,140 Negroes on the rolls within 20 days. The Court enjoined Board from further discrimination and established the standards on which Negroes would be registered in the future. The Board was ordered to report periodically to the Court on the progress of the registration under the provisions of the injunction. Costs paid in the amount of $1,604. However, Court disallowed over $5,000 in costs for photocopies of registration records introduced in evidence. The Board continued to reject qualified Negro applicants for technical errors or omissions on their forms while assisting white applicants. On June 13, 1963 the Government filed a motion requesting the Court to order the defendants to register specific rejected Negro applicants and to issue an order appointing voting referees. A hearing on this motion was held on August 12, 1963 and continued. At the end of the August hearing the Court suggested that the Board change certain of its standards and procedures. The hearing was concluded on September 27, 1963 and briefs were submitted. On July 2, 1964 the Government filed a motion for an order amending the Decree to enjoin the use of the Insert Part III of a new application form which was promulgated by the Alabama Supreme Court on January 14, 1964. The Government contended that this new Insert was different and more stringent than the former application and questionnaire and its use to reject applicants was therefore in violation of the Court's Decree. The Government also requested the Court to order the defendants to register specific rejected Negro applicants. The hearing on this motion was held August 12, 1964. Briefs submitted.

On December 17, 1964 the District Court entered a supplemental order directing the registrars to register 229 Negroes and prohibiting the registrars from rejecting any applicant on the ground that he failed to complete satisfactorily any part of the Part III Insert in the application used in Montgomery County. The Part III Insert is the Insert that was used generally in Alabama between February and September 1964 and is much less difficult than the Insert now being used.

In its opinion the Court said that the Part III test as prescribed by the Supreme Court of Alabama and as used by the Montgomery County Board of Registrars since March 16, 1964 consists of qualifications different from and more stringent than those used in registering white persons between 1956 and January 1962. Such testing, by the use of questions on government, provides a new and different subject of examination and provides questions of different type not before used. The Board also used a reading test requiring the applicants to pronounce correctly words that were not on the old applications. Thus applicants were required to read and pronounce correctly such words as "delegated", "prohibited", "respectively", "construed", "apportioned", "enumeration", "ordain", and "affirmation". After July 2, 1964 the Board has required applicants to write by copying excerpts on the Part III form. The court held that the practice followed by the board up until July 2, 1964, of requiring applicants to write from dictation, had the inevitable effect of subjecting these applicants to technical * standards to which white applicants in the past had not been subjected. One court said that the statistical evidence standing alone proves that the new test is more difficult than any of the tests previously used by the Montgomery County Board.

With respect to the time that the injunction had been in effect the court said that the injunction issued in November 1962 had not corrected the effects of the past discriminatory use because of rejection of Negroes for inconsequential errors and omissions and because the new application form not only has been used as a means for continuing the rejection of qualified Negro applicants for technical and inconsequential errors and omissions, but had constituted a different and more stringent test than that used by the Board during the period when the standards were determined by this Court in its original opinion. Therefore the injunction as originally issued would remain in force and effect. In addition, the court held that Part III is a test more stringent than any of the white applicants of Montgomery County were subjected to during the initial period under consideration by the court. The court did say that part of the injunction prohibiting the use of different and more stringent standards might be eliminated after the pattern and practice of discrimination ceases and after a reasonable opportunity to register to vote is afforded all citizens without regard to race or color. The court held that the one year "suggested" period does not apply where, as here, the discrimination has continued to exist since the original finding of discrimination and the issuance of the original decree. In order to eliminate the effect of past discrimination against Negro applicants to register in Montgomery County, Alabama, there can be set no time limit until an adequate opportunity has been afforded those desiring to register.

Finally, this opinion seems to suggest that the registrars may use the Insert but may not grade it. Our position has been to the contrary. It has not been upheld to date.

After disposal of preliminary motions, records inspected on July 9, 1962. Case ready for trial in October 1962 but defendant obtained a continuance because of broken jaw. Case came on for trial April 8, 1963. The Government presented illiterate white applicants who had been registered and literate Negroes who had been denied the right to vote, including a graduate student at Harvard University. The registrar admitted he helped white applicants fill out forms but said that the Negroes never asked for help. The Harvard student was registered during the trial and became the third Negro to register to vote in the last thirty years. Government's trial brief filed April 26, 1963. Negro graduate student at Harvard voted at first primary without difficulty and night before election one local candidate solicited her vote. Since trial, Court on its own motion has written defendant and told him to remove 15 of the white witnesses from the books as they were not qualified to register. Records rephotographed September 1963 to bring evidence up to the date of trial. Court required Government to amend complaint to introduce records into evidence. Final argument on the case held September 27. On October 25, 1963 Court found that defendant Wood had discriminated against Negro citizens in his administration of the registration processes. It enjoined Wood and his successors from further acts of discrimination, ordered him to register the one Negro who had unsuccessfully applied for registration since the trial, and directed a limitation of the sections of the Mississippi Constitution to be used in the interpretation test to approximately 40 specified in the order. The Court declined to make a finding as to whether a pattern and practice of discrimination existed and dismissed the complaint against the State of Mississippi. The Court also awarded costs to the plaintiff. On November 16, 1963 defendant Wood died. Appeal was argued November 9, 1964; on December 28, 1964, the Court of Appeals reversed the order of the District Court. It stated that the history of this litigation parallels a similar suit brought in Panola County. At least until the date of the filing of the suit, voting was for white persons in Walthall County, Mississippi, a simple corollary of citizenship. White persons who applied were permitted to register without complying with the current and increasingly difficult provisions of the voters' registration statutes enacted by the State of Mississippi on a time schedule that coincided with the indications that more Negroes would make the effort to register. The registrar permitted illiterate white persons to register and gave assistance to white registrants in the filling out of their registration forms, so that it turned out the application was treated largely as an information form when submitted by a white person. It was a test of skill for the Negro. Aid was available to the white applicant when construing a section of the Constitution of the State of Mississippi and the sections given to such applicants were much simpler and shorter sections than those given to the Negroes to write and construe.

In discussing the refusal of the trial court to find the existence of a pattern or practice and in justifying the reversal of that decision by the trial court, the court referred to the John Hardy case. The district court had refused to find the existence of a pattern or practice on the assumption that the relatively small number of Negro applicants was occasioned solely by reason of the fact that Negroes had not been interested in registering to vote and that no probative value could be ascribed to the statistics because the imbalance was not due to discrimination between the races. In refuting this the Court reviewed the Hardy case and made an implicit finding that Hardy's version of the facts was correct. The basis for this was the district court's implicit credibility finding that John Q. Wood falsely deposed with respect to the reinstatement of an illiterate voter amounting to what the district court called "his audacity to the court." During the course of the trial the district court wrote a letter to the registrar directing that 13 illiterates be removed from the voter rolls. One was reregistered and permitted to vote. Thereafter his name was removed by erasure and Wood filed an affidavit that he had never been reregistered. The district court stated that Wood even reregistered an illiterate whom the Court had stricken from the rolls and let him remain registered during August primaries in the county; that he was stricken from the rolls only after the Justice Department had discovered and revealed his audacity to the court.

The Court held that a finding of a pattern or practice is either warranted or not according to the facts, not what they were called, and that where the Court found a continual course of conduct constituting the policy of the registrar which is discriminatory, this was tantamount to a finding of pattern or practice within the meaning of the statute.

The order dismissing the state was reversed because the registrar is an official of the state and since the freeze order contemplates the temporary suspension of the state statutes regulating registration unless the state should see fit to cause reregistration of all the voters, the state's presence as a defendant is essential to the granting of complete relief.

The Court then ordered that, provided reasonable opportunities are given to the Negro citizens in Walthall County, there should be a limitation upon the time during which they may take advantage of the special registration standards.

The district court was directed to order the registrar to register all Negroes who met the following qualifications: age; residence; oath; nonconviction of certain crimes; a reasonable ability to read and to write by completing questions 1 through 18 of the form with or without assistance as needed. The registrar was ordered to process applicants when he or his deputy was present and to proceed as fast as the physical facilities of the office would reasonably permit; applicants were to be told the results then and there, and if favorable to be registered forthwith. Full and complete monthly reports were to be filed, the first report to be from April 10, 1963.

Two days after the decision Judge Cox wrote the attorney for the registrar, suggesting a complete reregistration. The defendant was given thirty days to make its decision.

Hearing on motion for preliminary injunction held before Judge Ainsworth on May 1-3, 1962. Briefs submitted May 26, 1962. Government asked Court to make a finding of pattern and practice; to register 40 Negroes; and to lay down specific rules for registrar to follow so that Negroes can register on same basis as whites have been registered in past. Opinion of judge entered November 2, 1962, finding that the registrar had discriminated against Negroes but refused to make a finding of pattern and practice, refused to register the 40 Negroes or to require the registrar to permit Negroes to register on the same basis as whites were allowed in the past. The registrar now uses the new procedure for registration adopted by the State Board of Registration (citizenship). Appeal heard November 18, 1963 before Judges Jones, Rives and Bootle. On July 21, 1964 the judgment below was affirmed. The court held that since the case had been tried on a motion for Preliminary Injunction, the trial court was not in error in refusing to find a pattern or practice of discrimination nor in refusing to apply a freezing theory to enjoin the registrar from raising her standards. The registrar was enjoined from using the citizenship test under the decree in U.S. v. Louisiana. Her reports to the court pursuant to the U.S. v. Fox decree showed that she continued to use this test. In addition, she failed to report registration progress to the U.S. v. Louisiana court. On June 1, 1964, the Government sought to have the registrar held in civil contempt of the U.S. v. Louisiana decree. A hearing was set on June 29, 1964 and was held on July 7, 1964. Both sides were given ten days to file briefs. On November 30, 1964 the Court issued an order requiring the district attorney of Plaquemines Parish to file with the court a declaration of intent to the effect that the registrar would cease to use the citizenship test and would file reports to the court. Thus far, the declaration has not been filed. The registrar's reports in the Fox case show that less than 15 Negroes have applied since the decree in that case.

Answer filed January 4, 1963. Trial held March 19, 1963. Government called 17 Negroes and twenty-three white witnesses and proved that whites were registered in Panola County without any literacy test and that prior to the suit, no Negroes in the county had been registered since 1892. Brief filed April 22, 1963. On the 25th of June 1963, Court made findings and conclusions contrary to the United States on every issue. On the 24th of July 1963, the Government filed notice of appeal. December 5, 1963, Circuit Court advised record in final form. Government's brief filed January 8, 1964.

The appeal was argued on March 5 and May 22 the Court of Appeals reversed the District Court in its most significant voting case opinion to that time. The Court adopted the Government's contention that, absent a reregistration, the local officials are obliged by Federal law to register Negroes by standards and procedures approaching those applied to white persons during the years of discrimination. For the guidance of the District Court it set out in detail what those standards of procedures were to be.

On May 29, 1964, the District Court entered an order pursuant to the Court of Appeals opinion. It provides that Negro applicants who demonstrate a reasonable ability to read and write by filling out the first eighteen questions on the application form including copying a section of the Mississippi Constitution not longer than four lines - with help as needed -- shall be registered at the time they apply. The decree's provisions are to operate for a year and, also pursuant to the Court of Appeals opinion, the District Court found that the original defendant - registrar had engaged in a pattern and practice of discrimination against Negro applicants for registration.

When the case was tried, in March of 1963, two Negroes were registered. By November 30, 1964, that number had climbed to 878.

The defendant has complied with the Court's order with one qualification: on the stated ground that he does not have a formally appointed deputy and that he does not wish to subject to a possible contempt action the women who help him, he has ceased processing applicants at one of the two county courthouses and handles all registration matters himself at the other one. This inconveniences applicants who live in the Northern part of the county, but its adverse effects have not been serious because registration leaders have been able to provide transportation to applicants and minimize delays by arranging for a steady flow of small numbers of persons at the office. On September 28, a Negro voter registration worker was indicted for making a false statement on his registration form. He subsequently pleaded guilty and he was sentenced to eighteen months in the state penitentiary. This matter is being investigated. Other incidents of arrests of COFO workers have occurred and the rate of registration has fallen. Whether there is a possible connection between these events is the subject of our investigation.

Government's brief filed on April 9, 1963. Defendants did not file their brief. The registrar is now using the new registration procedure adopted by the State Board of Registration. On October 22, 1963 the court found that the registrar had engaged in discriminatory practices with respect to the identification requirement. Although court found that no tests of literacy or intelligence were used during the period when Negroes were prohibited from applying and that a majority of the white persons of voting age were registered during this period, court did not enjoin the use of the new citizenship test or the application form test which came into use at about the time that Negroes were first allowed to apply. Government applied for costs in the amount of $1,468.77.

Notice of appeal filed December 20, 1963. Government's appellate brief filed April 18, 1964. A delay in the hearing of the appeal resulted from the defendants being over four months late with their brief. In May 1964, the Fifth Circuit Clerk wrote a letter to the defendants informing them that if they did not submit their brief, the case would be submitted on the Government's brief alone. However, this was not done. The defendants filed their brief on 10/6/64. The appeal will be heard on 1/6/65. The Government's appeal is based on the trial court's refusal to grant freezing relief from the use of any tests that were not applied to white persons who became registered before Negroes were permitted to apply. The court found that no test had been applied to whites before September 1962, but refused to enjoin the registrar from rejecting applicants for technical errors on the card or from using the citizenship test. Also on appeal is the court's refusal to assess costs against the state as well as the registrar. (Nothing has been collected from the registrar.)

In our reply brief we argued that Title I of the 1964 Act prohibits the new citizenship test from being used. In Louisiana the Constitution requires that an applicant must understand the duties and obligations of citizenship under a Republican form of Government. In 1962 the Louisiana legislature and subsequently the people by a constitutional amendment provided for an objective citizenship test to measure an applicant's understanding. We claim this new method of testing a qualification violates Title I. On the other hand, we also concede that if a wholly new qualification law should be enacted prescribing a novel qualification for registration, Title I would not prevent the application of such a new standard to future applicants.

The Madison Parish records were last photographed on June 23, 1964. These records show that after the trial the registrar began to use the application card as a strict test and that she has rejected a much higher proportion of Negroes than white persons. The application card test is now under attack in U.S. v. Board. The registrar's deposition, taken March 17, 1964, is in the U.S. v. Board file.

There was a great deal of registration activity by Negroes in the first few months following the trial. However, from that time on Negro registration has increased quite slowly, with the exception of an increase of 31 in the month before the books closed for the Presidential election.

In January 1962 court denied Government's application for a preliminary injunction against sheriff who refused to permit Negroes to pay poll taxes. On February 15, 1962, the government filed Notice of Appeal and on January 28, 1963 Court of Appeals reversed and directed district court to enter injunction against sheriff. Case scheduled to come on for trial during March term of court at Clarksdale, but on day before call of the calendar defendants made a motion for severance. May 7, 1963 court granted motion for severance as to defendant Harris who was registrar of voters in Tallahatchie County. Harris case heard on November 21-22, 1963. The preliminary injunction is still in force against the sheriff. Hearing to make the injunction permanent not yet set. Since the Court of Appeals decision, sheriff has permitted Negroes to pay poll tax, but present investigation underway to determine if sheriff's office fully complying with decree.

This case was originally filed together with part of the poll tax case of U.S. v. Dogan, on 11/17/61. On May 7, 1963 the court severed the registration case. Trial held November 21 and 22, 1963 in Clarksdale, Mississippi.

The evidence showed that 5 Negroes and approximately 4,400 whites were registered to vote in Tallahatchie County as of the date of the trial; no Negroes were registered prior to the filing of the suit. Testimony showed white illiterates were registered despite their inability to complete the application form; other white persons were given assistance by the defendant registrar to the extent of permitting applicants to copy their interpretation from a completed application form. Proof was that the application form was used as a test for Negroes but not for whites.

On June 24, 1964, Judge Clayton in his order substituted the new registrar, Cox, and established specific registration procedures he had to follow. The court found that there had been a pattern and practice of discrimination and enjoined defendant Cox from applying to Negroes more stringent standards and procedures than had been applied to white applicants in the past. Specifically Judge Clayton ordered defendant to :

- 1) afford applicants the opportunity to complete the application during regular business hours;
- 2) permit at least four applicants to apply simultaneously;
- 3) register all persons who (a) are 21 years of age or older, (b) meet state residence requirements, (c) " . . . embrace the duties and obligations of citizenship as demonstrated by their willingness to sign the oath . . . " , (d) is not disqualified for crime, insanity, or idiocy, (e) demonstrate literacy by completion of questions 1-17 of the form "with or without assistance as needed".

Compliance reports and further inspection of records by departmental attorneys indicate systematic rejection of Negroes for technical errors and omissions on the application form. To remedy this, the government on October 26, 1964, filed a petition for other orders to secure compliance and for order to show cause why defendant Cox should not be held in civil contempt for his failure to comply with the order of the District Court. The order to show cause was signed by Judge Clayton 10-26-64. No date has been set for hearing.

** Four of the reports for November have not been received thus far. Figures do not include all parishes for January 1964.

Three-judge case. Defendants' motion to dismiss overruled. Depositions of registrars throughout the state taken. Trial date initially set for December 20, 1962 continued. Case tried March 9, 1963. All evidence submitted March 4, 1963 by stipulation. Government's proposed findings, conclusions and decree filed March 18, 1963. State's brief originally due April 4, 1963 but State never did file its brief. State's primary defense was that the constitutional interpretation test had been abandoned. However, after trial the Government discovered that registrar in Webster Parish had begun to use the test again. On motion of Government court ordered case reopened for further evidence on this issue. Deposition of Registrar of Webster Parish taken and filed and case submitted.

On November 27, 1963, decision rendered in which the court found the Louisiana interpretation test unconstitutional. The opinion referred to the test as a "wall between registered voters and unregistered, eligible Negro voters." The court found that the test had been discriminatorily applied in 21 parishes and held that the new citizenship test required a higher standard than was applied to white persons who registered under the interpretation test and therefore its use in the 21 parishes would freeze into the registration rolls the prior discrimination under the interpretation test. The court enjoined the use of the new citizenship test in these 21 parishes with respect to applicants who met the age and residence requirements at the time the new test was adopted until such time as there has been a general re-registration of voters in the parish or it is shown to the court that the effects of prior discrimination have worn off.

Included in the decree is a reporting provision requiring the registrars of the 21 parishes to submit a report to the court each month, showing the number of applicants of each race, each applicant's age and length of residence, and what action was taken on each application. For all rejected applicants, the reason for rejection was to be given. The first few months' reports were not very useful; one registrar sent the reports to the wrong place, another did not send any. Two other registrars (in East Feliciana and West Feliciana Parishes) refused to register anyone. The rest of the registrars sent in ad hoc reports that varied greatly in completeness of the required information.

One registrar, in Plaquemines Parish, continued to use the citizenship test. On June 1, 1964, the Government filed motions seeking an order to show cause why this registrar should not be held in contempt for using the citizenship test and for failing to report to the court. A hearing was held on 7/7/64 and on 11/30/64 the registrar was ordered to file within 10 days a declaration of intent to comply with the original decree. This declaration has not yet been filed.

Also on June 1, 1964, the Government filed a motion asking the court to issue further orders requiring a uniform reporting system. On August 28, 1964 the state agreed to the use of the Government's proposed uniform reporting system. The Government subsequently supplied the state with mimeographed forms which the state in turn sent to the 21 registrars. The reports for November 1964 show that the registrars are now using these forms. The main difficulty with the reporting system had been the registrars' requirement that all applicants, including those accepted for registration, fill out a reporting form propounded by the state. As a result, there was a slow-down of registration in some offices. Some of the registrars still require rejected applicants to fill out the State's form. As long as this practice is not a burden on the registration system, the Government will take no steps to prevent it because it allows an assessment of the applicant's literacy, through his handwriting.

Under the inspection provisions of the decree, a schedule has been set up by which the records in the 21 parishes will be photographed by the FBI approximately every six months. The records have been photographed at least once in 1964 in all of the 21 parishes except Ouachita. There, the District Attorney objected because the records had been photographed three times before (in connection with U.S. v. Lucky). Apparently his objection was also based on the fact that the registrar was busy preparing for the Presidential election. It is expected that this problem will be worked out and the records photographed without the necessity of obtaining an order from the court.

All of the microfilm of records received by the Department through July 1964 has been reviewed. Memoranda describing the quality of the accepted and rejected cards, the registrars' standards and containing a chronological count of the application cards by race are in the U.S. v. Louisiana enforcement file in Room 1132.

Between January 1, 1964 and October 3, 1964 Negro registration has shown a net increase of 2,636 in the 21 parishes affected by the U.S. v. Louisiana decree. (Approximately 500 of these are Negroes who were purged from the rolls in Jackson Parish in 1956 and restored to the rolls by the Court's decree in U.S. v. Wilder.) This figure is almost exactly the same as the net increase in Negro registration in the entire state, which was 2,633. Thus, in the other 43 parishes, gains and losses in Negro registration cancelled out each other. The 1964 increase in Negro registration in the 21 affected parishes was approximately the same as it had been for the period 1/61 through 12/63.

Figures derived from the registrars' reports show that about 60% of all Negro applicants in these 21 parishes were accepted, whereas over 95% of all white applicants were accepted. The registrars' reports also give the reason for rejection. These reports and a detailed analysis of the rejected cards in Bienville, DeSoto, East Carroll, East Feliciana, Red River, Webster and West Feliciana show that over 95% of the rejections have been for errors on the application card test. This test is currently under attack in U.S. v. Board. In connection with that case, the Government took the depositions of registrars in 14 of the 21 parishes affected by U.S. v. Louisiana.

Trial held December 3 and 4, 1962. Government's brief filed March 22, 1963. Defendants did not file their brief. Default judgment entered against Citizens Council and its members. Government proved strong case of discrimination and freezing; produced some excellent (low education, low literacy) whites. The registrar started using the new registration procedure adopted by the State Board of Registration. Case decided on October 23, 1963. Court found that the registrar had engaged in discriminatory practices; particularly with respect to the application card. Court ordered the 953 Negroes who were purged from the rolls by the Citizens Council in 1956 be restored. The court enjoined the registrar from rejecting applicants on the grounds that their application cards were incomplete unless the applicant refused to provide the information. He instructed the registrar to inquire of the applicant as to the truth of any disqualifying statement made on the form. The court refused to enjoin the use of the new citizenship test. However, this parish included under the decree in U.S. v. Louisiana forbidding use of any new test, including multiple-choice citizenship test. Costs of $1,437.29 taxed against registrar but not against the state.

The records were last photographed on June 3, 1964. These records, the registrar's reports and interviews, show that since the decree in U.S. v. Wilder, the registrar has not rejected applicants for technical errors on the card. Nine of the 37 rejections were on the citizenship test before its use was enjoined. The other rejected applicants are apparently illiterate. The increased number of Negro applicants in this period is due to the work of CORE, which has set up an office in Jackson Parish. These applicants have been successful because the registrar is obeying the U.S. v. Wilder and U.S. v. Louisiana decrees. To date, more than 49% of the adult Negroes are registered.

Government applied for a Temporary Restraining Order restraining registrar from testing Negroes about names of county officials and committees. After notice and hearing, court granted Temporary Restraining Order on April 24, 1962. The court ordered a more definite statement and the amended complaint was filed on September 28, 1962. Records were photographed July 28 and November 27, 1962. Defendants answered December 13, 1962. Pre-trial conference held April 5, 1963, at which time the court almost asked Government to cite registrar for contempt for failing to register certain Negroes. The court had application forms before it at the time. Court later deferred action to give registrar and Election Board an opportunity to reconsider the applications. In addition, at the request of the court, the Government submitted an amended order to tighten the existing injunction. No action has been taken by the court on the amended order. On September 27, 1963, Government attorneys orally requested Judge Cox to set a trial date as soon as possible, and the judge indicated the court could not hear the case before December, 1963. Case set for trial January 27, 1964. The title of the action was changed to United States v. Ward, on January 27, 1964. The case was tried on January 27 and 28, 1964. The new Registrar, Ward, received his commission a few days before the trial, and defendants moved to dismiss the case against him on the grounds of mootness. Judge Cox denied the motion. During the trial, Judge Cox expressed shock at the registration of white illiterates but said he would not grant freezing relief. He also expressed the opinion that white witnesses should be warned before they testify that their testimony may cause them to be purged from the rolls. On February 19, 1964, Judge Cox delivered an opinion and decree wherein Registrar Ward was enjoined from discriminating, from assisting applicants, and from registering illiterates. The Court also gave the plaintiff the right to inspect the records every four months and held that a final decree would be held in abeyance for one year, to determine Ward's performance over that time. On April 17, 1964, the United States filed an appeal from Judge Cox's decision, and plaintiff's brief has been filed. The date for oral argument has not been set yet.

On June 15, 1962, the complaint was filed. On July 2, 1962, the defendants filed a motion to dismiss which was subsequently set for hearing on October 10. On November 13, 1962, the motion to dismiss was denied. Answers were filed on November 20, and a request for trial at the first available date was made on November 27, 1962. The trial was set for February 20, and on that date the case was taken under submission after hearing. At trial Government proved that between November 9, 1959, and February 5, 1963, the registrars accepted 99.8% of the applications filed by white persons and 14.0% of the applications filed by Negroes; that during that period, of the 302 applications filed by Negroes, 260 were rejected, while of the 784 applications filed by white persons, 2 were rejected. Government also proved that application form used as a tricky examination for Negroes and a simple application for whites; that the registrars used the signing of the oath as a device to discriminate against Negroes; and that registrars made registration procedures easy for whites and difficult for Negroes. Following the trial plaintiff filed a detailed and comprehensive brief on March 19, 1963.

On October 29, 1963, and again on March 30, 1964, the Government requested a judgement, based on the facts of elections scheduled in 1963 and 1964. On April 7, 1964, a motion for preliminary injunction was made and on April 13, permanent injunction was granted.

The court found that from November 1959 to February 20, 1963, the defendants engaged in racially discriminatory practices, and the defendants were enjoined from such practices in the future. Freezing relief was not granted, nor was the Board required to place on the rolls qualified Negroes who had been rejected. No Board reports were required, the government was not given the right of inspection of records and was not awarded costs. Finally, the State was dismissed as a party defendant. A notice of appeal was filed on June 11, 1964.

On November 16, 1964, a contempt action was filed which seeks to prohibit use of the Insert in the application form and to register qualified but rejected Negro applicants. A hearing date has not yet been set. Records have not been photographed since the trial and this will be done early in 1965.

No Negroes registered since 1954 until suit filed. Motion on preliminary injunction heard on October 26, 1962. Injunction was issued by Judge Thomas on November 15, 1962. Court found that Board since at least 1959 had engaged in acts and practices which have had the purpose and effect of depriving Negroes of their right to register without distinction of race. The injunction prohibited the Board from engaging in any act or practice which results in discrimination, failing to meet, receive and process Negro applications, failing to notify the applicant of the Board's action with respect to his application, refusing to allow Negroes to reapply after 60 days waiting period, rejecting Negroes for inconsequential errors or omissions on the application form.

Between November 15 and December 31, 1962 the Board met on 3 days. On these three days approximately 330 Negroes attempted to apply; 17 were processed. As to those who applied, 1 accepted, 8 rejected, 8 pending. On January 9, 1963 Government filed a petition for an order to show cause in civil contempt and on the same day Negroes filed 173 applications to be registered under 1971(e). Court declined to set order to show cause and did nothing toward processing the Negro applications. On January 14 Government filed notice of appeal to protect itself in the event trial court refused to act on the grounds that he had not found a pattern or practice within the meaning of 1971(e). Judge Thomas took no action on Negro applications within ten days and on the 28th day of February Government filed a petition for writ of mandamus in the Court of Appeals. On April 5, 1963 the Court of Appeals dismissed the petition for want of jurisdiction because of the appeal. Government decided to take its licking, dismiss the appeal and go back to the district court and start over, renewing its application for an order to show cause. This was done on April 26, 1963.

On May 17, 1963 district judge issued an order specifying in detail what the registrars must do to facilitate Negro registration. The registrars were directed to meet at least 2 full days each month for a full working day and to adopt and use fair and speedy procedures. The court also ordered the registrars to meet specially to act on the 173 letters filed with the court and to act on them within 45 days. A written monthly report as to regular registration was to be filed and a semi-monthly report as to the 173 special applications was to be filed. On July 16, 1963 the Government filed a motion for inspection of the records under Rule 34.

In August 1963 Negroes filed an additional 142 letters with the court and in September 1963 an additional 33 were filed. All the additional letters of application filed with the court were dismissed. On September 18, 1963 Judge Thomas granted Government's Rule 34 motion. Hearing on order to show cause set for October 3 postponed; not reset. Government filed notice of appeal on October 18, 1963. The Government filed notice of appeal from the order of the district court with respect to the 142 letters and the 33 letters. Government also supplied for and received a preferential setting of appeal (Tuttle and Rives). Gewin dissented: "The judiciary should not allow the zealous, demanding and over-enthusiastic request of one litigant to prevail over others whose cases are also vital and deserve the early attention of the Court."

On November 7, district court entered an order to the effect that the registrars claimed $918.87 at $10.00 per day for their work on the first batch of letters and that court was ordering the costs split between the State of Alabama and the United States Government -- this done without a hearing and without the Government's ever having an opportunity to review and object to the work of the registrars. Because of an understanding between Assistant Attorney General and the State Attorney General's office as to the payment of costs if registrars worked extra time to effectively register people. Government will pay its share of costs, making clear that this establishes no precedent.

At oral argument before the court on November 18, 1963 court decided preferential setting not justified and ordered case to be reargued in regular course. Case set for argument February 5, 1964.

"Two new members of the Board of Registrars took office on September 30, 1963. As of December 31, 1963, more than 100 Negroes had applied for registration with the new Board. Many did not receive notice of disposition as long as six weeks after their qualifications for registration had been rejected. No Negroes were known to have been registered by the new Board during this period."

On March 6, 1964, the Department filed an Order to Show Cause why the Board of Registrars should not be held in civil contempt. This cause was tried on April 23 and 24, 1964 before Judge Thomas but he has not ruled on this case yet.

On July 23, 1964 the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals through Judge Brown held for the Government on the appeal argued February 5, 1964 and said that the letters filed with the District Court were "applications" and therefore sufficient to trigger the machinery envisioned in 42 U.S.C. 1971( e).

Subsequent to the Court of Appeals decision, Judge Thomas appointed a voting referee, Mr. O. S. Burke of Greensboro, Alabama, thus initiating for the first time this procedure of the 1960 Civil Rights Act. Mr. Burke proceeded to send out questionnaires to each of the Negroes who had written the Court and for those who filled in and returned the questionnaire he held hearings for "Application to Vote" on September 23 and October 16, 1964 at the Marion County Courthouse in Perry County. On these dates he had those applicants who appeared complete a "registration application", answer four questions on "citizenship", write from dictation a provision of the U.S. Constitution and take a test on "literacy" which was comprised of four questions based on the constitutional provision dictated to them. Thereafter Mr. Burke submitted his "Finding(s) of Referee" as to the applicants to the Court. In this report the Referee determined that 24 should be accepted, 13 dismissed for failure to appear after receiving two notices, and 110 he rejected as not qualified. The Referee also filed reports on 60 applicants who subsequent to their letters to the Court had been registered by the Board.

On October 30, 1964 the United States filed a general statement of exception to 82 of the rejection reports of the voter referee with an attached analysis of each applicant who we thought should be qualified and a memorandum in support of these exceptions. These exceptions were overruled and denied by Judge Thomas on November 2, 1964. At present the Government is perfecting its appeal on the substantive issues of the case which basically deal with the standards used by the Referee. Pending the outcome of this appeal, however, steps are being taken to clarify and streamline certain procedural matters which arose in the Referee proceeding.

Also pending at this time is an application for an Order to Show Cause why the Board should not be held in Contempt filed by the Government on November 16, 1964. This deals primarily with the use of the Board of the new Insert Part III promulgated by the Alabama Supreme Court in August, 1964.

As the statistics show, there has been very little progress in Negro voter registration in Perry County. It is doubted that appreciable gains will be made until we either are successful in our appeal on the exceptions to the Referee report or Judge Thomas rules favorably on the Contempt Action against the Board which has been pending since April, 1964.

The complaint was filed on August 28, 1962. It attacks the validity of the Mississippi constitutional and statutory provision governing registration for voting. The complaint describes the background and setting of the adoption of the constitutional provisions and statutes under attack and alleges that since 1890 the State by its laws and customs have promoted white political supremacy by discriminatory use of the voter qualification laws. The complaint also alleges that the adoption and use of the invalid registration laws constitute a pattern and practice of discrimination.

On March 8, 1963, a three-judge court (Brown, Wisdom and Cox) heard numerous motions filed by the defendants and directed that discovery should proceed as rapidly as possible. The defendants served interrogatories on the Government which were answered on September 1, 1963 (and supplemented thereafter) setting out voluminously the registration statistics in the State, the methods of discriminatory use of the registration laws, the history of the purpose of the registration laws, and a detailed analysis of the inferior educational opportunities afforded Negroes in the State of Mississippi. After an initial stay by Judge Cox and a pre-trial conference, depositions were taken of several registrars, white witnesses and James Franklin Barnes who had made a State-wide statistical analysis of Negro voter registration in 1955 immediately prior to the adoption of the constitutional interpretation test. Depositions taken on December 12, 17, 18, and 19. Previously the reconstituted panel, Brown, Cox and Cameron, heard further oral arguments on the defendants' motions on October 30, 1963. The Court, Judge Brown dissenting, entered its Order March 6, 1964 granting the motions to dismiss. Various grounds were given for dismissing the complaint, but in substance the Court held that no proper parties were joined and that the United States had no standing to attack the constitutionality of the Mississippi statute. An appeal was taken from this decision directly to the Supreme Court, briefs have been filed and oral arguments are scheduled for January 27, and 28, 1965. The similar case of United States v. Louisiana, which the Government won in the District Court, has also been appealed and that appeal has been consolidated with this case and will be argued at the same time.

* / Registered by court order on motion of the government in time to vote in November 1964 elections.

Defendants filed motion for more definite statement on the 11th of February 1963. On August 20, Government asked court to overrule this motion in view of the Circuit Court's decision in U.S. v. Lynd and on September 11th also made application for inspection of records under Rule 34. In addition, Government wrote Judge Clayton requesting disposition of pending motions and a trial setting during October (1963) term of court. Court considered motions on briefs. Defendants given 15 days to support motion for more definite statement, and plaintiff given 15 days thereafter to file opposing brief. On October 21 and 22, 1963, Government filed memoranda in opposition to motion for more definite statement and memorandum in support of Rule 34 motion, respectively. Defendants filed opposition to Rule 34 November 1, 1963. All motions submitted on memoranda. On January 7, 1964, court denied defendants' motion for more definite statement and granted Government's motion for inspection of registration records.

After the records were photographed on January 20, 1964, the defendants filed Interrogatories on March 12. Answers were filed on April 17, and Supplemental Answers on September 30.

Trial on October 12 to 14, 1964. The Government called 49 witnesses, 22 Negroes and 27 white persons, and introduced 26 voluminous documentary exhibits. The proof showed that Negroes had been discriminated against in their efforts to register as far back as 1932 and in the mid-forties. No Negroes were permitted to register between August of 1955 and April of 1962, and of those who tried, 7 were not permitted to apply and 5 were told that they were not qualified. As late as December of 1962, the defendants' deputies were refusing to process Negro applicants in his absence. The testimony and exhibits also showed that many qualified Negroes who were permitted to apply in 1963, 1964, and earlier were rejected because they failed to meet very high standards which were not applied to white persons. During the period from 1955 to August 9, 1962, the date of the first application form preserved by the defendant, 11 white persons registered for themselves and 4 others without taking any test, 11 others were illiterate or semi-literate, and 2 others received substantial help to fill out their forms. Three white persons who registered between August 9, 1962, and the time of the trial testified that they received significant help to fill out the application form which they did not fully understand. Overall during the period for which there are application forms, 520 white persons and 558 Negroes applied. Of these, 89% of the white persons but only 7% of the Negroes were accepted.

The defendants called 13 witnesses, all Negroes, who testified that they registered without difficulty and without taking any test from 1952 to 1954. However, most had not voted since Negroes were excluded from the Democratic primary election in 1955, and several testified that it was understood in the Negro community after 1955 that Negroes were fearful of trying to register or vote. The Government's last witness, a 72 year old Negro woman, testified that she had applied unsuccessfully five times. At the conclusion of her testimony Judge Clayton directed that she be registered immediately - which she was. After the defendants rested the Government moved that rejected Negroes be ordered registered in time to vote in the November, 1964, election on the ground that they had demonstrated their ability to read and write by filling out questions 1-17 on the application and had thereby met or exceeded the qualification standards applied to white persons. The motion was granted as to 29 Negroes on October 29, 1964, and they voted in the election.

The case is presently awaiting decision on the Government's motion for a permanent injunction and for "freezing relief" of the kind granted in United States v. Shankle and United States v. Cox, the Panola and Tallahatchie County' cases. This would provide for the registration of Negroes by the same standards as had been applied to whites during the period when a pattern and practice of discrimination existed. The Government brief is due January, 1965, defendant's brief due February, 1965.

The registrar used the oral interpretation test to deny registration to Negroes until September 1962, when this test was replaced by the citizenship test. At this time the registrar began to use the application card as a test for Negroes. Case tried 7/22/63. Government's motion for preliminary injunction against the use of the application form as a test denied 7/24/63.

Case decided July 14, 1964. Court found a pattern and practice of discrimination, held that the registrar had used the interpretation test and the application card to discriminate, but refused to enjoin use of citizenship test or to invoke freezing theory on the use of the application card as a test. However, the registrar has been enjoined from using the citizenship test by the decree in U.S. v. Louisiana.

The refusal to grant freezing relief was based on the Court's unwillingness to force the registrar to violate state law by not testing new applicants as she had done previously in the case of white applicants. This ruling was not appealed because the application card test is currently under attack in U.S. v. Board. However, appeal is now under consideration in the light of recent developments: On 12/1/64, Judge Dawkins denied the Government's motion to amend the judgment so as to have costs taxed against the State as well as the registrar. (The time for appeal of the original decree runs from 12/1/64.) In the original opinion, Judge Dawkins found that the registrar had required Negroes to come into her office one at a time, but had allowed white persons to enter in groups. However, he failed to enjoin the registrar from engaging in this "slowdown" practice. Investigation and analysis of the records shows that since the decree the registrar has not only rejected qualified Negroes for errors on their cards (while registering whites with errors), but also enforced her one-at-a-time rule as to all applicants, causing them to wait in line all day despite the fact that there were less than 20 persons in line ahead of them.

Case tried July 24, 1963. Case decided May 25, 1964. Court found a pattern and practice of discrimination, found that the registrar had used the interpretation test and the application card test as device to discriminate against Negroes. Registrar enjoined from discriminating, but no freezing relief on citizenship test or standards on the application card given. Registrar enjoined from using citizenship test under U.S. v. Louisiana decree. The denial of relief on the use of the application card test as a freezing device was not appealed because the application card test is now under attack in U.S. v. Board.

Records analysis show Negroes rejected since decree to be of low literacy level. Although white illiterates were registered before the trial, none have been registered since decree. Government's motion to amend the decree in U.S. v. Crawford to include taxation of costs against the State as well as the registrar denied by Judge Dawkins 12/1/64. Appeal on this issue and on failure to grant freezing relief are under consideration in view of decision of court of appeals in U.S. v. Wood.

On June 26, 1963, defendants and their attorneys stipulated that basic allegations of the complaint were true. The defendants agreed that a permanent injunction be entered outlawing racial voting discrimination, except that the list of qualified voters prepared for the special commissioners election would be used for that election. The permanent injunction was issued.

Complaint and application for temporary restraining order were filed July 13, 1963, after the registrar had obtained an ex parte state court order to close registration in the midst of a Negro voter registration drive following death of Medgar Evers. Registrar claimed an inability to handle large groups of applicants with courts in session and the preparation required of him for the August primary election.

On July 26, 1963, the Court denied the application for the restraining order, holding that the closing of the registration books was not an act by the registrar for the purpose, and with the intention of discriminating against Negroes. The court did direct that applicants should be accommodated on first-come first-served basis, following testimony that whites were waited on preferentially.

August 1, 1963, the Government filed an amended complaint claiming discrimination by the registrar in processing and grading applicants. On August 21, 1963, defendants filed a motion for a more definite statement. This motion was overruled by Judge Cox on March 6, 1964.

The Government has photographed and analyzed approximately 14,000 application forms dating from June 7, 1960, the date of the first form in the registrar's possession to the date of the most recent photographing October 21, 1964.

Case will be tried before Judge Sidney Mize in February, 1965. Judge Harold Cox has heard all prior testimony and ruled on all motions to date, but turned the case over to Judge Mize for hearing on the merits.

Registrars used the white voucher rule. The defendants filed motions to dismiss and to strike allegation with respect to unequal educational facilities and its effect on use of tests to determine registration qualifications. The hearing on these motions held October 29, 1963. Motion to dismiss was overruled and the motion to strike was granted. Hearing on motion for preliminary injunction heard on December 17, 1963. On March 31, 1964, the district court denied defendants' motion to dismiss the complaint, denied plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction and held that the plaintiff failed in its proof of discrimination, holding that all applicants, irrespective of race or color, were duly required to have a registered voter vouch for him. The court found that the requirement had been uniformly applied and that the Negro applicants, in not producing registered voters to vouch for them, had failed to comply with the law. Accordingly, the defendants were not guilty of discrimination or discriminatory acts which were pursuant to a pattern or practice. The court made a point of the fact that the government had not shown that supporting witnesses had been sought but not found.

The Government's contention in this regard, was that the voucher requirement as applied to whites was meaningless. As proof, the Government offered that of the 376 whites to register to vote between January 1, 1959 and October 17, 1963, 342 were vouched for by a county official or employee. In this period of nearly four years, only 34 whites took the trouble to bring in another registered voter to the courthouse to vouch for them. Therefore, as to whites, the voucher requirement had not been used as a means of ascertaining the true identity of white applicants or of establishing their character or reputation. The Government also offered proof of assistance.

Finally, the Court found that none of the Negroes were intimidated, harassed, or otherwise abused, but had been treated the same as white applicants.

Notice of Appeal filed by United States on April 22, 1964. Brief of United States submitted in September, 1964. No oral argument as yet. Few Negroes have applied for registration since the hearing in December 1963. There has been no voter registration activity. Negroes afraid -- awaiting decision on appeal.

Judge Johnson handed down a strong decree on June 17, 1964 in which the Court found a pattern and practice of racial discrimination from December 1, 1959 to the date of trial and ordered relief from the freezing effects of this discrimination. The decree contains the qualifications needed to become a voter at this time. They are: (1) that the applicant be 21 years of age and a citizen of the United States; (2) that the applicant meet the residence requirements (1 year in the State, 6 months in the county and 3 months in the precinct); (3) that he not have been convicted of any of the disqualifying offenses under Alabama law, or be of bad character; (4) that the applicant be able to demonstrate his ability to read and write; and (5) that the applicant take the oath.

The Court also enjoined the Board from rejecting any applicant because of an unsatisfactory performance on one or more of the tests provided for the Insert, Part III, of the new application form or for inconsequential errors or omissions. The Court furthermore established specific procedures and standards for the Board to use in determining such qualifications as residence, loyalty, and the determination which errors or omissions are technical and inconsequential. In particular, the Court prohibited the rejection of anyone for lack of residency if, in fact, they possessed the residency, and it was made the affirmative duty of the Board to determine residency orally in the same manner as had been determined for whites since 1959. The Board was also prohibited from rejecting anyone for not signing the oath or the supplemental oath, and the Board had the duty to administer the oath, and to orally instruct the applicant to sign if the applicant is willing. With regard to technical or inconsequential errors, the Court instructed that an error or omission is inconsequential if (a) the information sought appears elsewhere on the form; (b) if the information sought is readily available to the Board or if it is information which has no real value; or (c) if it is merely a matter of inconsistent answers.

The Court ordered 102 Negroes to be put on the rolls, required the Board to submit monthly reports to the Court, gave the Government the right to inspect the records at any and all reasonable times, and requested further assistance by the government in enforcing the decree.

Twenty of the 102 Negroes who were ordered on the rolls had already been registered and the remaining 82 were put on. Of 92 Negro applicants since the decree, 84 have been registered. The eight rejected Negroes are either illiterate or marginal. However, the Board has continued to require the applicant to complete the Insert and tests his literacy by his performance on it. On November 13th, a contempt action was filed against the Board to enjoin the use of the Insert. The facts were stipulated to at a hearing on January 7, 1965 and briefs ordered of the plaintiff by January 20th and of the defendant by January 25th.

Records first photographed in June 1962 and negotiation with the Board began soon thereafter. Defendants filed answer along with motions to dismiss and to strike. Paragraph 25 claims that unequal educational opportunities in the past prevents Jefferson County from using application form as a test. Motions heard on September 6th. Motion to dismiss denied but motion to strike was granted September 10, 1963. Government moved to consolidate this case with private suit brought against these defendants by Negroes. On October 10, 1963 Court granted Government's motion to consolidate. A new Board of Registrars appointed October 1, 1963 and the new Board had been accepting a vast majority of Negro applicants. Trial date set for December 6, 1963, but because of the apparent good faith action of the Board the plaintiff sought and was granted a continuance. Late in December Board started to again apply stricter standards to Negroes. Records photographed January and August 1964. Since the beginning of 1964 the Board has accepted over 99% of white applicants and has rejected 2% of Negro applicants. In February the Board started using an application form containing an insert with questions on government, writing from dictation, and excerpts from the federal Constitution. This was again changed in September 1964 with a more difficult insert requiring answers to questions on government. Supplemental complaint filed in November 1964 to enjoin the use of these inserts. No trial date has been set.

Defendants' motion to strike historical paragraph on unequal educational opportunity and attachments consisting of Citizens Council pamphlet and applications (rejected and purged) deferred to hearing on the merits. At the request of the Court, this case was tried largely on the documentary evidence described below.

In preparation for this case the Government photographed the rejected application cards in fifty-seven of the sixty-four Louisiana Parishes. Of the remaining seven parishes, there were three in which there were no rejects: Cameron, Livingston and Tensas. In the other four, Catahoula, Sabine, Vernon and Washington, we inspected the records, but did not photograph them. Some or all of the accepted applications were photographed in twenty-five parishes. Some of these parishes were ones in which the Government had photographed before in connection with 1971(a) investigations and suits. The photographing was done in late 1963 or early 1964, with the exception of Iberville and Pointe Coupee, in which the last photographing was in May 1963; and the 21 parishes covered by the U.S. v. Louisiana decree, in which the photographing is brought up to date approximately every six months. 348 rolls of microfilm were entered in evidence. The records analysis done in connection with other 1971(a) suits against individual parish registrars was used as a starting point in this case. In nineteen parishes, there were enough rejected cards to arrive at meaningful accepted rates (by race and by reason for rejection). Tables were constructed showing the number of whites and Negroes accepted and rejected (and the reason they were rejected) in each of these parishes for each month from the date of the first rejected card through December 1963. The figures for Orleans Parish were broken down by deputy registrar in order to show the extreme variations in rejection among the 22 deputies there. In addition to these counts, the records were analyzed to show differences in standards on the application card test from parish to parish, to select examples of arbitrary rejections of Negro applicants and to show that Negroes' cards were graded with different standards than were the cards of white persons. The total number of rejected cards analyzed was approximately 49,000. The breakdown is as follows:

	I	II	Race Unknown
Rejected on the application card test	10,100	24,000	1,800
Rejected on the citizenship test or the interpretation test	3,700	5,200	4,200

In the case of both whites and Negroes, two-thirds of the rejections on the cards occurred in Orleans Parish.

Between January 27 and June 3, 1964, the Government took the depositions of the registrars of 54 parishes, nine deputy registrars and two assistants in Orleans Parish and three members of the staff of the State Board of Registration. These depositions were indexed according to the registrar's testimony about a particular blank on the card. This was done in order to facilitate discussion in the Brief of varying and arbitrary standards in grading the card. These depositions, as well as registrars' testimony in other 1971(a) cases, and the testimony of other witnesses in those cases, were summarized for the Court in an Appendix to the Brief.

Other preparations for the submission of this case included the selection of newspaper articles concerning the 1898 Louisiana Constitutional Conventions for introduction into evidence to show the discriminatory origin and purpose of the application card test; the compilation of statutes and historical commentaries relating to the inferior education provided to Negroes by the State of Louisiana; and the construction of notebooks containing xerox copies of 143 rejected Negroes' applications, demonstrating the arbitrariness of the registrars' rejections of obviously qualified Negro applicants.

Pre-trial conferences were held on July 7 and August 28, 1964. The Government submitted its documentary evidence, summaries, and the defendants filed their Brief on November 23, 1964. On November 30, 1964, oral arguments and a hearing on the merits were heard. After the hearing, the Court ordered both sides to file supplemental Briefs within 30 days and gave both sides leave to take additional testimony on depositions. During the week of 12/14/64 the Government took the depositions of fourteen white voters in Orleans, East Baton Rouge and Caddo Parishes. The defendants took the depositions of five white voters in these parishes. In addition the Government deposed two Negroes from West Feliciana Parish who had been indicted by a local Grand Jury for making allegedly false statements on their application cards. On 12/28/64 the defendants deposed a statistician with the intent of discrediting the Government's statutes; a thirteen year-old boy, with the intent of demonstrating how easy the application card test is (he failed it); and a Political Science Professor from Tulane, to testify that the State needs the information elicited by the card in order to determine an applicant's qualifications. The Government's Supplemental Brief was filed 12/31/64 and the case is now under submission.

In its reply brief the Government maintained that Title I of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 invalidated many of the specific immaterial errors for which applicants in Louisiana have been rejected. However, the Government claimed that it was not sufficient for the Court to enjoin the board from rejecting applicants for missing a series of specified immaterial errors, but rather the Court had to invalidate the use of this particular form itself because of the fact that Louisiana had written this application form into its statutory law. Our theory is that the entire form conflicts with Title I and that where state law and an act of Congress are in direct conflict, the Supremacy Clause requires that the state statute be declared invalid.

The Government also urged the Court to declare the application test invalid under the 15th Amendment. Our theory is that the application form test was arbitrary, based upon an analysis of its content, the structure of the form and the traps embodied in it, and the requirement that it be completed absolutely perfectly with no leeway for the slightest error or omission. Since the test was arbitrary, we maintained it violated the 15th Amendment for the reason that in a state where there exists a massive disparity in the percentage of Negro adults registered to vote compared to the percentage of white persons registered to vote, and a record exists which demonstrates that the state has long maintained a policy of racial discrimination in voting, any arbitrary test violates the 15th Amendment.

Complaint filed October 22, 1963. On same day Government applied for preliminary and permanent injunction. On November 12, 1963, defendants applied for extension of time in which to answer. Answer filed 1/23/64. Government filed Interrogatories 7/24/64. These have not yet been answered and no steps have been taken to compel defendants to answer.

The registrar is enjoined by the decree in U.S. v. Louisiana from using the citizenship test. Records photographed 7/27/64 and registrar's reports filed under that decree show that the registrar continues to reject a high proportion of Negroes (75% this year) and has started to reject a relatively high proportion of whites (35% this year), mostly for technical errors on the application card. All the records through December 11, 1963 have been typed on control cards and analyzed. These records show that about half the Negroes and 60% of the white persons who were rejected became registered on a subsequent attempt, but that it took Negroes more times. The registrar's standards on the application card are very strict and several examples of rejection from St. Helena are found in the U.S. v. Board brief.

This case was filed on the basis of discriminatory use of the constitutional interpretation test, which has been discontinued as well as the citizenship test. Undoubtedly the registrar is now discriminating in the use of the application card, as a freezing device if not by assisting some whites in filling it out. Twenty-seven per cent of the adult Negroes in St. Helena Parish are now registered. CORE has been very active here in the last two years, teaching Negroes how to fill out the form and encouraging them to try to register. It is considered that relief to these applicants from the burden of the application card test can be obtained sooner from U.S. v. Board. than from U.S. v. Crouch.

Answer filed 1/23/64. On 4/2/64 Judge West denied Government's motion for a Temporary Restraining Order requiring defendant Harvey to receive and process applications for registration. Harvey had refused to process any applications since the issuance on 1/28/64 of the decree in U.S. v. Louisiana.

which enjoined Harvey from using the citizenship test. Hearing held 4/27/64 on Government's motion for a Preliminary Injunction. Both sides given 10 days within which to file briefs. Government's Brief filed 5/7/64. Government renewed motion on 6/12/64; Judge West denied it 6/18/64. On 6/22/64 Fifth Circuit entered an order requiring Judge West to enter a temporary injunction pending appeal. Books were open for 2 days before they closed for an election. Government's Motion for Summary Reversal filed with Fifth Circuit and denied 11/17/64.

The records have been photographed under the U.S. v. Louisiana decree. The registrar is not using the citizenship test, but he is rejecting Negroes for technical errors on the card and the Preamble. Since the books opened: 44 white accepted, 0 whites rejected; 68 Negroes accepted, 142 Negroes rejected. This is the only parish left in the State on periodic registration. The books will be wiped clean with a new period beginning 1/1/65. On November 2, 1964, two Negroes and a white person were indicted by a local grand jury for alleged "false statements" on their application cards (which were rejected by the registrar). The Government took the depositions of these three persons in connection with U.S. v. Board, in which the use of the application card as a test is challenged. The Negro defendants filed a petition to have their cases removed to the federal court, and the Government has under consideration participation in the removal proceedings.

On December 27, 1963 defendants filed a motion to strike paragraph 9 from the complaint which alleged the use of the application as a test or examination is discriminatory in that Negroes in Sumter County had not been afforded an equal opportunity to education through the public system. Defendant's motion was granted over the Government's objection on February 26, 1964.

Trial was held on the merits of the Case in May, 1964 and Judge Grooms issued his decree on September 17, 1964. Judge Grooms' decree is one of the most far-reaching we have obtained in Alabama. In it the Judge enjoined the board from using standards, requirements, etc. which are more stringent than those applied to white applicants since January, 1954, using the application as a test, rejecting any applicant for failure to satisfactorily complete Insert Part III or delaying, hindering, or discouraging Negroes from registration. The Judge also enjoined the Board from employing the supporting witness requirement.

Subsequent to this decree we filed an Order to Show Cause why the Board should not be held in contempt of this decree and a hearing was held on this matter on December 2, 1964. Basically our argument to the court was that the use of the new Insert Part III, promulgated by the Supreme Court of Alabama in August 1964, by the Board was a violation of the injunction. We also attempted to show the delay and discouragement aspects of the Insert. The Court, however, ruled that the Board was not in contempt of its order. The Judge in his order discharging the show cause order (December 3, 1964) stated that although the Board was submitting Insert Part III to applicants, it had acted on the applications independent of and without consideration of the Insert. He further emphasized that his order of September 17, 1964 was not broad enough to prohibit the ". . . use of Part III unless its use is for the purpose of rejecting applicants for registration." (Emphasis by the Court)

At present Sumter County seems to suffer from a lack of Negro leadership or an organization that would stimulate voter registration. Until this problem is solved it is doubted that Negro voter registration will be materially increased.

 Records photographed again on this date. No analysis nor count made yet. Records were photographed on August 20 and September 15 and 16, 1964 as a result of prior litigation under Title III of the Civil Rights Act of 1960.

Detailed analysis of these records is now in progress. Race identification biggest problem. FBI request in preparation.

Relatively few Negroes are known to have attempted to register after 1955 and prior to the filing of the suit. Those that did were subjected to delay and obstruction. There appears to have been a slight improvement since our investigations began but registration efforts by Negroes remain nominal.

Investigations were conducted in the county in the spring and fall of 1964 but little or no new material was developed.

No trial date has been set. The next term of court is in April of 1965 and the case may be heard at that time.

* Although two Negroes' forms were accepted, only one signed the registration book; the other believed that he did not have to do so.

Departmental attorneys' interviews with Negroes disclosed that between 1947 or 1948 and 1963 Negroes had been denied their right to pay poll taxes on about nine occasions. One successfully did so by mail in January, 1963. In most instances the incumbent sheriff or his deputies refused to accept payments or issue receipts.

In late 1963 negotiations were conducted with the outgoing sheriff's attorney who agreed to permit Negroes to pay back taxes, but he also insisted that Negroes who had not personally been refused the right to pay should have to pay a penalty amount before being permitted to pay back taxes.

This was not satisfactory and suit was filed on December 16, 1963. A new sheriff, Arnold Simpson, assumed office in January, 1964.

The defendants' Motion For a More Definite Statement was filed on January 2, 1964, denied on January 27, and their answers were filed on February 14. On February 25 the defendants filed interrogatories which were answered on March 16. The defendants moved to dismiss the action on March 26. In a Memorandum Opinion and Order on July 21 the motions to dismiss the action were denied and the new sheriff, Arnold Simpson, was ordered to be substituted as defendant. His answer to the complaint was filed on August 11, 1964, and the case is awaiting trial.

Investigation conducted in February, 1964, disclosed that, during the preceding month, approximately twenty Negroes paid their 1963 poll taxes without difficulty, but one man was illegally delayed and there was no information indicating that any Negroes attempted to pay poll taxes for previous years.

*This is, necessarily, an estimate. Of the 291 white applicants during this period, only 30 have been verified thus far as accepted. The official disposition of the remaining 261 has not been determined by records analysts, though it is expected that most, if not all, were accepted. Only one Negro, Mrs. Odessa Crisler, was accepted during this period. The figures for this period also do not reflect any alleged purge of white illiterates-- as this purge has not been verified.

The government first inspected records in this County in January, 1963, pursuant to court order obtained December 10, 1962. The records showed massive discrimination in the assignment of Sections of the Constitution of Mississippi to be interpreted and in the furnishing of assistance at least through the end of 1962. We filed our complaint on December 17, 1963. The records were photographed twice in 1964, on March 10 and October 22. Analysis of these photographings is in progress.

Following the photographing of the records in 1963, the registrar's attorneys took a greater interest in the operation of his office and those attorneys have advised government lawyers of the following steps taken to prevent discrimination in processing and grading of forms of Negro applicants. They have persuaded the Board to employ a full time deputy who alone is responsible for handling registration of applicants and who initially grades those applications. The attorneys then review some or all of the deputy's work and can overrule him. In addition, the attorneys have interviewed most of the whites and Negroes whom we list in our interrogatories as being discriminated either for or against. They are themselves administering a test to white applicants we allege were not qualified and have purged a large number of them.

After the answers to interrogatories were filed in this case (7/8/64), several conferences were held between the attorneys for the government and the attorneys representing the registrar. These attorneys have agreed to stipulate to the major part of the testimony of white witnesses that the government had proposed to call; they have purged most of these whites from the registration books, and then have traveled around the county inquiring of Negroes who had attempted to register whether they had been intimidated. They have informed all Negroes that they have interviewed that they have the right to register and have allegedly told the Negroes interviewed that if necessary, because of reluctance to reapply, to contact them and they will accompany the Negroes to the registrar's office.

The trial, originally set for November 18, 1964, was re-set for February 8, 1965. At request of government, the trial was continued in order that the assigned date could be used for trial of the Jeff Davis case, U.S. v. Daniel.

Records reflect massive discrimination in selection of sections, and massive assistance to white applicants in completing forms. Since the suit was filed, the Registrar and his assistants have somewhat mitigated their discrimination in section assignment but continue to discriminate in assistance and grading. The case is before Judge Mize, who set a trial date for June 22, 1964. However, a few weeks before trial Registrar Coleman suffered a heart attack and the trial was postponed. Plaintiff applied for a preliminary injunction 6/17/64 and, after reading briefs, hearing oral argument, and examining the Lauderdale County registration records, Judge Mize ordered 15 rejected Negroes registered. Several of these had already been registered on subsequent attempts; however, shortly before the general election, the Government made a further application and Judge Mize ordered five more Negroes registered. A trial date is set for March 1, 1965. Defendant's attorneys oppose date because registrar still not recovered from heart attack.

This case was filed on March 5, 1964. At the same time an application for an order to show cause and a temporary restraining order was filed for the purpose of preventing the registrar from continuing his "slow down" in receiving and processing voter registration applications on a one at a time basis in the face of a Negro registration drive being conducted by CORE. This application for a temporary restraining order was heard on March 13, 1964 by Judge Cox. On March 16, 1964, Judge Cox issued a TRO requiring the registrar to process four persons at a time so that as many as fifty applicants per day could be handled. The case was tried on its merits on August 24-26, 1964, at which trial the government contended and attempted to prove that Negroes who had been registered prior to a 1957 registration had been required to fill out application forms in order to reregister, that whites making initial application subsequent to 1957 were aided in completing the application forms while Negroes were not, that prior to our intervention Negroes were given harder sections to interpret, and that illiterate whites were allowed to register. On November 3, 1964, simultaneous briefs and proposed conclusions of law and findings of facts were filed by both parties. A date for oral argument is set in January 1965.

On April 2, 1964 Judge West denied Government's motion for a Temporary Restraining Order requiring Defendant Palmer to receive and process applications for registration. Palmer had refused to process any applications since the decree in U.S. v. Louisiana was issued on 1/28/64, enjoining Palmer from using the citizenship test. A hearing was held on 4/27/64 on the Government's motion for a Preliminary Injunction. The Government called Negro witnesses who testified that they had attempted to register but had been told that applications were not being processed. Both sides were given ten days to file briefs. Government's Brief filed 5/7/64. These proceedings were held contemporaneously with those in U.S. v. Harvey, since both cases involved similar facts and identical issues. The Government renewed its motion on 6/12/64 because the registration office was scheduled to be rightfully closed on 6/25/64 in preparation for an election. On 6/18/64 Judge West denied the Government's motion. On 6/22/64 the Fifth Circuit entered an order requiring Judge West to enter a Temporary Injunction pending appeal. The registration books were open for two days before they closed for the election. During those two days, 11 Negroes applied and 4 were accepted. The Government's Motion for Summary Reversal of Judge West's original ruling was filed with the Fifth Circuit and denied 11/17/64. The records were photographed under the U.S. v. Louisiana decree on 9/9/64. These records have not yet been analyzed. Analysis of the records filed through December 1963 show that the registrar has rejected a high percentage of Negroes for technical errors on the application card, and while whites have also been rejected for errors, a much lower percentage have been turned down.

There was a purge of the rolls based on alleged "errors" on the application card in September 1958: August 31, 1958 there were 2,443 whites and 1,027 Negroes registered; October 4, 1958 there were 2,449 white persons and 450 Negroes registered to vote. Following this purge the registrar also purged whites (and more Negroes). By June 30, 1959 there were 1,634 white persons and only 50 Negroes registered to vote. Since then, white registration has more than recovered, but Negro registration has been held down, by the use of the constitutional interpretation test until it was discontinued in August 1962 and by the application card test. Discrimination in the use of this test is apparent from the records. For example, they show a discriminatory distribution of the five "scrambled" application cards [the same blanks, but in different order -- some cards are more of a trap than others], whereby Negroes are generally given the more difficult cards and whites are given the easier ones. CORE has been very active in this parish and is largely responsible for the high number of Negro applicants during the past year and a half.

Case has long background. No Negro was permitted to pay his poll tax in the county from 1956 until the latter part of 1963. As a result, no Negro voted or attempted to register to vote from 1956 until 1963. In March of 1963 several voter registration workers were invited into the County by local Negro farmers, and several Negroes tried to register.

In May, 1963, a suit was filed against the sheriff of Holmes County for the arrest of a Negro farmer and voter registration workers on charges of arson in connection with the fire-bombing of the Negro's house. As part of the complaint, we charged the sheriff with discriminating against Negroes by refusing to allow them to pay poll taxes.

This case was tried in January 1964. On February 25, the Court issued an order in which it declined to issue an injunction but retained jurisdiction. Prior to the trial, the Sheriff had begun to allow Negroes to pay their poll taxes and, in light of this, the Court found that there was no abuse of the criminal process.

In November 1963, a Title III records demand was served. An application for an order to require inspection of the reports was filed on December 6, 1963, and on January 7, 1964, the Court required the Registrar to comply with the Government's request but it limited the inspection to only those records made since May 6, 1960 and November 6, 1962. This limitation was appealed on January 7, 1964 and is still pending.

This complaint was filed under 1971(a) on July 24, 1964 together with a motion for a three-judge Court and a motion to inspect records under Rule 34. The records were photographed on August 17 and 18, 1964. Only four of the 292 Negro applicants between April 1963 and August 1964 were accepted, while only two of the approximately 170 white applicants were rejected. All application forms prior to January 1963 were destroyed, but the remaining forms show section selection discrimination.

A hearing on the merits was held on November 4, 5 and 6th 1964 before Judges Jones, Clayton and Mize. The Government put on 56 witnesses. The Government rested, and the case has been continued until February 17, 1965, when the defense will present its case.

The Government has asked the Court to find a "pattern and practice" of discrimination and grant a permanent injunction including "freezing relief" requiring the registrar to register all future Negro applicants according to the standard which has been applied to whites. Strong case on the facts. As part of relief the Department will ask that certain Negroes whose applications were rejected be ordered put on the registration books.

The Complaint in this case was prepared in July of 1961 but not filed because the Registrar's attorney wished to resolve the problems without suit. He agreed to cease discriminating immediately and, after protracted negotiation through his attorney, to adopt standards and procedures proposed by the Department. This agreement, which took effect in December of 1962, provided for lenient grading and the use exclusively, of 5 easy sections of the Mississippi Constitution for the interpretation test. The intended effect of this agreement was registration standards more approximate to pre-1954 standards.

Subsequent investigation disclosed that discrimination was continuing in the form of assistance to white applicants. The Negro rejection rate remained very high, and that for whites rose somewhat. These facts and the defendant's refusal to adopt the standards and procedures decreed in the Panola and Tallahatchie County cases (U.S. v. Shankle and U.S. v. Cox) decided in May and June, 1964, respectively, led to the filing of a revised Complaint under Section 1971(a) on July 24, 1964.

On December 7, 1964, 36 hours before trial, the defendant advised the Government and the Court that all registrants had been purged from the books of Marshall County and that he was willing to conduct a non-discriminatory re-registration of the entire county under court order. The first result of this proposal was an indefinite postponement of the trial.

The defendant also proposed that all applicants be required to meet the high, post-1954 State standards without regard to whether they were previously registered or when they became eligible. The government contended that any use of the interpretation test in this context would violate the 15th Amendment because Negroes are and always have been subjected to inferior schooling.

The Court expressed the view that that was a question of what relief should be granted and that this could be determined without a trial. The Government urged that it was a difficult issue and one requiring the benefit of full adversary proceedings.

The Court directed the parties to proceed as follows: the Government to amend its Complaint to include the educational allegations, which was done December 18, 1964; the defendants to answer the amended Complaint and file Motion for Judgment on the pleadings (by January 5, 1965); and thereafter join the Government and the defendants to file supporting briefs on issues: (1) whether trial is necessary and (2) what relief should be granted if no trial is held.

In this case, as in Benton County, U.S. v. Mathis, the defendants have undertaken to avoid the "freezing relief" authorized by the Court of Appeals in the Panola County case by use of a complete reregistration. The case is important because it directly raises the issues as to what standards and procedures will be used in the event of a complete reregistration.

This action was filed on September 3, 1964. The Government inspected records pursuant to Rule 34 on September 24 and 25, 1964, and answered Interrogatories on December 9, 1964. A trial date is being sought.

The first three Negroes who completed forms during the present registrar's incumbency received the very difficult section 165. The records also show that the two Negroes registered by the present registrar signed a registration book of a precinct other than their own.

Our investigation showed that seven well qualified Negroes applied to register in January and February, 1964.

The registration records, which were photographed on August 10 and 11, 1964, have not been closely analyzed, but there are only 3 rejected forms of white persons -- all in 1964 -- although the forms go back to 1956.

The Department's efforts to correct the situation by bringing it to the attention of local officials were futile. Suit was filed on September 3, 1964. Answers were filed on September 24, 1964, and the action is awaiting trial.

The Complaint in this case was prepared in September of 1961 but not filed because the registrar wished to resolve the problems without suit. He agreed to cease discriminating immediately and, after protracted negotiation through his attorney, to adopt standards and procedures proposed by the Department.

The agreement, which took effect in October of 1963, provided for lenient grading and the use of only 5 easy sections of the Mississippi Constitution for the interpretation test. It was also understood that the agreement would have to keep abreast of developments in the law; that is, it would have to be improved from the Department's standpoint if the courts granted more relief on similar facts.

Subsequent investigation disclosed that the Negro rejection vote remained high and that white applicants continued to receive help with their forms, although their rejection rate rose somewhat. These facts plus the defendant's refusal to adopt the standards and procedures decreed in the Panola and Tallahatchie County cases (U.S. v. Shankie and U.S. v. Cox) decided in May and June, 1964, respectively, led to the filing of a revised Complaint under Section 1971 (a) on September 3, 1964.

On December 1, just before trial, the defendant filed an Offer of Judgment in which he proposed to conduct a non-discriminatory registration under court order. The first result of this proposal was an indefinite postponement of the trial.

After the defendant agreed to accept a finding of a pattern practice of discrimination and an injunction governing his future conduct, what relief was appropriate became the issue. The defendant urged that everyone -- not just those registered after January 1, 1954 -- should be required to meet the higher, post-1954 State standards. The Government's view presented in the form of a proposed judgment, on December 21, 1964, was that persons who became eligible in 1955 and thereafter could be required to meet the higher standards but that persons registered or eligible prior to 1955 should be given a period in which to register under the prior, read and write only standard.

The Court expressed the view that, in any event, the relief to be granted is a legal issue which can be decided without a trial.

The defendant then offered to permit everyone to register or reregister -- for a limited period of time -- under the read and write standard, after which the higher standards would take effect, also for everyone. This is acceptable in principle and it is presently being explored by negotiation. However, if the defendants do not accept the Judgment proposed by the Government on December 21, 1964, or in the absence of an acceptable compromise, the Department will press for an early trial. Based upon the defendant's concession of a pattern and practice and their motion for judgment on the pleadings, it is likely that the Court will rule without trial.

This impasse stems from the suggestion by the Court of Appeals in the Panola County case that a non-discriminatory reregistration is a permissible alternative to the "freezing relief" granted there. However conceptually appealing this may be, it raises difficult problems because a reregistration using high standards discriminates against Negroes on account of the inferior educational opportunities to which they have been subjected, and there may well be problems as to how to treat pre-1955 citizens who were not registered.

This case was filed September 3, 1964 by us along with a Rule 34 motion and a motion to expedite as provided for by the Civil Rights Act of 1964. On September 11, 1964, Judge Cox granted the Rule 34 motion and denied the motion to expedite. The voter registration records of Katherine Mikell were inspected and copied on October 6, 1964 and a preliminary analysis reveals that a very clear "freeze" has been introduced by the defendant. Interrogatories have been served on us and answered. Supplemental interrogatories are expected. Trial was originally set for early December 1964, but on motion of the defendants, it has been continued until January, or February 1965.

REGISTRATION PROGRESS

All persons who apply are registered if they meet the age, residence, sanity, and non-conviction requirements because Tennessee has only those objective qualification requirements.

When Negroes in Haywood County began to register for the first time in 1960, Tennessee's simple objective registration requirements could not be used to disqualify them, so more than 100 white citizens met and organized a systematic campaign of intimidation against Negro leaders and registrants. Tenant farmers and sharecroppers were threatened with eviction and loss of their jobs, lists of Negroes to be denied credit were prepared and circulated among banks, merchants, and wholesalers, a school bus driver was fired, and similar economic pressure was brought against white persons who refused to cooperate.

Oral depositions were taken after suit was filed under 42 U.S.C. 1971(b) against more than 70 defendants, and those who were deposed invoked their Fifth Amendment privilege not to answer possibly incriminating questions.

The trial on the Government's motion for a preliminary injunction was theoretically limited to the then impending evictions of tenant farmers, but related evidence was necessarily introduced from Negro victims, as well as white persons who had been pressured to join the conspiracy.

The District Court enjoined 13 defendants from intimidation in general terms, but held that to forbid the evictions and termination of sharecropping agreements would illegally infringe on the defendants' property rights -- a result which the statute should not be construed to authorize because to do so would raise grave constitutional problems.

On December 29, 1960, before most of the threatened evictions had taken place, the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit granted the Government's motion for an injunction pending appeal. On appeal that Court read Section 1971(b) broadly to forbid any intimidation intended to interfere with Negro voting rights and reversed the District Court on the theory that conduct, ordinarily legal, may be forbidden if it is undertaken for an illegal purpose (288 F.2d 653 (c.a.6, 1961))

With the legal question settled, a consent decree enjoining more than 50 of the defendants was entered after prolonged negotiations. Many tenants stayed on, credit channels were reopened, and the school bus driver was rehired.

The Division did not receive complaints about registration or voting from Haywood County in 1963 or 1964, but a serious factional split in the Negro leadership has inhibited statistical progress.

Records will be rechecked to determine exact registration statistics.

REGISTRATION PROGRESS

All persons who apply are registered if they meet the age, residence, sanity, and non-conviction requirements because Tennessee has only those objective qualification requirements.

When Negroes began to register in Fayette County in 1959 and 1960 efforts were made to exclude them from Democratic primary elections: (See U. S. v. Fayette County Democratic Executive Committee, et al.) When that failed many white citizens in the county began a systematic, widespread campaign to deter Negroes from registering by threats, intimidation and coercion. Tenant farmers and sharecroppers were told they would lose their homes and jobs if they registered, white merchants and the local bank denied credit and loans to registrants, wholesalers were pressured to stop supplying certain Negro merchants, and some Negroes were unable to obtain goods and services even for cash.

After suit was filed against 80 individuals and the bank under 42 U.S.C. 1971(b), counsel for the defendants agreed to freeze the status quo, i.e., not to proceed with threatened evictions and to desist from the other intimidation, until the courts had ruled on the novel legal questions by deciding U.S. v. Beaty and Barcroft, a case involving similar conduct in an adjoining county.

In that important case the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit ruled with the Government that Section 1971(b) forbids all kinds of intimidation -- including otherwise lawful conduct -- if it is undertaken for purposes forbidden by the Act. That settled the law, and after oral depositions substantiated the Government's factual claims a consent decree embodying all relief sought by the Complaint was entered against 74 defendants on July 26, 1962.

Negro registration in Fayette County totaled 58 in the summer of 1959 and is at approximately 3,500 now. During the summer of 1954, prior to the important local general election in August, complaints were received of a slowdown in registration and intimidation of registration workers. All were investigated and where a violation had occurred, local authorities acted promptly. Complaints of fraud were also received in connection with the election in August; those complaints are being carefully studied.

This case was filed against cotton ginners and merchants who participated in an organized boycott against Francis Joseph Atlas, a fairly successful Negro farmer in East Carroll Parish who had testified before the Civil Rights Commission regarding his registration experiences. Suit was filed on January 19, 1961. The defendants agreed to gin Atlas's cotton on February 3, 1961. This was done at a meeting with Judge Dawkins in Chambers. All the defendants were present with counsel. They advised the Court that they would not close the channel of trade to Atlas. Based on this agreement, no hearing on the preliminary injunction was held. Atlas is still farming and is registered to vote.

In March, 1963 defendants moved to dismiss on grounds that they had dealt with Atlas as they would deal with any other farmer. Defendant's motion granted except as against Norris and his Farmers Feed and Seed Company, which has refused to deal with Atlas in the ordinary manner and which the government alleges has taken reprisals against other Negroes who have sought to register in East Carroll Parish. Government's motion to inspect and copy records of the Seed and Feed Company was granted in part. Records have been photographed. Further investigation shows no evidence of remaining defendant causing trouble. The Clerk of the Court has asked us whether we intend to take any further action in this case. (letter from U.S. Attorney - September 22, 1964) We have not yet responded.

When a Negro voter registration worker, John Hardy, accompanied some Negro applicants to the circuit clerk's office, the clerk ordered him out and struck him with the butt of a revolver as he was leaving. Later that day the registration worker was arrested and charged with breach of the peace.

Government filed a 42 U.S.C. 1971 (b) action and sought a temporary restraining order against further prosecution, which the federal district court denied, on the day before the victim was to be tried. Later that night Judge Rives for the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit enjoined the prosecution pending the Government's appeal of the denial of the TRO. On appeal, the government applied for a preliminary injunction which was granted. Supreme Court denied certiorari to the defendants. Defendants answered. Case set for trial April 9, 1963 and Gov'ts witnesses were available. In a pre-trial conference the defendants stated that they had returned the bond money of John Hardy and had dropped their prosecution against him for breach of the peace. Defendants' attorney assured the court that there would be no interference or intimidation of Negroes attempting to register to vote, or with Negro workers who come into the county to encourage and help Negroes to register. On the basis of these assurances, a settlement was reached between the parties and filed with the Court on 4/10/63.

This case is significant in that it went a long way to establishing that 1971(b) forbids the misuse of state criminal processes for the purpose of interfering with voting rights, which includes the right of persons to assist and encourage Negroes to become registered voters.

Mrs. Ernestine Talbert, a Negro school teacher and librarian was notified that her employment contract to teach school would not be renewed the day after the District Court entered a TRO in a 1971(a) voting case in George County, Mississippi. Mrs. Talbert, and others had given affidavits which had received wide publicity, and which were used in support of the TRO application. The government's suit filed 6-16-62, alleged that the reason for her discharge was the filing of her affidavit and involvement in the registration suit, and that the failure to renew her contract was an attempt to intimidate her and other Negroes in the free exercise of their right to register to vote.

To support this claim the government introduced evidence to show that Mrs. Talbert's record as a teacher was excellent. She has been recommended by her principal for re-employment one month before news of the affidavit was circulated. The superintendant of the school decided not to renew her contract without discussing it with the principal who recommended her for re-employment.

The superintendant testified that he did what he thought was in the best interest of the school; that the affidavit was a factor only in so far as he did not like any of his teachers to become involved in litigation; that Mrs. Talbert's record had not been superior but, in fact, had been inferior, and that the replacement for Mrs. Talbert was one who had been preferred over Mrs. Talbert when she was originally hired. The replacement hired had no library experience.

In the district court, Judge Cox held that the government had failed to prove that the discharge was done with the "purpose" of interfering with the right to vote.

On appeal the Government contended that Judge Cox had erred in that finding. The Court of Appeals per Judge Gewin, held there was no basis for de novo review, and, applying the "clearly erroneous" test, affirmed the District Court.

Filed August 13, 1963, against sixteen defendants Sheriff of Terrell County and his two deputies, the Chief of Police of Dawson, the Mayor and the City Commissioner of Sasser, two City Councilmen in Sasser, and eight private citizens in Terrell County). On August 14, Judge Elliott denied application for a Temporary Restraining Order to restrain the continuation of local criminal prosecutions for vagrancy against two SNCC workers who were in the county working on voter registration. The Department attorneys negotiated with the official in charge of the prosecution of the two SNCC workers on the vagrancy charges and he agreed to postpone any prosecutive action on the charges pending the hearing on the Government's motion for a Preliminary and Permanent Injunction in this case. Pre-trial conference held January 7, 1964. Pursuant to negotiations between Departmental attorney and attorney for all but one defendant, fifteen defendants agreed to enter a consent judgment in favor of the plaintiff. The remaining defendant was dismissed.

Among other things, the judgement, which was entered on January 27, 1964, enjoined the Sheriff of Terrell County and his deputies and the Chief of Police of Dawson "from refusing reasonable police protection to any person in need thereof, and from surveilling, interrogating, searching, arresting threatening to arrest, prosecution or threatening to prosecute, or participating in the prosecution of any person for the purpose of preventing or discouraging such person or any other person from registering to vote or from voting, or as punishment for having voted."

Complaint filed on March 30, 1963, against the City of Greenwood, its mayor, fire commissioner, police chief, city prosecutor; and against Leflore County, its county attorney and deputy sheriff. Complaint sought injunctive relief against interference with voter registration and with voter registration activities of SNCC, including activities under the First Amendment of free speech and free assembly.

Eight registration workers had been convicted after they and about 100 local Negroes walked to the City Hall on March 27, 1963, to protest a shooting into the home of a Negro registration worker. The eight workers were sentenced to four months and $200 fines each. On 3/30/63 Government sought a Temporary Restraining Order for the immediate release of the workers pending a full hearing in federal court. Court denied application for Temporary Restraining Order but set hearing for Thursday, April 4, 1963. At that time Government withdrew its motion for preliminary injunction after city and county officials had agreed to release workers on their own recognizance pending a full and final decision in the federal district court.

On June 3, 1963 defendants answered complaint. Defendant Fraiser and defendant Leflore County filed motion on June 3, 1963 to dismiss answer as to them. July 26 district court sustained motion of County and Fraiser to dismiss, granted Government's leave to amend its complaint within 30 days. On August 20, 1963 Government amended its complaint against defendant Fraiser. On September 2, 1963 defendant Fraiser filed motion to dismiss on the ground that the Government failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, and all defendants moved to strike the amendment to the complaint or in the alternative to strike J. T. Fraiser, Jr. as a defendant or in the alternative to grant separate trials on the complaint and the amendment. December 17, 1963 court ordered that these motions would be carried with the case and heard when the case is presented on the merits.

The theory of the complaint is that city and county officials were out to destroy SNCC organization, which was working on voter registration. Government has the standing to protect not only Negroes who apply to register but also Negro registration workers, and to protect not only their right to go to the registration office but their right to exercise other constitutional privileges as well, including the right to petition local government (about their grievances in connection with voter activity), and the right of free speech and assembly.

On October 16, 1964, attorneys for the Government and for the defendants reached an agreement which provided that with the Court's approval, the case be dismissed on the Government's motion if the defendants set aside the convictions of the eight Negroes and state to the Court their intention not to interfere with Negro voter registration activity. On October 21, 1964, defendants complied with the agreement in open court, and on the Government's motion, Judge Clayton ordered the case dismissed with prejudice. No costs were assessed. Government felt the settlement was favorable since the primary object of suit, to set aside the convictions of the Negroes, was accomplished. Also proof was weak on continued intimidatory activity after the initial incidents alleged in complaint. This made the likelihood of getting an injunction doubtful. Moreover, the Negroes involved had not appealed their convictions, so that if Government had lost their suit, the Negroes would have been without recourse.

On May 6, 1963, the United States filed the complaint and a motion for a preliminary injunction against Jonathan Edwards, Sheriff of Rankin County, under 42 U.S.C. 1971(b). The complaint alleged that Edwards and his agents intimidated Negro citizens in Rankin County to prevent them from registering to vote by assaulting Negroes in the registration office, 3 of whom were registering. The matter was heard on a motion of a preliminary injunction on May 18th and 25th, 1963. On August 6, 1963, Judge Cox entered an order denying the preliminary injunction.

This case arose out of an incident which took place in the courthouse of Rankin County, Miss., on February 1, 1963. That morning four Negroes met at the courthouse. Three of them Wallace Davis, Oscar Lee Hicks, and M. C. Carr decided to apply for registration for voting. The fourth, D. Mitchell Grim, had registered the previous year. While the three were standing in the small registrar's office filling out application forms, Grim waited in the hallway. The Sheriff's office is located across the hall from the registrar's office. Grim entered the office of the registrar to see what time it was. Grim remained near the door inside the office to wait. A short time thereafter Grim was physically attacked in the registrar's office by Sheriff Edwards, and severely beaten about the head and shoulders with a blackjack. Seeing the attack on Grim, the other three Negroes started to leave the room. Before they were able to leave Davis and Carr were themselves assaulted by Deputy Sheriff, J. B. Collum. Hicks ran out before he was assaulted. The victims testified that the assault came without warning. Sheriff Edwards testified that he beat Grim because he was blocking the passageway and being insolent. Other testimony indicated that the Negroes were all well-behaved just prior to the assault. Judge Cox found that Grim was beaten as a result of an altercation, but the connection of the incident with the office of the registrar was purely coincidental.

With respect to the second beating, the sheriff and Deputy Sheriff, Collum, testified that it never took place because Collum was not present at the time of the beating. Judge Cox found, to the contrary, that Collum was there, and that Collum unjustifiably assaulted Carr and Davis who were in the process of registering to vote. The court went on to say however, that Collum committed these "officious" acts solely because he "was obviously vexed at the crowded condition of the registrar's office." This incident he concluded "had no purposeful intention to intimidate these citizens."

The government filed a notice of appeal on October 2, 1963, and filed its brief on December 20, 1963. On June 18, 1964, the Court of Appeals sustained (2-1) the district court, finding that the government had failed to satisfy the burden placed upon it by Rule 52(a), of showing the Court's findings of fact to be "clearly erroneous." Judge Brown dissented.

The Division, by memorandum to the Solicitor General (Sept. 15, 1964) recommended the government not seek a writ of Certiorari on the grounds that an injunction in this case would not do enough good to warrant further review. This recommendation was based in part upon the fact that the sheriff's term of office had expired.

Approximately 90% of them are now deceased.

Sheriff refused to accept poll tax payments from Negroes from 1956 when he first went into office until sometime after filing of suit. No Negro attempted to register to vote or to vote in the county from 1956 until April 9, 1963, when 14 Negroes went to the courthouse to register. The Sheriff ordered them to wait outside and to apply one at a time.

On May 7, two fire bombs were thrown into the house of Hartman Turnbow, a local Negro farmer who was a leader in the registration effort. Turnbow and four voter registration workers were arrested the following day on suspicion of arson. The Government filed a complaint on May 11, 1963, seeking injunction against intimidation and misuse of the State Criminal process by the Deputy Sheriff and the District and County Attorneys. Complaint amended to include application for relief against discriminatory refusal to accept poll tax. On May 13, 1964, the arson charges were dropped against the four registration workers, Turnbow, was released on bond pending a hearing on the arson charge by the State Grand Jury, and one registration worker was fined $50.00 for impeding an investigation. A hearing on the Government's application for a preliminary injunction was held on May 22, 1963, and then continued to a later date. Subsequent to the hearing, the grand jury returned a no bill on the arson charge against Turnbow but indicted him and his wife on a charge of unlawful cohabitation. Turnbow pleaded guilty and paid the fine.

The federal hearing was held on January 2 and 3 1964, as a hearing for a permanent injunction. The District Court entered its judgement in the case on February 25, 1964. The Court found that the arrests and prosecutions were not improper and ordered the case dismissed as to the County and District Attorney. The Court also found that the Sheriff had improperly but not with any wrongful intent refused to accept poll tax payments from Negroes, he declined to issue an injunction but retained jurisdiction of the Sheriff during his tenure in office. In addition legal costs were assessed to the Sheriff. A bill of costs had been filed and the attorney for the State has been contacted with regard to collection. Notice of appeal was filed by the government on April 21, 1964, and the matter is set for argument on January 11, 1965.

Complaint filed on June 26, 1963 against sheriff and circuit prosecuting attorney seeking injunction restraining them from intimidating voter registration workers by arresting them on baseless charges of vagrancy, disturbing the peace and carrying on under assumed names. These acts of intimidation took place from June 17, 1963 to June 27, 1963. The Government requested a Temporary Restraining Order which was denied by district court and the Court of Appeals (Rives, Tuttle, Gewin). A one-day hearing on our motion for preliminary injunction was held before the district judge, but the hearing was not completed and was to be resumed on October 3, 1963. On September 30, 1963 Judge Thomas postponed the October 3rd hearing on the grounds that Selma was not the place nor October 3rd the time to hold a hearing on civil rights cases. On October 4th he issued an order continuing the case. Government filed a writ of mandamus to compel court to hold hearing. Several days thereafter the court set the case for hearing on October 15th and the hearing was held. On December 5th at first day of the hearing in U.S. v. McLeod, the Government moved the court to consolidate the case with McLeod and to decide both cases together. The court declined to consolidate but agreed to consider all of the evidence in this case in the McLeod case. So the cases are for all practical purposes consolidated.

On March 19, 1964 the district court denied the Government's motion for a preliminary injunction, finding each of the acts complained of justifiable. On March 24, 1964 the Government filed notice of appeal. On September 9, 1964 the Government's brief on appeal was filed. Argument on the appeal has not yet been set.

Complaint filed June 28, 1963 seeking release of 45 residents of Itta Bena who were arrested, convicted and given heavy sentences by a Justice of the Peace, after they marched downtown to seek police protection after unknown person had allegedly released noxious substance into church where voter registration meeting held. After three-day hearing district court ruled that Government had not established a violation of 1971(b). On September 5, 1963 Government filed appeal. Government filed petition for injunction pending appeal or for hearing on an expedited basis. Appellees filed opposition to petition September 23. The Court of Appeals denied injunction pending appeal but granted a hearing on an expedited basis. Hearing set down for January 8, 1964. In late December 1963 Government concluded to dismiss appeal and try to establish stronger case before district court on hearing for permanent injunction.

The Negroes who had been convicted by the Justice of the Peace were released on bond after serving two months of their sentence. Their appeal to the County Court of LeFlore County was heard de novo January 20-22, 1964, having been postponed from the October 1963 term. All were found guilty, and given $500 fines, and sentences of 6 months with 3 months suspended on good behavior. In the November 1964 term, the Circuit Court affirmed the convictions of the County Court. Notice of Appeal to the Mississippi Supreme Court has been filed. Case was not set for hearing on the merits in October 1964 term because of illness of defense counsel. Will probably be tried February 1965.

Complaint filed November 12, 1963. Complaint in two causes of action. The first claim arose out of the state's action in convening a grand jury investigation to look into the incident involving the unauthorized use by a departmental attorney of an automobile rented by the Department when he permitted the car to be used to transport Martin Luther King, Jr. from Birmingham to Selma on October 15, 1963. The claim asserts the grand jury lacks power to investigate the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice. The second cause challenges the widespread misuse of the criminal processes of the county and state as a means by which to intimidate prospective voters.

The Government filed application for a Temporary Restraining Order to quash the subpoenas which had been issued against employees of the Department of Justice. Motion for the order denied on November 12th. On November 13th the court of appeals reversed the district court and ordered the district court to issue the order which was to remain in effect until the motion for a preliminary injunction had been decided.

The motion for preliminary injunction was heard on December 5, 6, 16 and 18, 1963 in Selma. At the close of the Government's case defendants moved for a directed verdict and the court took the motion under advisement.

Evidence showed that all the mechanisms of the criminal law were being misused by wilful public officials who desired to discourage and interfere with the exercise of the rights provided by federal law and federal constitution. Among the mechanisms used were: (a) police surveillance of voter registration meetings; (b) legally baseless arrests of voter registration workers; (c) setting of unreasonable bail and appeal bond; (d) legally baseless convictions of those arrested; (e) improper police control over the movements of persons attempting to register to vote; (f) legally baseless arrest and conviction of those urging Negro voter registration by picketing; and (g) misuse of subpoena power and secrecy provision of the grand jury proceeding.

On March 19, 1964 the district court dissolved the Temporary Restraining Order and denied the Government's motion for a preliminary injunction. On March 24, 1964 the Government filed a notice of appeal and also moved for an injunction, pending appeal, restraining the defendants from commanding or attempting to compel the attendance of departmental attorneys before the Dallas County Grand Jury. Argument on the motion took place on March 30, 1964 and on the same day Judge Thomas denied the motion. Argument of the appeal has not been set.

This was originally part of the case of U.S. v. McLeod, but the Citizens Council aspect was severed on motion of the defendants on December 5, 1963. The Citizens Council and its officers are defendants. Government alleges that Citizens Council has engaged in threats and intimidation against Negroes in Dallas County for the purpose of interfering with the right of Negroes to register to vote. They have attempted to carry out programs to use economic sanctions against Negroes, to frustrate federal investigations regarding registration, to frustrate federal court orders designed to eliminate discrimination in registration, to prevent Negroes from attending voter registration meetings and to prevent wholesale Negro voter registration. No hearing has yet been held or set. The Government planned to take discovery depositions but has not as yet.

Complaint filed December 20, 1963. Negro insurance salesman has been active in encouraging Negro voter registration in the county and he and his wife were the first Negroes to attempt to register in over 60 years, although the Negroes outnumber the whites. Government moved for a preliminary injunction. Oral argument on defendants' motion to dismiss the complaint was heard on April 7, 1964. On June 30, 1964 the district court granted the defendants' motion to dismiss. The court gave no reason for the dismissal. Notice of appeal was filed by the United States on August 27, 1964. There have been reports of harassment of SNCC workers in the county.

This action grew out of the trial of the Clarke County, Mississippi, 1971(a) case, United States v. Ramsey, tried in December 1962, in which United States District Judge Cox expressed the view that two Negro witnesses had committed perjury. The two witnesses for the United States (a Reverend Goff and a Mr. Kendrick), testified that some seven years earlier, they had attempted to register at an out-of-door place of registration temporarily set up in Stonewall, Mississippi; that the Registrar, Mr. Ramsey, had declined to register them or give them application forms; that they had seen white people registering there on that day; and that one white man, B. Floyd Jones, had been near the registration table, had talked to Mr. Ramsey, the Registrar, and had signed the registration book.

Mr. Ramsey testified on direct examination that Mr. Jones had not registered at that time or place, and the registration book showed that B. F. Jones had registered in Enterprise more than a year before.

When counsel for the State, Mr. Riddell, completed Mr. Ramsey's direct examination, and before his cross-examination, respondent Judge W. Harold Cox, who was presiding, stated:

"I want to hear from the government about why this Court shouldn't require this Negro Reverend W. G. Goff and his companion Kendrick to show cause why they shouldn't be bound over to await the action of the grand jury for perjury. I want to hear from you on that . . . I think they ought to be put under about a $3,000.00 bond each to await the action of a grand jury. Unless I change my mind that is going to be the order . . .

I just want these Negroes to know that they can't come into this Court and swear to something as important as that was and is and get by with it. I don't care who brings them here . . . And I mean that for whites alike, but I am talking about the case at hand. I just don't intend to put up with perjury. That is something I will not tolerate. All right."

Floyd Jones later testified that he was near the outdoor registration table in Stonewall in 1955 and observed Mr. Ramsey registering white people there. He further stated that he had talked to Mr. Ramsey and had shaken hands with him. It was undisputed that white people were being registered in Stonewall on that occasion.

In September 1963 the Government declined to prosecute the witnesses because it believed that they had not committed perjury.

On October 13, 1963, Goff and Kendrick were arrested for violations of state law for falsely testifying in Federal court before Judge Cox in the Ramsey case. The state prosecution was based on affidavits filed by Tally Riddell, counsel for the Registrar and the State in the Ramsey case.

Goff and Kendrick were arrested, placed in jail for two days and made $3,000.00 bond. Later they were indicted by a state grand jury. Efforts by departmental attorneys to persuade local officials not to proceed were unavailing despite the U. S. Supreme Court case, In re Loney, 134 U.S. 372, explicitly forbidding, on grounds of pre-exemption, state officials' prosecution for perjury allegedly committed in a federal court. On March 20, 1964 the United States filed suit against the state district attorney, seeking to enjoin the state prosecution on the grounds that the states have no authority to prosecute for perjury in a federal court, and upon the ground that the purpose and effect of that suit was to threaten and coerce Reverend Goff and Mr. Kendrick and to intimidate them and other Negro voters for the purpose of interfering with their right to vote. In answer to that suit, the defendant alleged Mr. Riddell had intended to present the evidence to a federal grand jury, and had "assembled the evidence for presentation to a Federal Grand Jury." The defendant state prosecutor further alleged that the "purpose of instituting the state prosecution was for the reason that the Department of Justice failed, neglected, and refused to vindicate the United States District Court after having been directed to cause the matter to be presented to a Federal Grand Jury by the District Judge."

On April 21, 1964 the district court (per Wise, J.) ruled that neither the State of Mississippi nor its agents had authority to prosecute persons for giving information or sworn statements to any agency of the Federal Government. He further stated that the threatened enforcement of the state statutes was unlawful under the ruling in In re Loney, and is contrary to the provisions of 42 U.S.C. 1971(b) which outlaw intimidation for the purpose of interfering with voting rights, and held that the state indictments were "null and void." The Court entered a preliminary injunction enjoining the prosecution of the witnesses.

Complaint filed September 2, 1964, with certificate of general public importance and request for a three-judge court. On October 1, 1964 Judges Rives, Judge Thomas and Judge Johnson were appointed to the panel. The complaint is based on intimidatory and coercive acts committed in July 1964, and having the purpose of interfering with the rights secured by 42 U.S.C. 1961 and by Title II of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. These acts include: (a) arrests of Negroes for using public accommodations; (b) baseless arrests of Negroes for urging voter registration (including some arrests of bystanders); (c) setting of unreasonable and discriminatory bond; (d) improper treatment of arrested Negroes in juvenile court; (e) failure to provide police protection to Negroes attempting to use a movie theater; (f) use of unreasonable force against Negroes gathered outside the theater; (g) brutality and vandalism by sheriff's department against Negroes attending a meeting at which voter registration and the use of public accommodations were encouraged; (h) police surveillance of such meetings; (i) improperly stationing large numbers of sheriff's deputies and posse-members at all entrances to the courthouse where voter registration takes place; and (j) issuing and enforcing an injunction that effectively stopped civil rights activity in Selma.

On September 22, 1964 the defendants filed a motion to dismiss. The Court took the motion under submission after the filing of briefs by both sides. Trial on the merits was held on December 8th to 12th and December 21st to 22nd. At the trial over 100 witnesses testified and numerous documents, including arrest reports, warrants, court dockets, juvenile court case files, radio logs, and jail registers, were introduced into evidence. The Government summarized this evidence in a 130-page trial brief, accompanied by six volumes of tables, filed on January 23, 1965.

Demand letter was served August 17, 1964, to photograph records. Board of Registrars refused to allow photographing or inspection of records, although Probate Judge allowed photographing. The records were rephotographed September 3, 1964, but have not yet been analyzed. A survey in July, 1964, indicated that few Negroes were attempting to register. Statistics obtained at the September photographing indicate that 207 Negroes applied between October 1, 1963, and August 31, 1964. During that period, the Board accepted 99% of the white applicants and 75.3% of the Negro applicants.

A preliminary survey indicates that assistance is given to whites but not to Negroes. Negro leaders planned a registration drive for October, 1964. It is difficult to get Negroes to attempt to register because the county has begun using the new form and insert. There is sufficient indication of discrimination to warrant a full investigation by the Department.

The records were photographed January 29, 1962. On January 22, 1963, a Department attorney and the U.S. Attorney met with the Clarke County Board of Registrars and submitted a specific settlement letter. The Board assured the government spokesmen that they would comply; but when Negroes began to try to register, the Board resigned. On February 14, 1963 the Department wrote the Alabama Attorney General advising him of the situation. On February 28, 1963, he replied that a new Board would be slow in coming. On February 28, 1963, the Department wrote that a suit would be filed on March 18, 1963, unless a new Board, which would agree to our demands, was appointed. The new Board was appointed during the second week of March. The Department decided not to sue, but to give the new Board an opportunity to be fair.

Additional interviews were conducted April 8, 1963, and it was learned that the new Board had not yet started to receive applications. It was also learned that Mr. Hill, one of the new appointees, had resigned.

At the end of October, 1963, there were approximately 225 Negroes registered in the county. The Board did not reject any Negroes in October, 1963. The present board now has three members. Recent survey indicates that the board continues to be tough.

The Board used the monthly inserts from February through August, 1964. In September it began to use the new insert with 100 variants. There is some indication that white applicants are aided more than Negroes in the registration process.

There is not much registration activity. There is no voter organization in the county and local leadership is poor.

At least 5 rejected. A re-registration was begun in 1958. At one time prior to that there were 900 Negroes registered. Applications submitted before January 1, 1959, were destroyed. The use of the new insert Part III has discouraged Negro registration. Active Negro leadership is developing in the county.

Beginning in late 1962 and continuing until October, 1963, in response to a Negro voter registration drive, the Board of Registrars adopted a number of racially discriminatory practices. About 80% of the Negro applicants were rejected. Attempts to negotiate were repulsed.

New Board members began office in October, 1963 and accepted 65% of Negro applicants as of March 10, 1964. The new Board, however, continued some discriminatory practices and, in addition, purged 12 newly-registered Negroes from the rolls in February because they stated on their application form they had not "previously applied for and been denied registration as a voter." Each had been previously rejected but had not been notified of that.

The Board is now using the new application form and the revised Insert Part III (100 tests). The records will be inspected again in early 1965. If the records disclose continued discrimination, this county will be an excellent illustration of the freezing effect of the Insert tests in a broadform suit or independent 1971(a) suit.

Records photographed on June 30, 1961. The white voucher rule was dropped in July, 1961. Department attorneys surveyed county in August and September 1962 and records were rephotographed on September 7, 1962. Records photographed again on December 9, 1963. Most of records through 1963 have been analyzed. Records rephotographed on September 18, 1964; not yet analyzed. Southern part of county is well organized by Negroes; northern part beginning to show signs of voter activity. Many Negro applicants interviewed throughout 1963 and in January 1964. Government believes that Negroes are being discriminated against as Board is using form as test; Negro high school and college graduates have been rejected. The records indicate that white persons are receiving assistance in registration.

Records were photographed on May 10, 1961. They have been analyzed. The Board admits that it does not reject whites. No Negroes had ever tried to register until January, 1964, when two Negroes went to the courthouse. They were not permitted to apply as, they were told, it was not a registration day. In September, 1964, one Negro stated that after the deadline for registering for the November election, Negroes will apply.

A complaint was prepared on October 5, 1962 but was not filed because, in November, the Board agreed to cease discriminating and to follow generally the provisions of the Bullock County decree. A conference was held in January, 1963 to determine whether the Board was acting in accordance with the agreement. Records were inspected, and at that time it was determined the Board was not complying, as Negroes were being rejected for technical errors. During December and January, about two-thirds of the Negro applicants had been accepted. (Thirty were accepted in all.)

Further investigation was made during the week of April 8, 1963. It was found that two Negro schoolteachers had been rejected for failing to sign the oath. Records were rephotographed April 16, 1963.

In March or April the Board began a monthly reporting procedure. Progress was poor until August, when 43 of the 48 Negroes who had applied were accepted. In September, 10 out of 12 were accepted; in October, 9 were accepted. In November 1963, the Board registered 12 Negroes but rejected 25. During the same period, the Board registered 113 whites and rejected one.

The Board is still making registration more difficult for Negroes than for whites. It began using the monthly insert form in February 1964 and the 100 variation insert in September. Mr. McCants resigned from the Board in the Summer of 1964. A replacement has not yet been named.

A complaint was prepared on November 13, 1961. The U.S. Attorney negotiated with local authorities in Fall, 1961, and they agreed to register Negroes. At the end of August, 1963, 650 Negroes (estimate of local Negro leader found to be accurate) were registered. Negroes were rejected in September and October 1963: one white has been rejected since May, 1963. The records were last photographed on August 19, 1964. The pace of Negroes registration has slowed considerably because of apprehension and difficulty with the new form. The Board began using the 100 sheet insert in September, 1964.

After 18 months of negotiations, including the preparation of a complaint in February, 1963, the Board was told, on March 4, 1963, that it must correct its abuses within 60 days. By a letter of March 18, 1963, the Board agreed to our requirements. A Department attorney met with the Board and the County attorney from March 29 to April 6, 1963. 200 Negroes were registered, 43 were rejected.

The records were photographed in June, 1963. The records are poorly kept and the rolls have not been purged in years. All applicants are examined orally; no written test is administered.

The Board is generally cooperative, but extremely inefficient. In one respect, that of providing the Department with monthly reports, the Board has not cooperated at all.

From September through December, 1964, most applicants of both races were accepted. One Negro was rejected and no Board member could recall the reason for his rejection. No action is planned other than periodic checking to see that all is progressing well.

The registration application form for Negroes is a different color than that used for whites. Also, separate voters lists are maintained and whites and Negroes use different ballot boxes when voting. Department attorneys have conferred with local officials on these matters, but the conferences were largely unsuccessful. The chief registrar did agree to compile voting lists without racial distinction. A Department attorney threatened to file suit if the discriminatory practices were not eliminated by the September 1964 primary. It is expected that the Department will be filing suit.

With respect to discrimination in voting, we have affidavits of compliance with the laws from the Ordinary and Democratic Executive Committee. In the September primary, however, Negroes had to use a different door to get into the voting facilities in one of the precincts. A member of the Democratic Executive Committee assured the F.B.I. this situation would be remedied for the November election. The Government is looking into this matter.

The situation in this county shows improvement. Negroes have had some difficulty in finding the Tax Collector who distributes application forms, in his office. A new younger Tax Collector will take office January 1, 1965. There has been trouble with SNCC workers. At least one has gone into school during class hours to recruit and to lead freedom songs. Apparent reprisals have come in the form of arrests for traffic violations. Generally, however, there has been very little SNCC activity or voter registration activity by Negroes in the second half of 1964. Negroes have been given the thirty-question test more frequently than have whites; it appears that some Negroes are not given the election whether to take the literacy test or the thirty-question test.

From May 1962 to May 1963 approximately 105 whites and 6 Negroes were registered. As a result of a meeting with the Board and their counsel in late May 1963 the Board agreed to reconsider several applications of rejected Negroes, to hold special sessions to consider the large number of pending applications, and to establish a policy of passing upon applicants on a first-come-first-served basis. Shortly after this meeting registration was held in which a large number of Negroes were notified to attend. Most of those appearing were registered. Following this conference, the Board began holding meetings to test qualifications of Negro applicants. By the end of September, 1963 it had passed on the applications of 128 Negroes. 85 of these were accepted and 43 rejected. These records were inspected and the rejections appear justified with the possible exceptions of two or three cases. By the end of 1963, complaints were still being received that the Board was delaying the receiving and consideration of applications of Negro citizens of the county.

During 1964, the Board used separate days for registering Negroes and Whites and was slow in processing Negro applications. The attorney for the Board said he intended to tell the Board to stop having segregated meetings. Whether he followed through will be checked in 1965. Department attorneys attempted twice in 1964 to check registration records but could not find the chairman of the Board. Americus had segregated voting lines in the September primary and in the November election. Department attorneys are negotiating with local officials on this matter.

There is a long history of discrimination by the Board in this county.

The records were photographed December 19, 1963. Department attorneys met with the Board and its attorney. The Board agreed to allow Negroes who had been rejected to reapply. Eleven Negroes appeared on February 14. The Board processed the applications of the 11 Negroes in April after the Department threatened suit. Seven Negroes were accepted. Those Negroes who took the literacy test were required to copy a very lengthy article of the Georgia Constitution, an article that had not been given to white applicants during the past four years. Six Negroes applied during the summer of 1964, but all were rejected. They were given the twenty-questions test, rather than the literacy test. The Chairman of the Board of Registrars agreed orally in September with Department attorneys that the Board would give and explain to Negroes, as well as to whites, an election between taking the literacy or the twenty-questions test. The Chairman also agreed that Negroes electing to take the literacy test would not have to read or copy more lengthy or difficult constitutional provisions than whites. Finally, the Chairman renewed his agreement that the Board would allow any applicant to reapply. No Negroes have applied since July. The Department plans investigation in 1965 of intimidation.

FBI investigation in May 1961 disclosed some private intimidation. Voting records photographed and registrar interviewed April 24, 1963. Much evidence of assistance to whites, and section selection discrimination. Another Negro has been registered since photographing of records, on his fourth attempt. June 1964 attempts to negotiate freezing relief similar in nature to Panola and Tallahatchie cases failed after local attorney conferred with approximately one dozen white leaders of community. Attorney advised that complaint would be filed as soon as possible. Records now being organized and analyzed in preparation for white standards investigation, justification memo, and complaint. Publication materials and limited Negro interviews indicates very little registration activity. Complaint should be filed early in 1965. Need additional interviews of Negroes before complaint filed.

FBI investigation in September 1961 reflects that Negroes uniformly rejected for registration. Records photographed on December 13, 1962. Rejected forms very poor. Records indicate discriminatory selection of constitutional sections and assistance to white applicants. Registration book reflects about 116 Negroes registered. All except 12 registered prior to 1955. Check by Department attorney of 6 teachers listed as registered reveals that they were unaware they were registered. 4 of the rejected applicants were thereafter accepted and notified accordingly.

Negotiations with attorneys for registrar resulted in agreement by latter to grade very leniently, to register four of the eight Negro applicants rejected during 1963, and to place the names of all registered Negroes on the poll books. All of the above has been accomplished, and all known Negro applicants during 1964 have been accepted. Negotiations are still pending as to a more satisfactory system for notifying applicants of the result of their examination. Examination of publication materials indicates a small but steady stream of Negro applicants since March 1964. Records will be inspected again in early 1965. So far this county is best negotiation situation in state.

The Registrar has rejected Negroes on basis of good moral character test. Analysis of registration records show discrimination in selection of sections, and low standards for whites. Race identification has been determined for 30 previously unidentified persons who are accepted, but not listed on registration or poll books. No other investigation or action has been taken in the county in the past year. Review of county to be undertaken early in 1965. Prior analysis and interviews indicate that problem should be called to attention of registrar to give him an opportunity to remedy the situation. If this is not done, suit should be finally prepared.

Records were photographed on August 30, 1963. Analysis indicates massive section discrimination and assistance to whites both in terms of standard answers and completion of the form by persons other than the applicant. (FBI handwriting analysis is complete). Interpretation test is being strictly administered to Negroes. Potential Negro witnesses have been interviewed. A justification memorandum and complaint has been prepared. Negotiations begun but not terminated. Attorneys for the registrar indicate a willingness to restrict sections of constitution to be used. Decision made, in light of massive discrimination and assistance to whites, to insist on elimination of constitutional test. Suit ready for filing if negotiations unsuccessful.

Records photographed 9/12-13/63. Records retained since August, 1956. All records sent to FBI for analysis. Department attorneys interview of Negroes indicates few Negroes have registered or tried to register since 1955. Current registrar tore up forms in the presence of 2 Negroes who applied in 1959. Control cards have not been typed and there has been only the partial analysis of the records done on the day of photographing.

Records first photographed in January of 1963, records and interviews indicate massive assistance and very low grading standard for whites and occasional assistance and low grading standards for some Negroes between April 1953 and March 1961. 2 or 3 rejected Negro forms with adequate answers during this period; worst discrimination occurred during the latter part of 1961 prior to election of present registrar in January of 1962. Present registrar applying higher standards with some section discrimination in 1962. Records were photographed again by agreement in January of 1964. Preliminary analysis indicates some improvement. Although Negroes still are required to make a greater effort to register than whites, discrimination here is less of an obstacle to registration than in other counties and Registrar indicates a willingness to negotiate. Current records to be analyzed and white standards determined. County to be watched closely!

A complaint was prepared in June, 1963 after a five-month period during which the registrar processed at most 17 persons on each once-a-month registration day, in spite of the fact that 236 persons appeared on a single day to register. The complaint is being held pending further performance by the Board, and that performance is improving. The Board has lived up to its agreement to process at least 70 persons each registration day. Negro registrations averaged about 100 in each of the first three months of 1964. However, the Board still appears to be rejecting qualified Negroes on technical grounds and periodic examination of the Board's performance should and will continue.

Following is a day-by-day statistical record of the Negroes' attempts to register:

Departmental negotiations with local officials were carried on through the United States Attorney. In the spring of 1964 Negro leaders advised Departmental attorneys that, in their judgment, the registration problems had ended. The candidate for Sheriff supported by the Negroes won in the primary, and the Negro leaders were themselves negotiating satisfactorily about remaining registration issues with the chairman of the Election-Commission.

As a reaction to the CORE voter registration drive in August 1963, numerous acts of reprisal and intimidation took place in East Feliciana Parish. They included the arrest and prosecution of two CORE workers; the firing from their jobs of four Negroes who associated with CORE; the interviewing of Negro applicants outside the registrar's office by the sheriff and the district attorney; a statement by the Superintendent of Schools to Negro teachers concerning CORE; and an injunction obtained in state court prohibiting CORE from meeting and demonstrating in East Feliciana Parish. In addition, CORE was charged with conducting a criminal conspiracy and twelve local Negro citizens were indicted on December 2, 1963 on charges of public intimidation and conspiracy to commit public intimidation as a result of a letter each signed calling for a bi-racial committee. A CORE worker was held in lieu of $14,000 bond in connection with the writing of the letter. CORE picketing led to over 50 arrests on breach of the peace and disorderly conduct charges. All criminal charges against CORE participants were held in abeyance by local officials throughout 1964.

Before October, 1963, no Negroes had registered in West Feliciana Parish since 1904. Two Negroes attempted to register on August 15, 1963. One was told he needed two witnesses to identify him; the other was engaged in conversation by the Sheriff, who then arrested him on a charge of disturbing the peace. The District Attorney had agreed to dismiss the charge, but the victim filed a damage suit against the Sheriff, causing the District Attorney to postpone indefinitely the dismissal. The complaint against the Sheriff was prepared.

On October 17 and 18, a busload of Negroes went to the courthouse to try to register. On the night of October 17, two Negroes were assaulted, one of whom was beaten by three white men who said they would kill them if they attempted to register again. Investigation has not revealed the identities of the principals.

Two Negro bus drivers had their insurance cancelled because of their involvement in the voter registration attempts. Investigation is being conducted, and a complaint will be filed if purpose of cancellation is clear enough. One Negro tenant farmer's lease was cancelled for no apparent reason other than his attempt to register. The investigation of this is proceeding.

In March 1964 a group of CORE workers and several Negro applicants were chased from the vicinity of the courthouse and shot at by an ex-deputy sheriff. No one was injured. The ex-deputy was arrested by local police, but the parish grand jury returned a no-bill when the matter was presented to it. Matter investigated and no further action contemplated.

In November 1964 two Negroes and one white person were indicted by the parish Grand Jury for making "false statements" on their application forms. Depositions of all three taken by the Government in U.S. v. Board of Registration to demonstrate deterrent effect of the ambiguous application form test. The Negro defendants removed to federal court, and the Department has under consideration participation in the removal proceedings.

In April 1964 large number of Negroes were not given contracts for their sweet potato crops by the local canning company. Investigation by Department attorneys did not show a pattern of reprisal for participation in voter registration activities. Reports in the Fall of 1964 indicated that pressures brought to bear by CORE's national officers induced the canning company to purchase most of the potato crop anyway.

Large voter registration drive initiated on January 22, 1964. Clergymen and COFO picketed County Courthouse over extended period. Several arrests of both clergymen and COFO workers, reports of police harassment of COFO workers. Newly passed state statute prohibiting picketing of public buildings such as County Courthouse, so as to block ingress and egress involved against 39 pickets early in April, 1964. FBI requested to interview several of the clergymen and COFO workers who were arrested and/or allegedly harassed by local law enforcement personnel. Investigation produced some evidence of possible 1971(b) violations, but primarily incidents that would present questions of fact and judgement as to enforcement of local ordinances. Picketing and arrests ended at about time 1971(a) case tried in Hattiesburg, (mid April, 1964). Negroes continuing to apply in large numbers. Investigation presently limited to individual incidents as reported. Case presently being held open in the event of future harassment.

A full investigation is underway in this county of some 40-50 incidents of alleged intimidation and interference both by the police and by private individuals. Investigation to date indicates possible violations of 1971(b) and 18 USC 242.

Investigation indicates that intimidation by private individuals may include besides physical violence, forms of economic reprisal, as (1) loss of employment and failure to be rehired on seasonal jobs, (2) cancellation of insurance policies, (3) cancellation of commercial agreements, refusals to trade, or withdrawal or refusal to extend credit, and (4) evictions, or refusals to renew leases.

Among the extensive allegations of police interference, or interference by other officials are the following: that (1) persons engaged in voter registration activity have been arrested and prosecuted for offenses for which arrests were previously seldom or never made; that (2) persons engaged in voter registration activity have been placed under arrest and confined for traffic or other minor offenses which, under other circumstances, would have resulted only in the issuance of tickets, without confinement; that (3) inordinately high bail for minor offenses is being imposed, and sentences far more severe than given to other persons for similar offenses are being levied by the courts and Justices of the Peace; that (4) police officials search out violations on the part of persons engaged in voter registration or other civil rights activity, e.g. by stationing themselves near voter registration meetings, checking the licenses or the conditions of the vehicles of persons attending and checking for minor traffic offenses and arresting or ticketing persons in connection with them, while not making any such concentrated efforts with respect to other persons; that (5) information gained by such surveillance is being disseminated to the Canton White Citizens Council for the purpose of bringing pressure to bear on individuals engaged in civil rights activities; and that (6) there have been instances of police brutality, and on at least one occasion, that police fired a pistol with blanks at a Negro who had registered to vote four days earlier, and who they were interrogating to obtain names of persons involved in voter registration activities.

Negro registration activity commencing in the late summer of 1962 resulted in widespread economic reprisals against participating Negroes by city officials, merchants, and farmers. An extensive investigation conducted in 1963 and continued in 1964 confirmed the alleged intimidation but the evidence as to the actors' purposes was not specific enough to satisfy the requirements of Section 197(b).

The matter is being held open because the information developed may tie in with future intimidation as registration by Negroes continues.

*On October 14 and 29, 1964, U.S. District Court ordered 30 previously rejected Negroes registered in time to vote in November, 1964, election. See U.S. v. Campbell, et al (1971 (a) case) for details.

STATUS

As of 9/1/55: 10,031/4,266; 15,939/511.* After proceedings which lasted just under 2 years, on November 15, 1962, Judge Clayton issued order allowing inspection which was limited to records relating to persons accepted for registration, excluding records of persons rejected for registration and limiting inspection to records received prior to date of demand letter. Notice of appeal filed on 12/27/62; defendant filed cross-appeal 1/9/63; Court of Appeals decision 12/6/63, modified Judge Clayton's order to include rejected applications and records obtained after the date of demand. In January, 1964, Judge Clayton insured an order granting the inspection and photographing of records. Defendant then petitioned the Supreme Court for writ of certiorari, during the pendency of which the District Court order was staged. Certiorari was denied 5/18/64, and records photographed 6/24/64. No analysis completed.

STATUS

As of 7/1/55: 3,880/2,887; 3,958/1.* On July 31, 1964, the Court ordered the registrar to permit the government to inspect records. Inspected records August 13, 1964. Forms - there are 2 county seats. (1) Carrollton: From 4/5/55, there are 671 forms - 191 accepted, 1 rejected, 14 pending, 565 no indication, but probably accepted. (2) Varden: From 2/6/62, 46 forms - 45 accepted, 1 rejected. Analysis done at the time of photographing indicated assistance, standard answers, low literary whites. (see Carroll Co. investigation folder.) Race identification has not been done yet, but based on interviews to date with the clerk and Negroes, there are no Negro application forms. However, 4 Negroes were put on the registration books in 1959 for jury duty. No case is pending in this county. No control cards have been typed.

Based on a count of these and a count of the cards photographed in January, 1964, the records show, from January, 1959, through December, 1963: 20,061 whites accepted, 82 whites rejected; 772 Negroes accepted, 1,111 Negroes rejected. The records show that the application card has been used as a test for Negroes but not for whites. The accepted applications, A-J, for the period January 1, 1952, through August 14, 1962, have been typed on control cards. Limited analysis is contained on these control cards and in the Caddo and U. (14) DeSoto Parish	March 23, 1962 Decree	August 7, 1962 Jan. 17, 1964 June 3, 1964

As of 8/31/62: 6,543/5,633; 6,753/599.* Accepted applications A - E for the period January 1, 1952, through August 7, 1962, have been typed on control cards. Analysis of these applications, which is on the control cards and in the De Soto Investigation file, shows that over 40% of the accepted whites have errors for which Negroes were rejected. The records show that the registrar first rejected applicants for errors on the card in January, 1958. From that date through December, 1963: 1,778 whites accepted, 23 whites rejected; 359 Negroes accepted, 314 Negroes rejected. Registrar's Reports, U. S. v. Louisiana, January through November, 1964: 186 whites accepted, 8 whites rejected; 102 Negroes accepted, 83 Negroes rejected. Negro registration began to pick up about two years ago, after a three-year lull, and has increased from 600 to 849, including a gain of 74 in September, 1964.

The records show that the present registrar and his predecessor have been erratic in their treatment of Negro applicants. There was a purge in 1956, and most of the Negroes challenged were able to get back to the rolls, reportedly through the intervention of a local white lawyer. After that, until his retirement in 1959, the prior registrar (Slawson) rejected some Negroes on the card and the interpretation test, but he registered some others who had little education. The present registrar (Platt) has used the application card test just for Negroes, but since the U. S. v. Louisiana decree has eased up somewhat on his standards. The records are scheduled to be photographed approximately every six months.

No Negro applications. Control cards typed for current accepted cards and arranged alphabetically and chronologically. These records show white applicants received no test until September 1952. Records summarized in the Brief. Records photographed after the trial for the period December 1962 through December 1963: 717 whites accepted, 46 whites rejected; 259 Negroes accepted, 115 Negroes rejected. The records and the registrar's deposition, which is in the U. S. v. Board file, show that the registrar is now using the application card in a strict test. Records are scheduled to be photographed approximately every six months.

Preliminary analysis does not disclose clear discrimination on application form test. This analysis in Investigation file. Analysis of records photographed in March, 1964, is inconclusive due to low number of Negro applicants. Registrar's Reports, U. S. v. Louisiana, September, 1964: 174 accepted whites, 4 rejected whites; 74 accepted Negroes, 39 rejected Negroes. These applications represent the only substantial registration effort by Negroes in this parish in over a year. These cards are scheduled to be photographed soon under the provisions of the U. S. v. Board are a handful that were apparently rejected on the interpretation test. This parish is not included in the United States v. Louisiana decree.

The records also contain the cards of 103 Negroes and 56 white persons who were rejected on the application card test. It appears from these cards that the registrar has not been as strict on the card as others in North Louisiana, but there have been a few well qualified Negroes rejected on these grounds. Negro registration has remained the same since 12/63.

As of 8/31/62: 257,495/170,275; 125,752/35,585.* In August and September, 1962, we photographed all of the approximately 9,000 white and 1,500 Negro applications of persons registered after July 24, 1961, and 4% of applications of those registered before that date or about 6,040 white and 1,300 Negro accepted applications and 2% of approximately 300,000 applications (6,000) of those removed from the rolls. In addition all of the rejected applications (8,550 Negro and 1,411 whites before July 24, 1961) were photographed. Control cards have been typed for "A-LaCoste" of the accepted applications from July 24, 1961 to August, 1962, and "A-D" of the rejected applications from July 24, 1961, to August, 1962. "A-E" of the accepted applications from July 24, 1961, to August, 1962, have been analyzed and put in chronological order. Analysis on control cards and in records section of parish investigation file. In preparation for U. S. v. Board, all applications from January, 1959, through December, 1963 (through July 24, 1961, based on a 4% sample of the accepted cards) were counted: 46,897 accepted whites, 7,344 rejected whites; 8,713 accepted Negroes, 17,308 rejected Negroes. In addition, the accepted-rejected rate by deputy registrar was determined for the period July 24, 1961, through December, 1963. Other analysis of the records are found in the Orleans and the U. S. v. Board investigation files. Since 12/63 Negro registration has increased by 729, whereas white registration has decreased by 384.

As of 12/31/60: 40,185/24,789; 16,377/729.* The records were analyzed in preparation for trial in February, 1964, of United States v. Lucky. Control cards have been typed for approximately 25,000 accepted whites; 425 rejected whites; 4,000 whites removed from the registration rolls; about 2,000 names of white persons that appear on lists; 1,000 accepted Negroes; 900 rejected Negroes; 4,250 Negroes removed from the registration rolls; 900 affidavits of retention of Negroes; and 700 returned envelopes. These forms have been analyzed and the control cards placed in chronological and alphabetical order. Among the records photographed December, 1963, there are approximately 3,727 accepted whites; 225 rejected whites; 278 accepted Negro, 225 rejected Negroes; and 210 unseparated accepted applications. The records show Negroes were purged and rejected on standards different than those applied to white persons. Registrar's report, United States v. Louisiana, June through November, 1964: 1,269 whites accepted, 36 whites rejected; 281 Negroes accepted, 144 Negroes rejected. The records show that the registrar, in accordance with the U. S. v. The records have not been photographed as originally scheduled (every six months) due to an apparent misunderstanding with the Parish District Attorney.

The registrar has extremely strict standards on the application card for a South Louisiana registrar. From these records and interviews with Negro leaders in the parish, it appears that registration was no problem for Negroes until some time in 1960. Since we have not photographed the accepted cards, we have no idea what the accepted-rejected rate is, but since 1960, 80 white persons and 198 Negroes have been rejected for errors on the card. Some of the rejected Negroes are teachers and other well qualified persons.

In addition the registrar apparently has recently instituted a strict proof of residence requirement, which may be an indication that this means of limiting Negro registration has begun to spread. Since 12/63, white registration was decreased by 353 and Negro registration has decreased by 117.

All accepted application cards "A-E", for this period have been typed on control cards. Limited analysis on the control cards. Analysis of records through 1963 in Union investigation file. At the present time, there seems to be little restraining Negro registration other than tradition. The registrar is not using the citizenship test in accordance with the decree in U. S. v. Louisiana and he does not now reject for technical errors on the card. But there has been a history of attempts to limit Negro registration. There was a Citizens Council purge in 1956, and after the general re-registration in 1957, Negroes were rejected on the application card and the interpretation test. After 1959, very few Negroes applied and until late 1962 and those who did were subjected to these tests. After we photographed the records in November, 1962, the registrar relaxed his standards and Negroes started applying again. Since that time, Negro registration has increased from 600 to 864. Registrar's Reports, U. S. v. Louisiana, March through November 1964: 226 whites accepted, 0 whites rejected; 64 Negroes accepted, 10 Negroes rejected.

In December 1962, in proceedings in the case of United States v. Ramsey, et al., S.D. Miss., a suit brought against the Registrar of Clarke County, Mississippi, and the State of Mississippi to enforce voting rights under the Civil Rights Acts of 1957 and 1960, two Negro witnesses for the United States (Reverend Golf and Kendrick), testified that some seven years earlier, they had attempted to register at an outdoor place of registration temporarily set up in Stonewall, Mississippi; that the Registrar, Mr. Ramsey, had declined to register them or give them application forms; that they had seen white people registering there on that day; and that one white man, B. Floyd Jones, had been near the registration table, had talked to Mr. Ramsey, the Registrar, and had signed the registration book.

Mr. Ramsey testified in direct examination that Mr. Jones had not registered at that time or place, and the registration book showed that B. F. Jones had registered in Enterprise more than a year before.

When counsel for the State, Mr. Riddell, completed Mr. Ramsey's direct examination, and before his cross-examination, Judge Cox stated:

I want to hear from the government about why this Court shouldn't require this Negro Reverend W. G. Goff and his companion Kendrick to show cause why they shouldn't be bound over to await the action of the grand jury for perjury. I want to hear from you on that...I think they ought to be put under about a $3,000.00 bond each to await the action of a grand jury. Unless I change my mind that is going to be the order...I just want these Negroes to know that they can't come into this Court and swear to something as important as that was and is and get by with it. I don't care who brings them here...And I mean that for whites alike, but I am talking about the case at hand. I just don't intend to put up with perjury. That is something I will not tolerate.

Floyd Jones later testified that he was near the out-of-door registration table in Stonewall in 1955 and observed Mr. Ramsey registering white people there, and that he had talked to Mr. Ramsey and had shaken hands with him. It was undisputed that white people were being registered in Stonewall on that occasion.

The Government declined to prosecute for perjury after a determination by the Department of Justice that such an action was unupportable on the facts.

On October 13, 1963, Goff and Kendrick were arrested for violations of state law for falsely testifying in Federal court before Judge Cox in the Ramsey case. The state prosecution was based on affidavits filed by Riddell.

Goff and Kendrick were arrested and placed in jail for two days; made $3,000.00 bond; and were later indicted by a state grand jury. Efforts by departmental attorneys to persuade local officials not to proceed were unavailing despite the U.S. Supreme Court case, In re Loney, 134 U.S. 372, explicitly forbidding, on grounds of preemption, state officials' prosecution for perjury allegedly committed in a federal court.

On March 20, 1964 the United States filed suit against the state district attorney, (U.S. v. Warner), seeking to enjoin the state prosecution on the grounds that the states have no authority to prosecute for perjury in a federal court, and upon the ground that the purpose and effect of that suit was to threaten and coerce Goff and Kendrick and to intimidate them and other Negro voters for the purpose of interfering with their right to vote. In answer to that suit, the defendant alleged that Riddell had intended to present the evidence to a Federal Grand Jury, and had "assembled the evidence for presentation to a Federal Grand Jury."

The defendant state prosecutor further alleged that the "purpose of instituting the state prosecution was for the reason that the Department of Justice failed, neglected, and refused to vindicate the United States District Court after having been directed to cause the matter to be presented to a Federal Grand Jury by the District Judge."

On April 21, 1964 the District Court (Judge Mize) ruled that neither the State of Mississippi nor its agents had authority to prosecute persons for giving information or sworn statements to any agency of the Federal Government, and that the threatened enforcement of the state statutes "is unlawful under the ruling in In re Loney, and is contrary to the provisions of 42 U.S.C. 1971(b)" and entered a preliminary injunction enjoining their prosecution.

The Federal Grand Jury which had originally been convened on September 9, 1963, was reconvened on September 21, 1964. On September 28, 1964, the Foreman of the Grand Jury advised Mr. Owen, the Government attorney who was presenting matters to the Grand Jury, that Judge Cox had asked the Foreman to hear two witnesses, Boyce Holleman and Talley Riddell, (two Mississippi attorneys), on matters unrelated to those which Mr. Owen was presenting to the Grand Jury. Two of these matters concerned the alleged perjury of Kendrick and Goff. Holleman and Riddell appeared before the Grand Jury on October 21, 1964. The United States Attorney secured permission to be present and to advise the grand jury on the law of perjury. Acting under instructions from the Department, the United States Attorney at no time agreed or represented that he would prepare or sign the proposed indictments. On October 22nd the Foreman of the Grand Jury advised Judge Cox in open court that the United States Attorney had refused to assist in preparing true bills and requested instructions. Judge Cox then ordered the United States Attorney upon penalty of contempt to prepare the indictments. The United States Attorney restated the government's position with regard to this matter and pursuant to explicit instructions from the Attorney General, refused to prepare the indictments and was held in contempt of court by Judge Cox. At the same time, the Court ordered the Attorney General to appear and to show cause why he should not likewise be held in contempt.

The Government immediately petitioned the Court of Appeals for a Writ of Prohibition and was granted a stay of Judge Cox's order pending determination of the appeal. The theory of the application for this writ is that the District Court's order seeks to coerce the Executive Branch of the Federal Government into performing a discretionary function, the initiation of prosecutive proceedings, and as such, was an abuse of judicial discretion. The appeal was argued on December 18, 1964. No decision to date.

EXPLANATION OF THE ATTACHED TABLES
DEMONSTRATING THAT THERE IS A
HIGH PROBABILITY OF VOTING
DISCRIMINATION WHERE THE USE OF "TESTS OR DEVICES"
COINCIDES WITH LOW
VOTER PARTICIPATION

Under Section 3(a) of the proposed Voting Rights Act of 1965 the use of certain State voting qualifications -- called "tests or devices" in the Act -- would be suspended, and the appointment of federal examiners would be authorized, upon the coincidence of two factors: (1) where such tests or devices were maintained as a qualification for voting on November 1, 1964, and (2) where less than 50% of persons of voting age were registered to vote on November 1, 1964, or voted in the Presidential election of 1964. Experience has shown that where these two factors are present low electoral participation is generally the result of racially discriminatory use of tests and devices.

The evidence supporting this conclusion is overwhelming. Statistics tell much. In the Presidential election of 1964, ballots were cast by 62% of the American electorate.<sup>1/</sup> Only seventeen states fell below the national average. In nine of these seventeen states, fewer than 50% of the persons of voting age voted in the Presidential election of 1964. Of these nine states, seven employed tests or devices. A survey of registration data in six of these states (Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, and Virginia) indicates that a large proportion of non-whites of voting age are not registered to <sup>2/</sup>vote. Obviously, in these states, each of which has a large non-white population, there is a significant correlation between the small percentage of non-whites of voting age who are registered and the percentage of persons who voted in the Presidential election of 1964. Where the Department of Justice has undertaken investigations and litigation it is clear that this correlation is dramatically related to the systematic denial of the right to vote on account of race in violation of the Fifteenth Amendment.

2/ Table B-1. This table is a compilation showing the number of white persons of voting age and the number of non-white persons of voting age residing in the states which maintained a test and device on November 1, 1964 and in which less than 50% of the entire voting-age population voted in the Presidential election of 1964; the number of white and non-white persons of voting age registered to vote and the percentage of persons of voting age for each category, white and non-white, registered to vote in each such state.

In at least five of these States -- Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, South Carolina and Georgia -- the Department has uncovered evidence that there has been racial discrimination in the voting process. The Department, however, has focused its efforts primarily on areas where voting discrimination has been most severe. As a result of this policy, most of the Department's investigations and suits have involved counties in Alabama and Mississippi and parishes in Louisiana.

Court findings in these states reveal a systematic effort to use tests or devices to disfranchise Negroes. It is highly significant that no voting discrimination case has ever been concluded without a finding of racial discrimination. Thus, the Department has instituted twelve voting suits in Alabama under 42 U.S.C. 1971(a)<sup>3/</sup>. To this date, there have been findings of discrimination in eight of these cases; four cases are presently pending . In each of the eight cases, the discrimination was effected by the use of tests or devices. The statistics for the counties in which these suits were brought show a large non-white voting-age population, high percentage of white registration, a low percentage of non-white registration and low voter turnout in the Presidential election of 1964<sup>4/</sup>.

This table contains a compilation of voting suits filed by the Department of Justice under 42 U.S.C. 1971(a) in Alabama indicating the county in which the suit was brought, the type of test or device challenged or found to be used discriminatorily, and whether there was a court finding of discrimination.

The Department of Justice also has brought five suits in Alabama under 42 U.S.C. 1971(b) involving intimidation and other interference with the right to vote.

In Mississippi, the Department has instituted twenty-two voting suits under 42 U.S.C. 1971(a)<sup>5/</sup>. As of now, there are thirteen cases pending and there have been court findings of racial discrimination effectuated by the use of tests and devices in the other nine. Again, the statistics in the counties in which suits were brought show a large non-white voting age population, a high percentage of white registration, a low percentage of non-white registration and a low voter turnout in the Presidential election of 196<sup>6/</sup>4.

This table contains a compilation of voting suits filed by the Department of Justice under 42 U.S.C. 1971(a) in Mississippi indicating the county in which the suit was brought, the type of test or device challenged or found to be used discriminatorily, and whether there was a court finding of discrimination.

In Mississippi, the Department of Justice has brought seven suits under 42 U.S.C. 1971(b) involving intimidation and other interference with the right to vote. In addition, three suits challenged discriminatory application of the poll tax requirement.

The Department has instituted fourteen voting suits in Louisiana under 42 U.S.C. 1971(a)<sup>7/</sup>.

6/ Table B-4(b). This table contains, for each county in Mississippi in which a suit was brought by the Department of Justice under 42 U.S.C. 1971(a), a compilation showing the percentage of persons of voting age who voted in the Presidential election of 1964; the number of white persons of voting age and the number of non-white persons of voting age as reported by the Bureau of Census in the Census of Population: 1960 for each such county; the number of white and non-white persons of voting registered to vote as determined by the Department of Justice and the percentage of persons of voting age for each category, white and non-white, registered to vote in each such county.

7/ Table B-4(a). This table contains a compilation of voting suits filed by the Department of Justice under 42 U.S.C. 1971(a) in Louisiana indicating the county in which the suit was brought, the type of test or device challenged or found to be used discriminatorily, and whether there was a court finding of discrimination.

In Louisiana, the Department of Justice has brought one suit under 42 U.S.C. 1971(b) involving intimidation and other interference with the right to vote.

In nine of these there have been court findings of racial discrimination effectuated by the use of tests and devices; five cases are presently pending. Again, the statistical pattern holds true. There is a large non-white voting age population, a high percentage of white registration, a low percentage of non-white registration and a low voter turn out in the 1964 Presidential election.<sup>8/</sup>

8/ Table B-3(b) - This table contains, for each county in Louisiana in which a suit was brought by the Department of Justice under 42 U.S.C. 1971(a), a compilation showing the percentage of persons of voting age who voted in the Presidential election of 1964; the number of white persons of voting age as reported by the Bureau of Census in the Census of Population: 1960 for each county; the number of white and non-white persons of voting age registered to vote as determined by the Department of Justice and the percentage of persons of voting age for each category, white and non-white, registered to vote in each such county.

An analysis of the registration data for six of the seven states covered by the proposed Act reveals a similar pattern: a large non-white voting age population, a high percentage of white registration, a low percentage of non-white registration, a low voter turn out in the Presidential election of 1964, and the use of a test or device.<sup>9/</sup>

Another similarity exists among the states of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Virginia. All of them have had within the past ten years a general public policy of racial segregation evidenced by statutes in force and effect in the areas of travel, recreation, schools and hospital facilities.<sup>10/</sup> Of the twenty-one states which maintain a test or device,<sup>11/</sup> there are only two others besides these six which have had a policy of racial segregation, reflected by its laws. In one of these, North Carolina, thirty-four counties are covered. The other, Delaware, is a State whose statutes now reflect a reversal of that policy as evidenced by the recent enactment of anti-discrimination statutes in areas of public accommodations and employment.

<sup>10/</sup> Table C-1 - This table indicates in which states, of those maintaining a test or device on November 1, 1964, statutes were in effect within the past ten years requiring segregation in travel, recreation, schools, and hospital facilities.

<sup>11/</sup> Table A-3 - This table is a compilation showing the voting age population as of November 1, 1964, as estimated by the Bureau of Census, the total vote cast in the Presidential election of 1964, and the percentage of persons of voting age who voted in the Presidential election of 1964 in states which maintained a test or device on November 1, 1964.

Strikingly, in most of the states which maintain tests or devices but in which more than 50% of the voting age population voted in the Presidential election of 1964 there are statutes prohibiting racial discrimination in education, public accommodations, employment and housing.<sup>12/</sup> Since these states express, in so many areas, a public policy against racial discrimination, it is certainly reasonable to assume that voting discrimination does not exist.

FOOTNOTES

1/ The total voting age population for the respective states is taken from an estimate by the Bureau of Census as of November 1, 1964, in a memorandum issued by the Department of Commerce, dated September 8, 1964, number CB64-93. The voting age population for white and non-white in 1964 was computed by taking the voting age population statistics for white and non-white as reported in the Census of Population: 1960, determining the ratio of each group to the total voting age population in 1960, and applying that ratio to the total voting age population as estimated by the Bureau of Census for November 1, 1964.

2/ These statistics, excepting those for Virginia, are based on findings published in U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, Registration and Voting Statistics, March 19, 1965. They are not based on official state sources due to the lack of official state information regarding registration by race.

The registration data based on official state sources in the chart containing voting and registration statistics for all states (master chart) reflect registration as of a later date than the data published by the Commission. For this reason, the registration figures in this chart, when totalled, differ slightly from the registration figures in the master chart. The totals here are as follows: Alabama 1,028,432; Georgia 1,292,078; Louisiana 1,201,785; Mississippi 553,500; South Carolina 816,458; Virginia 1,311,023.

3/ U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, Registration and Voting Statistics, March 19, 1965.

4/ Alaska does not have statewide registration.
